Lancaster Farming

VOL. 37 No. 29 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, May 30, 1992 | 60¢ Per Copy | $19.00 Per Year

Lebanon County Dairy Princess Karen Lentz and her dad, Bob, spend a few moments with the heifers they raise. After one year of dairy promotions, Karen will crown a successor at the pageant to be held at the Lebanon County Vo Tech on June 13 at 7:30 p.m. Turn to page B12 for a story about Karen by Lou Ann Good.

Four Cows Killed In Late Night By Rifle Fire

SMITHTON (Westmoreland County) — About midnight on Sunday May 17, neighbors of Mike Hepler, a 22-year-old farmer, heard what sounded like firecrackers. The neighbors heard the loud exhaust of a dark, medium-sized hatchback going up Route 31, which divides their property from Hepler's.

Four more times the vehicle drove by, stopping once for about 30 seconds on the state road, popping off more explosives on the third pass.

The explosives were shots from what police believe to be Russian AK-47 or Chinese SKS-47 military weapons. Three cows were killed outright, one has since died. Four cows are recovering from the wounds suffered in the shooting. The whole herd and their owner are recovering from the emotional trauma.

Killed were a registered Jersey, a registered Holstein, and a grade Holstein. Later, another Holstein, wounded in the incident, was put away by the veterinarian.

The perpetrators "almost acted like they wanted to get caught," said a puzzled Hepler as he tried to figure out what happened and why. "Why would anyone what to kill innocent animals?"

State Trooper John Dickson initially investigated the occurrence. He and others recovered 40-50 spend shell casings, a bullet from one of the cows and a bullet from a house just down the road from Hepler. After the Memorial Day holiday, State Trooper Dan Mamrose will continue the investigation for the vacationing Dickson. Police at Belle Vernon said when persons are caught, they could be charged with criminal mischief,

William P. Campbell, Pennsylvania FFA President, 1931

Editor's Note: The Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, assisted by 18 former FFA state officers, has begun an ambitious search for former state officers — their addresses, what they are doing now, and recording their remembrances as a state officer and their thoughts today about the FFA and what it meant to them to be a state officer.

This article is in part the result of those searches. It is hoped that the Lancaster Farming's readers will be stimulated to aid in this search to find all the state FFA officers elected since 1931. If you know of a former state officer living in your area please either call Mary Jo Cancelmo, Foundation Executive Director (215) 648-0674 or write to the Foundation at Calder Square, P.O. Box 10493, State College, PA 16805.

Having the label "Oldest Living State FFA President" circa 1931 is totally misleading for Bill Campbell. Facing the eighth decade of his life, Bill Campbell puts most of us to shame — both in physical and mental capacity. Expecting to interview a man in the twilight of his years, I instead found a "gentle" man who could easily pass for 50 and whose philosophy on life could teach all of us valuable lessons on how to live life to

PennAg Industries Names 1992 Scholarship Winners

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — PennAg Industries Association has announced its 1992 scholarship award winners. The PennAg Scholarship fund was created for the benefit of the children of employees of PennAg members.

The 1992 award recipients are Amy Neilson of East Greenville, Daniel Myers of Spring Grove, and Teresa Smith of Altoona. Amy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Neilson, plans to attend Simmons College, Boston, where she will major in physical therapy or nursing. She will be graduated in June from Calvary Baptist School, Lansdale.

Daniel, the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Myers, plans to major in environmental sciences at Kutztown University, Kutztown. He will be graduated from Susquehannock High School in June.

Teresa is the daughter of Kenneth Smith, Martinsburg, and Janice Smith, Altoona. She will be attending Computer Learning Network, Altoona, to study office systems technology.

Inventor Believes Consumer Food Concerns Can Be Met With Combination Of Mass Production And Natural Health Methods

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Many proposals have come to the forefront in recent weeks because of the overwhelming public concern about the environment, animal welfare, and food safety. John Albright, local entrepreneur/inventor, believes farmers need to be sensitive to consumer concerns.

One proposal is to use irradiation to kill illness-causing bacteria in poultry meat. The process involves passing food through a chamber containing rods of radioactive cobalt-60 or cesium-137 that destroy bacteria with gamma rays.

To overcome the problem of drug contamination in the milk supply, another new proposal suggests that cows be bred with lower white blood cell counts in their milk so that they have greater resistance to mastitis and therefore less need for treatment. According to Dr. Gary Rogers, Penn State assistant professor of dairy and animal science, Pennsylvania dairy farmers lost more than $150 million last year because of mastitis treatment and milk production

Dairy Issue Next Week

Lancaster Farming's annual dairy issue will feature special stories and also messages from our advertisers. Farm interviews come from all across area. And experts write about forage and dairy herd management.

As usual, the first of our dairy contest recipes will be published and our livestock, grain, and auction reports and regular columns will be in place.

Watch for next week's special tribute to the dairy farmers and agri-businesses who help provide the consumer with all those good dairy products.

Gene Miller, Washington Boro vegetable grower, sprays a mist of a secret formula on crops. The project is part of informal research to see the effects of the formula on plant growth and the development of insect resistance.

Correction

In last week's issue of Lancaster Farming, the parents of Keith Zimmerman should have been listed as David and Alma Zimmerman of Lititz. Zimmerman was a recipient of a $1,000 scholarship from the Farm and Home Foundation, which he will apply toward his major in pre-veterinary medicine at Eastern Mennonite College, Virginia. Currently, Zimmerman is a senior at Ephrata High School, where he is chapter president of the Cloister FFA. He also serves as secretary of the county FFA. In his four-year involvement in FFA, Zimmerman has earned Greenhand, Chapter, and Keystone degrees. Zimmerman is president of the Hammer Creek Mennonite Church Youth Group.

New York & Philadelphia Frozen Eggs

Friday, May 22, 1992

The market tone was unsettled and cautious. Trading was spotty and usually of a fill-in nature as most buyers adopted a wait and see position. Raw materials were irregularly available and held with varying degrees of confidence. Breakers worked necessary schedules making adjustments for the Memorial Day holiday. Floor stocks were generally adequate to fully adequate.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, May 27, 1992

Trucklot buying interest continued very light with most buyers working off fully adequate cooler inventories and awaiting further market developments. Supplies of thighs and drumsticks were balanced with demand and traded at steady prices. All other items in the parts complex were ample to burdensome, offered at lower prices and slow to clear the marketplace. Leg quarters were in the weakest position of all the items with some fresh yellow skin product trading as low as 24 cents.

Delmarva Broiler-Fryer Market

Wednesday, May 27, 1992

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was slow to instances fair. Supplies were fully adequate to ample. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 59 to 69 cents; however, trade sentiment was barely steady to weak. Live supplies were at least moderate. Weights were in a full range but mostly desirable to heavy. Slaughter schedules were heavy and some plants were planning operations Saturday. In the parts complex, drums were noted in best balance.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

THIS WEEK WITH

JUNE 1-7, 1992

"AND YE EARTH SHOOKE..."

Friday, June 1, 1638, 2 PM: the first recorded earthquake in America rocked the settlement at Plymouth, Massachusetts. No accurate descriptions of earlier earthquakes exist prior to Governor William Bradford's report of this event as recorded in his History of the Plymouth Plantation "However, it was very terrible for ye time, and as ye men were set talking in ye house, some women and others were without ye doors, and ye earth shooke with ye violence as they could not stand without catching hold of ye posts and pails yt stood next them, but ye violence lasted not long And about halfe an hower, or less, came an other noyse & shaking, but neither so loud nor strong as ye former, but quickly passed over, and so it ceased "

Earthquake before eleven, rain same day.

—Japanese Proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

EARTHWISE

Besides using specific plants to attract beneficial insects (as suggested last week), you can plant herbs to repel the pest species Tansy and mint discourage ants and are very nice near the picnic table Aphids dislike chives and garlic. Fleas hop away from fennel and tansy, try planting some around the doghouse Houseflies avoid basil, chamomile, mint, rue, and tansy A pot of mint just outside the back door really cuts down on the unwanted winged guests

COLONIAL ONION PIE

3 pounds onions
butter
3 eggs, beaten
1 pint cream
salt and pepper to taste
4 slices crisp-fried bacon, crumbled
½ cup grated cheese
1 double-crust pie pastry

Peel and slice onions and fry in butter until golden brown Beat together eggs and cream, season and add to onions Pour onion mixture into pastry-lined deep dish pie plate Sprinkle with bacon and cheese, and cover with top crust Bake at 350° F for 1 hour, or until crust is golden brown

Makes 6 servings.

OPINION

Basic Nutrition

The National Milk Producers Federation recently teamed up to meet a serious challenge to milk's image posed by news stories that most milk contains either too much or too little Vitamin D.

Publication of a study in the New England Journal of Medicine claimed that 71 percent of milk and all infant formula sampled, contained either too much or too little Vitamin D. The samples were purchased in stores from Maine to Virginia. The study was prompted by reports of a number of cases of Vitamin D intoxication that occurred when a single Massachusetts dairy fortified its milk with 500 times the amount of vitamin D claimed on its labels.

Both the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the study's authors were quick to point out that Vitamin D fortified milk posed no serious health threat to the public and that people need have no fear of drinking milk. FDA also pointed out that the eight cases of hypervitaminosis D reported in the Journal were the only cases ever reported since milk began being commonly fortified with Vitamin D in the 1930's.

The dairy industry and the FDA needs to speak out quickly to reassure the public that the nation's milk supply posed no health threat. We don't know why a dairy would overdose vitamin D in milk, but we do know that milk "does a body good." And we don't want to see anything keep consumers from receiving this basic nutrition for their health.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Improve Herbicide Effectiveness

The effectiveness of a weed control program may be improved by following five easy steps:

1. Match the control program, including the herbicide, to the weed problems in the field.

2. Plant and apply preemergence herbicides as soon after the last tillage operation as possible. Many herbicides are only effective on germinating seeds and will not control weeds after they have germinated.

3. Use a rotary hoe or spiketooth harrow to incorporate herbicides if rain is not received within 5 to 7 days.

4. Take advantage of cultivation to control escape weeds whenever possible.

5. Develop realistic goals for the weed control program. Crops will tolerate some weeds with little or no impact on yields. However, watch for escape weeds which could become problems in the future.

To Follow Food Safety Debate

This past week marked a new round of food safety issues. A General Accounting Office report on eggborne Salmonella was very critical of how governmental agencies was dealing with this problem.

The report stated 12 federal agencies and departments carry out responsibilities under 35 different laws related to food safety. The report called for better coordination and cooperation between agencies.

A model program is being developed for the egg industry to keep eggs contaminated with Salmonella off the market. The Food and Drug Administration will be taking a more active role in food safety issues. As farmers, you will be under constant pressure to produce food with no harmful bacterial contamination.

Also, this week the government gave the approval to market food produced from new developments in biotechnology. People are becoming more aware of certain aspects of their food. Agriculture will need to be able to respond quickly with facts and information on how food is produced and what is being done to insure product wholesomeness.

The media and consumer groups are doing independent studies on food safety. This makes it very important we are doing the best job possible.

Our consumers are requiring all food be produced by best management practices. This includes observing drug withdrawal times, using pesticides at proper rates, maintaining a clean environment, and keeping food refrigerated.

Lactobacillus Less Effective In Treating Mastitis

Researchers at Ohio State University compared the effectiveness of a lactobacillus preparation with that of an antibiotic on the cure rate of clinical mastitis.

The lactobacillus preparation cured 35.3 percent of the infected quarters compared to 57.7 percent for the antibiotic treatment. The biggest difference was in the cure rate of gram negative or coliform type bacteria.

The cure rate for lactobacillus was zero compared to 61.5 percent for the antibiotic. The antibiotic used in this trail was cephapirin.

Somatic cell count levels in the milk was used to determine the degree of infection in the udder. Fourteen days after treatment, the cell counts remained unchanged for the lactobacillus treated quarters, where cell counts were reduced in quarters treated with cerphapirin.

Farm Forum

On June 15, 1992 all eyes in the Dairy Industry will be focused on Alexandria, Va. This is the day the United States Department of Agriculture (U.S.D.A.) will commence a national dairy hearing to receive testimony from interested parties regarding the possibility of an alternative basic pricing formula to the Minnesota-Wisconsin (M-W) price series.

The public hearing is dictated by the 1990 Farm Bill.

Currently the U.S.D.A. uses the M-W price as the minimum price for milk under all federal milk orders. The M-W price is an average of prices paid for manufacturing grade milk by plants in Minnesota and Wisconsin that manufactures butter, nonfat dry milk and cheese. In my opinion, the M-W price is responsible for confusing consumers, giving manufacturing handlers nightmares and sends countless numbers of dairy farmers into extinction.

It's time for a change! In many areas, dairy farmers are clamoring for a change. For over 25 years we have been urging a milk formula that would relate to the actual cost of producing milk in the United States. The U.S.D.A. publishes the average cost of producing milk within several different regions across the U.S. They also publish a national average cost of production.

In addition several lending institutions such as the Springfield Bank for Cooperative, have developed reliable cost of production figures. Actually, many of these formulas are coming significantly closer together on the average cost of producing milk.

Some people will tell you that dairy prices are moving up, so consequently the dairy crisis has been rested. Don't believe it! Some people will say -- dairy farmers just can't have a price that covers the production cost. Ask them, why not??

Some people will say -- dairy farmers must utilize to a fuller degree the benefits of technology. Technology is being utilized, that's why the average cost of production is around $14.50 per cwt. and not $20.

The people who say all the above should take a survey of feed de rs, machine dealers, supply dealers and others that deal with dairy farmers. Ask these people

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR
May 31, 1992

Background Scripture: 2 Peter 3:3-14.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 55:1-13.

If you read carefully the two letters attributed to Peter, you may note that there is a decided shift between the two when it comes to the apocalyptic end of the world. In I Peter 4:7, he says: "The end of all things is at hand..." and much of the letter is predicated on the writer's conviction that Christ's return is immanent.

When we get to 2 Peter, however, we see that the writer now regards the second coming as delayed, at least from a human perspective. In fact, in 2 Peter the writer is acknowledging that the kingdom has been delayed and he is aware of the gospel's critics: "...you must understand this, that scoffers will come in the last days with scoffing... and saying, 'Where is the promise of His coming?'" (3:3,4). He goes on to challenge them to take the long-term viewpoint: "...do not ignore this one fact, beloved, that with the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day..." (3:8).

Paul, Too

The Apostle Paul had pretty much the same experience. In his early letters, he regarded Christ's return as immanent, but, by the time he wrote his last letters, it is evident that he was no longer looking for it in the present moment. The early disciples of Jesus learned that, as Christ had suggested to them when he walked with them, if there is a timetable for the great fulfillment of God's promise, it is known only to him. The most Important thing for Christian discipleship is not knowing the divine timetable, but living in such a way that, whenever it comes, we will have lived and died in harmony with God's plan and purpose.

Lots of people pick scripture texts here and there to substantiate their interpretation ot the time and circumstances of Christ's return in glory. But, if you examine everything the Bible says about the fulfillment of God's plan, you cannot escape the conclusion that, apart from the conviction that the promise will be fulfilled, the time, place and circumstances cannot be deduced from the scriptures. To be exact, you must focus on some scriptures and ignore others. Obviously, God did not intend to give us the blueprints.

A "New Us"

The writer of 2 Peter says, "But according to his promise we wait for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells" (3:13). Does that mean that the present earth and universe will be replaced with something else? Or is this a spiritual rather than factual representation of the fulfillment of his promises? Will there be a great Armageddon, as Revelation suggests or is that too just figurative rather than literal language? My own answer is: I don't know. I don't know what form the "new heavens" and the "new earth " will take.

But what I do know is the very same thing that 2 Peter is trying to get across: if there is to some day be "new heavens" and a "new earth," what is required here and now is a "new us. " We do not know and cannot know the details of God's plan, but what we do know is that, while we wait, we are to live in a "new" way. "Therefore, beloved, since you wait for these, be zealous to be found by Him without spot or blemish, and at peace" (3:14).

That's really all we have to know about God's plan. It is more than enough!

Ohio Senate Reviews Fair Dairy Pricing

MEDINA, Ohio — On May 14, Ohio House Rep. Sean Logan introduced the Ohio Fair Dairy Pricing Bill to the Senate Ag Committee.

Rep. Logan also provided sponsor testimony by explaining how the bill could help Ohio dairy farmers and why the bill was needed.

Rep. Logan explained that local dairy farmers in his district were concerned that the federal program was not working and last spring experienced a drastic price cut. He said he was urged by his constituents to introduce some type of state legislation similar to what other states have adopted in order to provide a survival price floor for dairy farmers.

The bill allows Ohio dairy farmers to petition the Director of Agriculture and request a hearing.

At the hearing, information would be received regarding the cost of producing milk in Ohio, cost of milk to dealers located in adjoining states and the level of milk prices paid to producers in adjoining states.

Based on this and other testimony given at the hearing, a committee representing dairy farmers, dealers, retailers and consumers can recommend to the Director of Agriculture minimum milk prices.

Once the director, through the panel, decides on minimum milk prices, then Ohio dairy farmers individually must vote approval by a simple majority of those voting in order for these minimum milk prices to take effect, Rep. Logan said.

According to Rep. Logan, one of the most important criteria for establishing minimum prices was the cost of milk to dealers located in adjoining states. This was put in the bill to keep the Ohio dairy industry competitive and, at the same time, to help dairy farmers get fair prices.

Chuck Ellyson, independent dairy farmer from Columbiana County, said that the state of Minnesota just recently passed a bill which allows a minimum price to be set in their state.

"All we are asking in Ohio is that we have the same ability to establish milk prices. Pennsylvania has had similar type of legislation in effect of since 1930's and we as dairy farmers feel we should be on the same level playing field with dairy farmers from surrounding states."

Jim Comp, Ashtabula County independent dairy farmer, concurred. "My farm is only seven miles from the Pennsylvania border, but in Pennsylvania dairy farmers are assured of receiving their share of a $1.45 Class I over-order premium.

(Editor's note. Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board sets over-order premiums. The current premium is $1.30, but that is with a 25 cent addition made to help compensate for increased production costs due to the 1991 drought.)

"In Ohio we have no assurance that we are going to receive any over-order premium at all. Luckily, in the past couple of years, we have due to a tight milk supply, but just recently these over-order premiums are starting to decrease."

Wayne Patterson, independent dairy farmer from Tuscarawas County, said, "Many people, after hearing the bill, think that it will automatically increase milk prices, which is not necessarily true. From a survey done by the general accounting office, it showed that the margin for the Cincinnati and Cleveland markets for a gallon of milk, for what farmers received as compared to what consumers paid, increased from 59 cents per gallon in 1985 to $1.06 per gallon in 1990.

"All dairy farmers want to do is maintain a fair share of the price. Currently, milk prices are gaining strength and will begin to exceed $13 per hundredweight.

"The Ohio Fair Dairy Pricing Bill will give Ohio dairy farmers the tool needed so that, if these prices come down on a federal level, Ohio dairy farmers can still maintain part of it. That doesn't mean that prices will increase, it only means that we would like to hold onto the price that we already have."

It is expected that testimony for the Senate Ag Committee will begin sometime during the month of June.

The agricultural committee meets every Thursday at 9 a.m. and it was stated at the May 14 committee meeting that ample opportunity would be given for proponents and opponents to testify so that all sides are heard regarding the bill.

Program To Improve Pennsylvania Beef Herds Under Way

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania beef producers, county extension personnel, and Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science have introduced a program designed to improve the genetic value of Pennsylvania's beef herds.

Two herds were designated as demonstration cooperator herds for the project, one in Washington County and one in Westmoreland. These herds will be used to gather production data related to the use of genetically superior herd sires.

Paul and Bette Slayton from Slayton at Falklands Farm in Bedford have donated the use of a Polled Hereford bull for breeding with cows from one of the project herds, and Penn State has offered an Angus bull for the other. Both bulls have EPDs that rank them well above average for their respective breeds for potential growth of their calves and milk production of their daughters.

The herds will be divided into two equal groups for the 1992 breeding season. One-half of each herd will be bred to a bull of known genetic potential, while the other half will be mated to bulls of unknown genetic value.

Both herds will follow excellent health management and nutritional programs to prevent differences resulting from management deficiencies.

Data on reproductive efficiency, weaning weight, and weaning value will be used to compare the two sires and determine the relative value of each bull to the enterprise.

Nationwide Hay Buyers, Sellers Together In List

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MADISON, Wis. — An attempt to develop a hay marketing network across the dairy states in the midwest and eastern U.S. is catching on with farms in Pennsylvania.

Called the Great Lakes Haylist, the marketing network is a result of the lack of hay in Pennsylvania because of last year's drought.

"In general, Pennsylvania and surrounding states had a drought and produced inadequate amounts of hay," said Marvin H. Hall, forage specialist at Penn State.

"Having a haylist for only Pennsylvania didn't help much, because no one had hay," said Hall. "However, some of the midwest states had surpluses of hay last year. If Pennsylvania had been involved in a larger hay marketing network, then animal producers who needed hay could have located hay sources more easily."

Hall said the hay network would also help Pennsylvania hay producers when they have good weather and other states when they endure a drought.

Specifically, the hay database will provide information on how to sell and buy various types of hay. To list, each lot of hay must be identified (alfafa, alfalfa/grass, red clover, grass, straw, or others), the quantity (in price per ton or bales), and the form (small square, medium square, large square bale, large round bale, or other). Storage includes under roof, outside covered, or outside uncovered.

Other detail needed for selling hay includes harvest year, cutting, and a forage test (including percentage of dry matter, protein, NDF, and ADF). Also, questions as to whether preservatives/dessicants were used and type of transportation and references are included.

The seller should forage test the hay, because qualilty hay sells more rapidly and at a premium, according to the Haylist. Forages can be tested using a core sampler with at least ⅝ inch internal diameter and at least 12 inches length to collect 15-20 cores from bales randomly selected from the lot. The forage can be tested at any National Forage Testing Association certified laboratory.

To be put on the list as a seller, one form per lot of hay must be mailed out with a check for $20 (for a 30-day listing) to the Great Lakes Haylist. Make checks for listings payable to Great Lakes Haylist. A postcard will be mailed back two weeks after listing to allow sellers to relist at no charge for 30 days or to indicate that the hay has sold.

The Haylist advises sellers to be patient, because most hay is taking at least 60 days to sell.

Hay buyers must send the locations (by phone area code number) where they wish to locate hay. They must list type of hay and the form they want to purchase. They should also list a forage quality range, with relative feed value requirements and other factors.

To sign up for the list, contact the Great Lakes Haylist, Room 353, Moore Hall, 1575 Linden Dr., Madison, WI 53706, (800) 462-7408 or (608) 262-1533.

Cumberland Farms Problems Pose Small Problem To Mid-Atlantic Dairymen

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — The recent bankruptcy of Cumberland Farms Inc., a New England-based convenience store operator, will have a minimal impact on dairy farmers in the Mid-Atlantic area, according to industry officials.

The firm, which owns a network of almost 1,000 convenience stores in 12 states, filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code in early May. The firm continues to operate while it seeks to restructure its finances.

Cumberland Farms operates several fluid milk processing plants, including one in Florence, N.J., south of Trenton, that is pooled in the Mid-Atlantic milk marketing order.

Various suppliers to this plant, including at least one cooperative and a number of independent dairymen, did not receive their final payments for April milk, according to industry sources.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, the region's largest, reportedly is the major supplier to the New Jersey plant. Bob Dever, Atlantic's assistant general manager, said the cooperative sells Cumberland Farms about 6 percent of its total supply.

Although serious, the bankruptcy should not have a major effect on Atlantic's finances for several reasons. The total dollars outstanding — reportedly in the neighborhood of $1.5 million — is equivalent to only slightly more than two weeks worth of milk.

Shipments since April have been on a C.O.D. basis, Dever said. Moreover, the firm reportedly remains in decent financial condition, reassuring creditors that its restructuring will be successful.

Atlantic survived a disruption of much greater magnitude when the old Abbotts Dairies firm went bankrupt in the early 1980s, Dever noted. The cooperative got some of the money it was owed from Abbotts relatively quickly through the milk security provisions then in effect in Pennsylvania.

It eventually received much of the balance through the settlement of bankruptcy proceedings, but the process took years, Dever noted.

Now, as then, the cooperative's financial reserves have allowed it to pay its members in full despite the shortfall from Cumberland Farms, Dever said. In potentially worse shape, however, are the various independents who sold milk directly to the firm.

Out of the 40-50 New Jersey dairymen supplying the plant, for instance, are eight independents, according to Vin Samuel, an official with the Division of Dairy Industry within the New Jersey Department of Agriculture.

In contrast to Pennsylvania, New Jersey has fairly minimal security requirements as part of its licensing of milk dealers. The firms are required to have only $100,000 in bond coverage in the event of bankruptcy, Samuel said. Although a number of legal issues remain to be resolved, the Chapter 11 filing is likely to lead to a dispersal of funds from this bond, Samuel added.

Samuel said there is not yet an official tally of the amount Cumberland owes New Jersey farmers, but the total is somewhat less than $3 million. He acknowledged that the security fund would provide just a few cents for each dollar dairymen are owed.

A number of New Jersey's dairy industry leaders are saying the amount is woefully inadequate to meet farmers' needs in an era in which monthly milk checks often reach five figures.

"We have to provide more security," said August Knispel, a Hunterdon County farmer who currently serves as president of the Garden State Milk Council.

Charlie Miller, a former dairy farmer who now lobbies for the New Jersey Farm Bureau, said farmers have asked the state to beef up its security provisions since the last major bankruptcy in the early 1980s. Miller said he's hopeful something can be done now while the Cumberland Farms situation is still fresh in people's minds.

The typically long delay and the fact that farmers often must wait in line behind secured creditors for money they are owed by bankrupt milk dealers are among the reasons that many states have adopted extensive farm security provisions.

In Pennsylvania, for instance, the state's Milk Marketing Board oversees the Milk Producers' Security Act. The act requires licensed dealers to take out a bond to cover at least 30 percent of the amount the firm would spend for 40 days worth of milk from its Pennsylvania suppliers, according to a board spokesman.

In addition, dealers must contribute two cents a hundredweight to separate security funds for each handler. Dealers that have security bonds that cover at least 75 percent of their 40-day exposures are exempt from this provision.

In New Jersey, the ag department's Samuel said his division had been studying security provisions in other states even before the Cumberland Farms development.

FOIL® BIOINSECTICIDE

Proven Performer / Consistent Control

Today, There is an Alternative — FOIL®
Environmentally Sound Control of Insects on Potatoes

Ecogen Inc. developed Foil® Bioinsecticide from a novel genetic combination of three strains of Bt (Bacillus thuringiensis). As insects eat Foil, they immediately stop feeding and crop destruction is halted.

Foil is the only biological insecticide that is effective against both Colorado potato beetles and European corn borers. Foil makes a powerful alternative to chemical pesticides and other Bt products.

With environmental issues a concern for all growers, Foil is indeed today's alternative.

Derived from Bt, a natural pesticide, Foil has no pre-harvest interval and does not contaminate ground water.

Lancaster Chamber Sets Ag Events

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The agriculture committee of The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry has announced two upcoming events designed to better acquaint the local community with the business of agriculture in Lancaster County.

"Wake Up to the 'Ag Issues'" will be presented on June 5 at the Southern Market Center, 100 South Queen Street. This breakfast meeting, which begins promptly at 7:30 and ends at 9 a.m., will feature local agri-business people who will discuss "What Every Lancaster County Business Person Should Know about Agriculture but Didn't Know Who or How to Ask."

Speakers are Bruce R. Limpert, director of financial services for Wenger Feeds, who will give an overview of Lancaster farming, the nature of our competitive advantage, and the economics behind the issues, and Michael W. Brubaker, president and owner of Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, who will highlight the key issues facing agriculture in the '90s.

Cost of the program is $10 for Chamber members, $8 for Chamber Farm Associates.

On June 12, the annual Agri-Business Tour will provide an opportunity for farmers and nonfarmers alike to tour some of Lancaster's agrelated industries. According to Jay Howes, manager of agricultural services for the Chamber, "The three distinctly different facilities and types of business activities represent the diversity of agriculture and serve to emphasize the fact that the total agricultural industry is far more than just plowing, planting, and reaping."

The day's schedule begins at 9 a.m. with departure by bus from Lancaster Shopping Center, Lititz Pike. The first stop is John F. Cope Company, Inc., in Rheems. A well known local food processor, Cope is expanding into new vegetable processing markets. Next stop is the Lancaster County Solid Waste Management Authority's (LCSWMA) Resource Recovery Facility in Bainbridge for a discussion of LCSWMA's agrelated programs. Following a catered lunch, the bus leaves for the final stop at Smoketown Veterinary Hospital on Old Philadelphia Pike to tour a modern large- and small-animal veterinary clinic. Return to the Lancaster Shopping Center is scheduled for 2:45 p.m.

Cost for the tour is $15 for Chamber members and Chamber Farm Associates, $20 for nonmembers. Cost includes transportation and lunch, and registration is limited to 45 persons.

For additional information or to make a reservation for either of these events, call Liz Lennon or Jay Howes at 397-3531.

A Little Americana Goes A Longhorn Way At Circle L

HUMMELSTOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Wanted: An experienced farm guide.

Wanted: A place where Pennsylvania tourists can go to learn about agriculture.

Circle L Ranch may be looking for a farmer guide, but can certainly supply an excellent place to learn about one type of agriculture — raising beef animals. Last year, Ed Swartz, DVM and manager of Circle L, purchased several head of quality Texas Longhorn cattle. Along with management of the Indian Echo Caverns, Ed, wife Judy, and daughters Kim and Jennifer operate the 80-acre cow/calf ranch.

Last weekend, Ed began the season with tours of Circle L. Each weekday afternoon, tourists to the Indian Echo Caverns have a chance to take a ride on a converted hay wagon and learn about Circle L and the history of the Texas Longhorn.

Circle L Ranch

Circle L Ranch obtained its name from the Landis family, who built the farm in the early 1800s. At that time, the farm was known as "Landsdown." The Swartz family adoped the name for the farm operation and named it Circle L to denote their brand. Because of the association with the southwestern ranch cattle, Circle L Ranch was born.

Swartz said the circle is a "very religious symbol to the native American."

The Swartzes own 80 acres, 35 of which are in pasture and 30 in hay making. They also rent an additional 10 acres of pasture. The Indian Echo Caverns, a part of the farm operation, became a tourist attraction in 1929. But since the Great Depression, ownership changed hands a few times. It was purchased by the Swartz family in 1942.

Circle L Ranch manages about 16 cows and about 45 head of calves. They use one Texas Longhorn bull in the operation and some AI.

Colors and horn

Because of the tourist orientation of the farm, Swartz said they "wanted to pick colors and horn variation" from the pedigree lines. The herdstock was obtained from Gilleys Mountain Ranch in Collinsville, Va. They also selected for other traits, including good confirmation, low birthweight, and overall performance characteristics.

There are about seven different classes of the Texas Longhorn breed. Only two were chosen for the Circle L — the Butler and WR breeds.

"I think the reason we chose Texas Longhorns was because of their uniqueness to the area," he said. "They're not here."

Swartz said that he has enjoyed the breed since his father began holding rodeos at Indian Echo Caverns. He said his father hoisted a Texas Longhorn steer on the back of a truck and they used to "drive through towns back in the '40s, and we had this Texas Longhorn, and I'll never forget it.

Cowboy in me

"There's probably a little bit of cowboy in me," he said.

Swartz said he also can't forget the pleasant times he spent with his family touring through the Southwest, including the Texas State Fair.

"So we stopped by to see the cattle. We never owned cattle before, until last year. We just took an immediate liking to them.

"And we thought, what a nice thing it would be if we could convert this crop farm, which it had been since 1942," he said, "into maybe more of a cow/calf operation and have some horses here, too. And that's how it got started."

Each weekday afternoon, tourists to the Indian Echo Caverns have a chance to take a ride on a converted hay wagon and learn about Circle L and the history of the Texas Longhorn. Here, Ed Swartz takes out the wagon for a stroll.

Because of the tourist orientation of the farm, Swartz said they "wanted to pick colors and horn variation" from the pedigree lines. The Texas Longhorn herdstock was obtained from Gilleys Mountain Ranch in Collinsville, Va. They also selected for other traits, including good confirmation, low birthweight, and overall performance characteristics.

A Little Americana

Enlarged gift house

Recently, Swartz has enlarged the gift house, begun a Morgan horse operation and a carriage ride, and built the "Gem Mill Junction," where visitors can pan for gems at a waterwheel built from material from an old corn barn.

Swartz said he became involved in conducting tours at Circle L after speaking to a local extension agent. The agent "planted a bug" in Swartz's ear, he said. "He said that Penn State has no way to show people anything about agriculture," particularly in this area of the state.

Also, Swartz recently read an article in Lancaster Farming ("Rep. Stairs Proposes Mandatory Ag Education," Vern Achenbach, in the May 16 issue). Swartz said he believes that people are becoming agriculturally ignorant.

"Their ag IQ is about zero," he said. "So I thought that these people from the city, I mean, sure, farm people would find my tour probably somewhat boring . . . but these people from the city, their ag IQ is zero. They know nothing."

45-minute tour

The 45-minute tour describes the farm acreage, the history of the land, and the lineage and characteristics of Texas Longhorn cattle.

"Most of these people coming out here, you know, they think, where do you get beef? Where do you get milk? They have no conception of where anything comes from."

Swartz said the tour will be geared to the basics of farming to provide some education into how a cow/calf farm is managed. But Swartz said the ideal tour guide would be a farmer.

"It sure would be nice if we had some farmers to give these tours, though, rather than train a guide to do it," he said. "A guide will just have rote memeory, and he'll just say what he's supposed to say." However, according to the veterinarian (who works at the Londonderry Animal Hospital in Middletown), a farmer "can interject little things" about personal experience in farming.

Simple things

"I don't tell them anything fancy," he said. "Just simple things, like, animals graze in a pasture. We make hay in this field."

Swartz said the Texas Longhorns have "a lot of attributes that are very durable and very desirable, that carry into other breeds."

Historically, the cattle were introduced into the Southwest by the Spanish. By the 1840s, there were millions of them running at large in the Southwest, according to Swartz. But because they offer a leaner carcass, and weren't as beefy looking as some of the other breeds such as the Herefords, for a time the Longhorns fell into disfavor.

"I think the reasons Texas Longhorns are so popular is because they're highly fertile animals," he said. "They are very easy calvers."

Used to crossbreed

Swartz said because they provide a smaller calf, Texas Longhorns are used extensively to crossbreed with cattle such as Herefords or Angus.

Swartz said the Texas Longhorns are known for their foragea-bility, also. "On a poor quality forage, they will do very well.

"From what I gather, they are the lowest fat and cholesterol beef that's known," he said. "Supposedly, their fat and cholesterol is even lower than a skinless piece of chicken."

Swartz said he enjoys giving the tours (which cost $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children) because "I like to teach. It's the teaching instinct in me."

Appreciation of farming

He said he hopes visitors will "come away with some understanding and appreciation of farming in America as we know it."

Swartz said he speaks about the area and its many contributions to agriculture.

"I just want them to go away with a little bit, maybe, of Americana. It's like panning for gemstones out there. It's like the caverns. I want them to feel that they've learned something when they get off that wagon."

Dairy Goat Showcase June 13

LEHIGHTON (Carbon Co.) — The Delaware Valley Milk Goat Association (DVMGA), the oldest organized goat club in Pennsylvania, will be holding their annual Dairy Goat Showcase on Saturday, June 13 at the Carbon County Fairgrounds.

There will be shows for bucks, senior does, and junior does along with the Alpine Specialty Show for District II of the American Dairy Goat Association.

The DVMGA show has been run annually for more than 40 years. More than 200 of the best dairy goats from five states converge on the fairgrounds to compete for the "Best in Show" honors.

There will be a raffle table with items donated by crafters and business people as well as crafts and goat-related items for sale. A food wagon from Sublet's Catering of Lancaster will be on the premises from morning until close of show.

For more information, contact Joan Stump, show chairman (215) 723-5415 or Lorraine Yankovich (215) 965-9744.

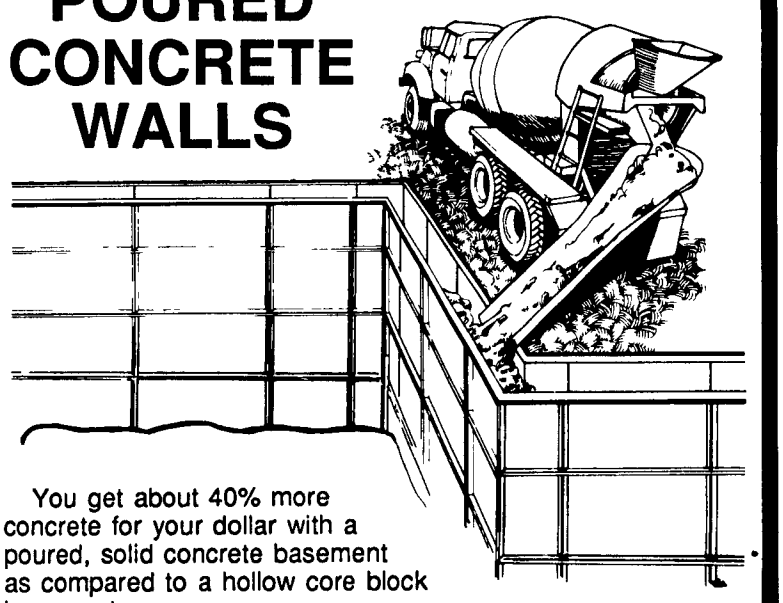
POURED SOLID CONCRETE STORAGE SYSTEM SPECIALISTS

START WITH THE BEST!

POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement.

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs. more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic ... there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced.

Solid Concrete For:

Fire Takes House, But Lynch Family Still Has Important Things

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

FRIEDENS (Somerset Co.) — Exactly two months after fire destroyed their house on an icy day in March, Gary and Nancy Lynch look around them and see their four, happy children — Mike, Andy, Laureen and Jessie — and their livelihood — a 90 head Holstein dairy — and say that life is good. In fact, it is wonderful!

We still have all the important things, they say.

With the six of them living in a large mobile home, things are cramped, no doubt about it, but the Lynch's are making the best of an unexpected situation created by the loss of their 160-year-old farm house.

The day it happened all the kids but Lauren, who was ill, were in school. Gary was out running errands in the area. Around 9 a.m., Nancy had checked the wood-burning stove in the basement and everything seemed in order. Soon she noticed a strange popping sound coming from downstairs. Smoke assailed her as soon as she opened the basement door.

The fire then spread quickly in the old dwelling. Nancy dialed 911. The call went through but before she could give all the information, the telephone lines melted.

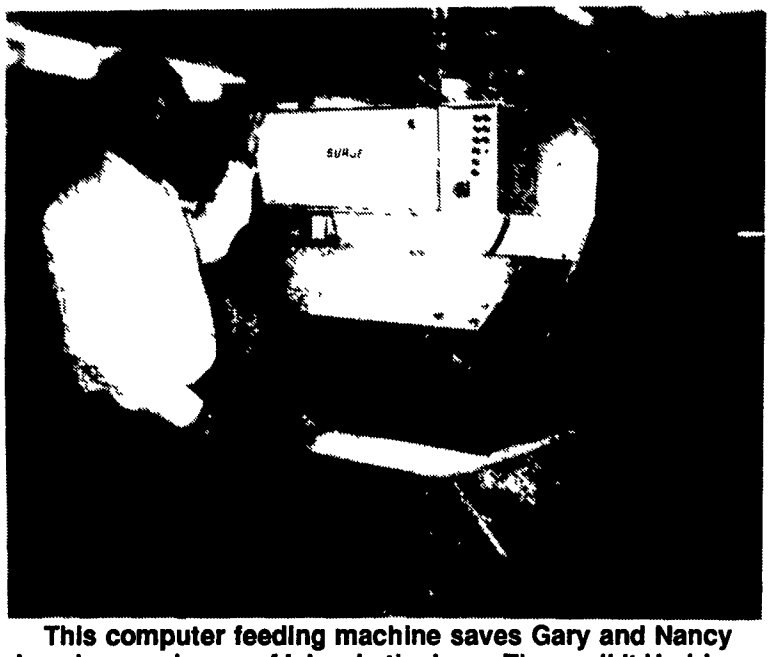
She dashed outside to the car but had no keys. To return inside for them would have spelled disaster for her. Flames were licking out the basement windows. Fortunately, another vehicle nearby had keys in it. Lauren was outside in her bare feet with an ice storm in progress.

Until the fire department arrived, neighbors tried futilely to withstand the blaze with fire extinguishers.

Meanwhile, Gary noticed that firetrucks were leaving the firehouse. He recalls thinking how awful it was that there was a fire to battle on such an ugly day. As he drove toward home, he knew from the location of the smoke he saw that the trouble must be at his own farm.

"I thought, 'I hope it's the barn,'" he said. "I knew Nancy and Lauren were home." Although he was driving a four-wheel drive, Gary says he couldn't make any headway to get home faster. "That's probably the sickest I've ever been in my life," he said.

Five fire companies tried unsuccessfully to save the structure. The Lynch's lost all their possessions except what they were wearing at the time. Even the lines to the water pump went, along with the pump itself. There was no water for the cows.



This computer feeding machine saves Gary and Nancy Lynch many hours of labor in the barn. They call it Herbie.

Here, Herbie has doled out the proper mixture of feed to one of the registered Holstein cows in the herd of Gary and Nancy Lynch.

Standing in front of their temporary housing, a mobile home, is the Lynch family: Gary, Lauren, Jessie, Andy, Mike, and Nancy.

Outrageous words are sometimes spoken at just such a moment and Nancy says the ludicrous statement she made while the house was burning was, "Well, the mending's done." She said, "They (bystanders) looked at me like I was nuts." It seems that the Lynch mending chores never topped her list of favorite things to do.

"Before the day was over," said Gary, "we were swamped with food, clothing and cash. The response was overwhelming."

"It's like you look at it and it's not yours and then it is," said Nancy. "You phase in and out."

By the following morning, a radio announcement had to be broadcast to stop item donations. In fact, after they sorted through the mountains of donations and kept all they could use, Gary said six pickup-truck loads of good clothing had to be hauled away. Among the recipients of the excess donations were the Salvation Army and World's Attic in Somerset, which is a self-help and thrift store.

Even their Church of the Brethren pastor who has worked with disasters testified he had never seen such a response.

"We were lucky we were on Farm Credit's bookkeeping system," said Gary.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Schuylkill Starts Diamond Farm Program

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN (Schuylkill Co.) — The Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension Association recently announced that they are sponsoring a recognition program of those farms held continuously in the same family for 75 years.

The program is being called the Schuylkill County Diamond Farm program and is designed to publicize the importance of agriculture in Schuylkill County.

The program is also being held to help celebrate 75 years of cooperative extension educational programming in the county, in addition to recognizing those farms and farm families which, according to a news release, "Have done so much to contribute to the economic and rural heritage in Schuylkill County.

To become a designated Diamond Farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for at least the past 75 consecutive years and a family member must still live on the land. The farm must also contain at least 10 acres of the original holdings, or gross more than $1,000 a year from the sale of farm products.

Farms, which are designated as Diamond Farms are to be honored at the Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension annual banquet, scheduled for Oct. 17, at Pine View Acres.

Those interested in participating in the program should complete an application form, available at the extension office. All forms must be received by the extension office by July 1.

Dealers for US Agri-Systems watch a demonstration of the Houle tank spreader with disk-in attachments at a field day for dealers and extension agents near Calvert, Maryland, on Thursday. Various application methods including side-dressing of corn was featured. Yesterday, 200 farmers were expected to attend a demonstration day of the same equipment.

about the dairy crisis.

Many fine organizations are supporting a new basic formula price based on the actual milk production cost. But, as we reported several months ago, if a hearing was to be held, you could be sure there would be a substantial number of people that would request and support a product value formula or a larger number of manufacturing plants to be surveyed to determine the value of manufactured milk, and this survey would become the basic formula price. Actually, many of these schemes could very well lower the basic formula price below the M-W price.

It's up to the dairy farmer. If there is going to be a chance of utilizing production costs in a new formula, then dairy farmers will have to exert an enormous amount of pressure (immediately) on their farm organizations to support this type of a formula.

Pro Ag is embarking on a vigorous campaign to develop support for the production cost formula from dairy farmers, consumers, agriculture business people and government leaders. We urge all dairy farmers to do the same. Ask your agriculture business people to construct letters exhibiting how the dairy crisis affects them. Have consumers sign petitions supporting dairy farmers. Have dairy farmers sign petitions and write letters in support of a production cost formula. All letters and petitions should be addressed to the United States Secretary of Agriculture, Edward Madigan. If you send your letters and petitions to Pro Ag, we will see they get introduced into the record. Mail them to: Pro Ag, R.D. #2 Box 165, Meshoppen, Pa. 18630.

Form letters and petitions should be sent to organizations like New York State Grange and New York Farmers Union.

June 15th will soon be here! Believe me -- dairy farmers do not have a "ghost of a chance" of obtaining a production cost formula, unless a large number of dairy farmers immediately embark upon a vigorous campaign as we have described.

This time -- It is now or never!

short-falls. Imagine what the total loss for the nation's dairy farmers must have been.

On April 2, the House Agriculture Committee approved a bill to impose stiff federal penalties for criminal acts involving animal theft or damage to facilities housing animals. Committee Chairman E. (Kika) de la Garza, D-Texas, said the bill is needed to combat illegal entry, property destruction, theft of animals and other acts of terrorism against farmers and ranchers in pursuit of a political or social agenda.

And this week Vice President Dan Quayle, along with officials of the Department of Health and Human Services and the Food and Drug Administration, announced details of a policy that would give "regulatory relief" for genetically engineered foods. According to Quayle, the new government policy for streamlining regulation of food produced through genetic engineering should result in an abundance of new, varied and more wholesome products.

And while Albright believes you need to be sensitive to these concerns, his ideas on what to do about them are radically different. So, many people remain skeptical of his ideas.

For example, several years ago, when Albright first started to say eggs had a lot less cholesterol than stated by USDA's 40-year-old dietary recommendations, he faced skepticism. But his work prompted USDA to retest eggs, only to find that modern breeding and feeding of chickens had produced a much healthier egg. Subsequently, USDA increased the recommended number of eggs consumers could eat in their diets, and the entire industry benefited from this change.

Even now, Albright believes that an egg is the most nearly perfect food on the face of the earth. "Eggs are predigested by the process of the chicken," Albright said. "The nutrition in eggs can be passed through the human digestive system into the tissue instantly. In the egg, we have instant nutrition. Few things on this planet contain everything in nutritional balance to support and grow life. But the egg does.

"Egg people have had a bad rap over the consumer's fixation on cholesterol," Albright said. "We cannot ignore cholesterol, but I think fat and lack of exercise are as much a player in over-all bad health."

Albright believes all foods should be drug-free and chemical free, grown in the proper way from animals that are treated well and raised in the proper environment. Few people disagree. But the methods Albright proposes has raised some eyebrows.

"If you look at food as fuel, you can get more power out of properly grown food than you can from a fast-growing processed type food," Albright said. "This will become more evident if we as a nation experience some problem in the food supply. Even if this doesn't happen, people always look to cut their food bill. I think you can cut your food bill if you eat better quality food. Low quality food makes you want to eat more because your body is not satisfied from the small nutritional benefit you get from low-quality food.

"The hope of the fresh shell egg industry is to develop a designer, healthier food by creating an environment for the birds that allows you to produce a higher quality egg — an egg with low cholesterol, low bacteria counts, and, yes, even an egg with no Salmonella.

"If we are successful, it will be what we use in nature, with the balance of technology, to create safer, more nutritional natural eggs and meat. That's the secret of the food industry or any industry that wants to provide nutrition for people.

"So many things that are done work against nature. Anyone in the health field should know you cannot eliminate bacteria in the production atmosphere. Bacteria are there for a purpose, and to try to sterilize the hen house works against nature. The only thing you can do is to try to increase the resistance to Salmonella in the bird and in the egg. This fact has not been considered by most of the research that has been done. But it's the way nature works, and therefore, if you want what you do to work, you will need to follow nature's laws."

More and more people have begun to look how Albright's system works. But many observers continue to remain skeptical. For example, representatives from a large egg production firm in Georgia visited Albright's poultry operation last week. "We still remain skeptical because what is being done here seems too good to be true," the representatives said. "We continue to try to punch holes in what Albright is doing, but he keeps answering our questions."

What these visitors from Georgia saw was a brightly lighted house with a dust-free atmosphere where birds with red combs and yellow pigmented legs sing at the tops of their lungs as though they are really enjoying their work.

Dan Helwig, vo-tech instructor, right, and Randy Lowe, senior student, show the extra growth on treated carnation plants. These plants were also virtually mite free while the neighboring bed was infested with the parasites.

Long-wave ultraviolet lights create an atmosphere more like out-doors to help induce good feed conversion and bird health. Short-wave ultraviolet lights are used to kill bacteria in the drinking water.

An ionization system floods the atmosphere so that the dust particles become more heavy than air and fall to the floor. When you sweep the floor, the dust particles raise about a foot in front of the broom and fall down again.

The electromagnetic energy that is emitted from power boxes and motors is shielded so that these waves that cause harm to the birds are neutralized.

And then there is the secret formula.

"The issue of the secret formula is so proprietary, I hate to mention that we even have it," Albright

(Turn to Page A28)

Fanelli Is AJCC Master Breeder

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Phil Fanelli, Hilmar, Calif., has been named 1992 Master Breeder by The American Jersey Cattle Club. He will be honored during the organization's 124th annual meeting in Lansing, Mich.

The Master Breeder Award is bestowed annually on a living member of The American Jersey Cattle Club, who, in the opinion of the board of directors, has bred outstanding animals for many years and made a notable contribution to the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

"Phil Fanelli has done more for the Jersey breed than many people realize. He is a truly gifted person who can remember almost every good cow he has ever seen. He is able to remember the strengths, weaknesses, and individual pedigrees of every 'great' cow."

Perhaps this quote by a fellow Jersey breeder sums up the key qualities that make Phil Fanelli the 1992 Master Breeder.

Phil began dairying on his own in 1961. He had received dairy experience while working with Frank Hopkins, a well-known Holstein breeder, and later H.I. "Tom" Sawyer, where he learned about the Jersey breed.

In the beginning, Phil's goal was to breed a herd of cows that would win blue ribbons at the shows and produce enough milk to pay the bills. He learned that while he loved to breed cows that would do well in the show ring, the ones that won the ribbons didn't always pay the bills.

After purchasing a dairy in Hilmar, Calif., in 1971, Phil changed his breeding philosophy. The new breeding goal included breeding cows that would milk and compete in a commercial herd.

His ideal cow would have a wide rear end with wide thurls, and her teats would be longer than the breed average so the milking machine would stay on. He also bred for high rear udders and good feet and legs.

His ideal cow had a lot of dairy character.

Since setting his personal breeding goals, Phil has had a tremendous impact on the Jersey breed in the Western states, and is known to Jersey breeders across the United States.

His own herd of 350 milking cows demonstrates the results of years of good breeding and is under the capable management of his son Victor.

During the 1970s, three bulls from Phil's Jersey Farm were contracted and marketed by Carnation Jersey Genetics. This success kindled Phil's interest in Jerseys and he began doing matings for local Jersey breeders. Those same breeders in the Hilmar area now comment that Phil is a great tour guide, showing their animals to visitors and A.I. representatives.

Phil was the catalyst that made Jerseyland Sires, a successful sire-proving group, a reality. Most people credit Phil with Jerseyland's enviable track record of proving bulls. Members of the group have traveled across the United States seeking top-pedigreed young bulls to prove in members' herds.

Bulls like Highland Magic Duncan, D&E Spirit Lu, and Great Magic were sampled through Jerseyland Sires.

While Phil loves the Jersey breed, he also has great affection for young people. He has been a 4-H leader for 27 years. He is past president of the Merced County 4-H Dairy Replacement Heifer Committee. This program involves 30 dairy heifers and allows 4-H youth who would not otherwise be able to have dairy projects to raise a calf for 18 months, then sell her as a springing heifer at the county fair.

Phil volunteers time as a room parent for the handicapped and special education classes at the Hilmar school. He also volunteers at King View, a special education continuation school at the county level. In addition, Phil serves as a camp counselor and member of the Special Olympics County Committee.

Phil has served as president of the Merced County DHIA Board and is presently serving on the state DHIA board. He is active in Hilmar Grange and was recently elected president of the Hilmar Chamber of Commerce.

Phil's vigorous pursuit to organize the Jersey breeders in the Hilmar area brought about the reactivation of the Central Valley Jersey Breeders and the California Jersey Cattle Club.

Phil has a lifetime of involvement with the Jersey breed and is responsible, directly and indirectly for thousands of Jersey matings. Recent notice was paid to one of Phil's matings when Midnight Storm-ET, consigned by Fanelli and Eric Silva, topped the 1991 All American Jersey Sale with a bid of $42,000.

Phil is a tireless worker and driving force for continued progress in the Jersey breed. He continues to challenge Jersey breeders, questioning the progress that is being made, and seeking to breed a better Jersey cow for the benefit of all Jersey breeders.

award and the DHIA dairy herd protein award for Somerset County. It was presented at the big countywide Ag Day banquet. It marked the first time his and Nancy's registered Holstein herd had topped all the others in the county for production, although they had ranked among the upper ten for six of the last 10 years.

In the week following the fire, milk production fell, but not by much, according to Gary, who said he believed the reason stemmed from the water shortage at the time. But the numbers soon returned and have stayed steady.

So while the honor is appreciated, Gary and Nancy have a simple, basic philosophy. "Our goal in life is to get along and get our bills paid and to make a nice place to raise our family," said Gary.

Nancy said, "We had a computer feeder put in because we were killing ourselves with work." Sure enough, the big silver feeder called "Herbie — after "Herbie, The Lovebug" of Walt Disney fame — saves the dairy duo hours of work each day. Plus the children do one morning milking each week to give their parents a needed break.

Gary is up by 3:30 a.m., while Nancy joins him at 4 a.m. Later, her parents, Donald and Dorothea Welch, come by and help. This routine allows the Lynch family to enjoy breakfast together before the children leave for school. Evening milking is usually finished by 5:30, so there's time for school, agricultural, and social activities.

"The cows work for us," said Gary, "not us for them."

Water lines have been replaced, but it took the temporary sacrifice of the big front lawn to lay the new lines. The foundation of the new house is up and framing has begun.

They have planned another "farmhouse," which will be two stories high over the basement. It's important that the new house feels like "home" to everyone, including 17-year-old Mike, who leaves for Penn State in late August. His parents want the entire family to be living in it together a little while before his departure, so it truly will seem like home to him after he leaves.

Meanwhile, life is a different kind of normal. The 310 acres of the farm will be sown with corn and alfalfa along with the other 300 acres they rent. The kids will continue to help with the evening work and be involved with their two 4-H clubs and other interests. Maybe, just maybe, the family can still take its annual vacation. It's something they make happen because they believe that it's important.

"We call back every once-in-awhile to see the home is still here," said Gary. "Other than that, we don't look back."

Andy is 15, Lauren, 13, and Jessie is 11. They attend classes in the Somerset Area School District.

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Cheese Whiz

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — It isn't supposed to happen at this time of the year, but cheese prices continued up for nine consecutive weeks — from March 6 to May 8 — for a total gain of over 18 cents, with really no end in sight.

Certainly, it will stop sometime, but so far cheese prices have confounded most forecasters.

Even last month, when prices increased 3 cents to 5 cents per week to $1.26, I said they may go to $1.30 before they peak. On May 8, blocks were more than $1.33 on the National Cheese Exchange and still making weekly gains of 1 to 2 cents.

You have to understand the National Cheese Exchange to appreciate the problem of using it to forecast prices.

The exchange operates only on Fridays and bidding activity may last only a half hour and nothing may be bought or sold. The largest cheese processors make bids to buy cheddar cheese in carload lots of barrels or blocks.

The last "significant transaction" is the price reported, but no cheese has been sold at the exchange for several weeks, which means that the bidding is still increasing the price without sales. So, there are still more increases to come.

The question is, how much, when, and after that, what then?

Still Supply and Demand

The reasons behind the price increases are the same as I gave you last month — lower milk production in the upper Midwest.

Wisconsin and Minnesota production was down 2 percent again in March. Lower cheese inventories are because many handlers were waiting for a spring flush and lower prices.

On March 31, total storage stocks of cheese, both government and private, were down 17 percent from last year. Exports subsidized by the Dairy Export Incentive Program (DEIP) started in the 1985 farm bill and expanded in the 1990 farm bill have sent 32,731 metric tons of dairy products to "new" foreign markets at a cost of over $30 million from January through March.

Looming as the most important of all these reasons is the lower milk production in Minnesota and Wisconsin. When they drop 2 percent that's 70 million pounds a month. That's nearly double what Pennsylvania and New York add when they go up 2 percent.

More importantly, so far the upper Midwest shows no signs of increasing. Opinion is divided, but it appears that many producers in that area may be out of dairying to stay. We'll know better when we see what kind of a growing season 1992 provides them.

Just as important is the fact that 60 percent of the cheese is made in that area and that's what drives the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series. That, in turn, affects the price of all milk sold under Federal Milk Marketing Orders all over the country but not in California.

M-W Responds

No other enterprise in agriculture has the predictability of prices that dairy has. You can watch the changing cheese, butter and powder prices and right behind them the M-W price. Within months it shows up in your milk check.

Vegetable growers can only dream of such pricing.

So, here comes your M-W price, right behind those cheese prices, for a jump of 48 cents in April to $11.46 with probably another 50 cents or so next month.

With the M-W affecting the Class III price the first month, the Class II price the second month, then finally the Class I price, you will see some strange combinations with the M-W increasing so rapidly.

For instance, in April the Class III price will be higher than Class II in all Federal Orders and the blend price won't catch up for another month. But it's coming.

And Here It Is

The uniform price or blend price in Order 2 for April is $12.27 and that's 39 cents more than last month and $1.43 more than last year.

It's more than anyone expected this month, in spite of the increasing cheese and powder prices and the M-W.

The answer is a suspension of the 30-cent Louisville Plan payment for April and a refund, plus interest, of the 20-cent payment in March. The cooperatives have been working on this for months and you get it all back in one check.

Last month the blend price was only 98 cents better than last year. Now it's up to $1.43 with more to come.

The big increase was the 48 cents in Class III milk to $11.46. That came right from the April M-W, and Class III milk was 45 percent of the pool in April.

Class II milk, at $11.11, was only 7 cents higher. And Class I, at $13.63, was 50 cents less than March. It will be June before you see the full impact of the higher M-W but it's coming.

Down the Road

The next thing you'll want to know is how high will the M-W price go and how long will it last?

I've explained how cheese prices have gone up the last nine weeks but powder prices have done nearly as well.

Also starting in March, powder prices have gone from 98 cents to $1.09 last week. There is also no end in sight.

Powder has benefitted more from the export incentive program. Of the 32,701 metric tons of dairy products sold from January to March through the DEIP program, 55 percent was nonfat powder.

There is also an increasing domestic demand for powder and condensed skim to add to milk to increase the cheese yield to meet the demand in that market.

With increasing powder prices, the USDA has again "tilted" the support prices on butter and powder, increasing powder prices 6 cents to 97 cents and lowering butter 11 cents to 76 cents.

It may help to move some butter, but it won't do anything for powder and that's the last time this year that an adjustment can be made.

This isn't the first time that the M-W price has gone up in the spring and down in the fall. It was only two years ago that it happened — the M-W fell $2.75 from $13.94 in January 1990 to $10.19 by December.

Market conditions this year are similar, but different than 1990. While there may be a drop right now, it appears unlikely. If there is a drop, it certainly won't be as bad as 1990.

For one thing, the M-W won't go to $13.94 this year. We'll start getting more milk before it goes that high.

Another factor is that demand now is mainly domestic. Even the increased activity in exports is coming from Congress. That kind of subsidy can be just as good as an increase in the support price.

On the other hand, 26 percent of the producers collected over $23 million to get back their 5-cent assessment last year. That increased the assessment to 13.65 cents starting with May milk. How many will cut back to get 13 cents this year?

The best guess now is that the M-W will peak between $12.50 and $13 by next fall, before dropping back $1.50 to $2 by the end of the year or early 1993.

Not a spectacular year but better than 1991.

USDA Suspends Louisville Plan

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — For the second year in a row, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has suspended the Louisville Plan, which is the seasonal incentive payout provision of the New York-New Jersey and New England Federal Milk orders.

This action was requested by Eastern Milk Producers and nine other milk marketing cooperatives in the Northeast.

The proposal cleared the dairy division several months ago, but then became bogged down in response to President Bush's ban on "new" regulations, which he announced in his State-of-the-Union address in January.

After being dislodged, it again became lost in the bureaucratic quagmire, according to an Eastern news release. As a result, the suspension was not issued in time to stop the deduction for March milk.

As the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives (CNFC) and Eastern urged, the funds taken in March will be added to the April pool and will increase the blend prices by 20.5 cents for the New York-New Jersey market and by 20.7 cents in New England.

The 10 cooperatives requesting the suspension did so to help alleviate the cash flow crunch that normally affects dairy farmers each spring, particularly at a time when milk prices are expected to be at their lowest level for the year.

According to Lew Gardner, president of Eastern Milk Producers, "Bob Gray, executive director of CNFC deserves much of the credit for suspending the Louisville Plan." He solicited and received support from both the Senate and the House of Representatives, Gardner said.

"Eastern is delighted to have been a part of putting dollars back into dairymen's pockets during this critical spring planting season."

William P. Campbell

its fullest and most meaningful extent.

Bill Campbell's historical place in being the second FFA student president came somewhat as a surprise to him. He had been nominated to receive the Keystone Farmer degree in 1931. Having been a student at the Gregg Township Vocational High School, now Penns Valley Area High School, in Centre County, he had traveled down to Harrisburg from the Penn State University campus, where he was a freshman, to receive his degree.

Feeling that receiving the Keystone degree was quite an honor (back then there were only one or two Keystone degrees given per county), Bill, with the help of his father, who was at the time a Civil Engineer with American Bridge Company, a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel, sat down and wrote an acceptable speech, thanking the FFA for bestowing the honor of being the first recipient of the Keystone degree for his high school. It turned out not only was his speech the only one given that day in Harrisburg, but that H. G. Feteroff, then the State FFA Advisor, was so impressed, that other potential officer candidates were passed over and Bill Campbell was asked to be FFA State President in 1931.

Having graduated from a class of 13, 7 boys and 6 girls, at Gregg Township Vocational High School, Bill carried out his duties as State President while attending Penn State University, majoring in Animal Husbandry. Flashbacks to those days brought out the recollection of a college advisor by the name of Dr. W. L. Henning. "Hey, Campbell, I want to tell you something — You are flunking the h--- out of chemistry," he said. Of course Dr. Henning has already been down to see Bill's father, who needed Bill on the farm, not in school, for the summer. A tutor was arranged for at the cost of $35 per semester and Bill aced the course. By the way, that same college advisor, with the help of Bill Campbell, later went on to become Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, under Governor Leader. "That was one of the few Democrats I ever supported," says Campbell jokingly. He was Republican Precinct Chairman of Gregg Township for over 30 years and a state Republican committeeman. Another Democrat he supported was a county extension agent from Erie County by the name of Lee Bull. Campbell lobbied with then Governor Bill Scranton for the nomination of Bull to be Secretary of Agriculture. "I knew Lee Bull was the man for the job. I did not want to sacrifice the future of agriculture. I had to go directly to the president of the university at the time to get him to agree to give Lee the OK for the appointment."

As we sit in the beautiful old Victorian building, once a hotel and also the very place where Bill Campbell was born, more memories were shared. "My father was the youngest boy of four brothers and there were four sisters. His two older brothers always were bragging about the farm they owned together, the Campbell homestead on the other side of the mountain. Not wanting to be outdone, my father and the other younger brother, Henry Clay Campbell, heard that there was a farm for sale with a cave on it. They hired a horse and buggy and set out to see it.

On the way back to Pleasant Gap, they decided to put $2,000 down and borrow the other $8,000. "My uncle was foresighted enough that he knew that more and more people would be driving those things called automobiles, and if that was the case, they would drive out to see our caves." Henry Clay Campbell, who for years was a professor in Philadelphia at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinarian Medicine, left the running of the farm to Bill's father. "One of the things that always stuck in my mind was something my uncle always told his students — 'Two things I always require that you have never be without, a sharpened lead pencil and a pocket knife.'" (At this point in the interview, Mr. Campbell pulls out both items out of his pockets.)

"My father was a rugged individual. He was firm, and he ran a tight ship. He was a pioneer in bringing the knowledge of adding pH to the less fertile soils of Centre County. Up until 1931, we used to burn limestacks, 25-30 feet high, all over our farm, which soon became one of the most productive farms in the county."

In 1932, Bill Campbell's college career almost came to an end. Bill's father died from a sudden heart attack. He would be needed to run the farm. Campbell credits the head of the Department of Animal Husbandry, "Ben The Man", Dr. Franklin L. Bentley, with saving his college career. "He arranged my classes so that I would be able to come home to the farm in the middle of the week to tend the farm chores. Dr. Bentley became one of my closest friends for the rest of his life.

By 1929, Penn's Cave, covering approximately 167 acres had become a tourist attraction, making Henry Clay Campbell's vision a reality. It attracted 29,000 visitors in that year. It had become one of the oldest commercialized caves in the United States and the only American all water cavern. The cave itself is a myriad of beautiful limestone formations showing vibrant variations of reds, yellow and grays. A tunnel was built through the cave toward a man-made five acre lake. There boats would take the people underground through the caves.

Bill and Sara Campbell have given a rich heritage to those who follow.

In 1938, Bill Campbell married one of two girls he had dated in Centre Hall, Sarah J. Odenkirk, who has been his companion, best friend, and business partner for 54 years. Sarah had graduated from Ithaca College, majoring in music and was well known for her soprano solos. "We made the great compromise on religion and politics when we married — I joined her church, and she joined my political party. When one has to point to a single reason for his or her success in life, mine has been Sarah... without her I would not be where I am today, she was and still is the inspiration in my life." It is not hard to see why — this petite lady has intelligence, charm, and a sense of humor that doesn't stop. Her laughter is utterly and completely contagious. She is a perfect complement to the more serious and quiet Bill Campbell.

"I further expanded Penn's Cave as a tourist attraction based said. "Let's just say it's a known fact that there are herbs, minerals and other natural substances that have a very positive and powerful effect on plants and animals. These substances raise the vitality of the living organism, and in raising the vitality, the level of the immune system is raised. In this condition, the plant or animal is better able to fight off disease, parasites or insects.

"We look to condition the plant or animal so that the improved immune system preempts the disease so that it does not want to attack the plant or animal. Thus, we increase the overall general health and are able to create a physiological position where the nutrition present in feed or the soil is used more efficiently. Naturally, if you increase the efficiency of the absorption of nutrition in the diet, you increase the production of eggs or meat. Or else, you reduce feed or fertilizer costs because you need less input to receive the same production."

Eggs from Albright's program are more dense. Often medium size eggs weigh large. They sell in the supermarket chains for a standard $1.47 per dozen. Customers are health conscious consumers who prefer the chemical and antibiotic free eggs that are cholesterol monitored. Sample eggs are tested for cholesterol content each week from each flock. Independent egg producers receive two to five cents premium per dozen to follow the program.

The number of birds per cage is lower than standard, and mortality is low even though Albright does not use antibiotics in his program. If his natural health methods cannot handle an unforeseen infection, that flock is out of the program never to return.

And while Albright believes he has conquered many of the food safety problems that farmers face, research tests at Penn State and The University of Pennsylvania were not conclusive. In both tests, bacteria counts seemed to be lower than usual, but the parameters of the research project did not allow for scientific conclusions.

Dr. David Kradel, Penn State University, said that while the eggs tested from Albright's program did not test positive to Salmonella, most other eggs also do not show positive. Even in a flock that was quarantined because Salmonella was found at the restaurant level, only two infected eggs were found out of the 21,000 eggs tested.

"We did get the feeling that there were less bacteria of the kind we were testing for in Albright's samples," Kradal said. "But the test parameters did not allow for positive scientific conclusions to be published."

But Albright is not discouraged. A new research project is in progress with one of the nation's leading diagnostic laboratories. The parameters for this test have been established to satisfy some of the professional skepticism. Results from this test should be known in a few weeks.

With all the extra environmental and health equipment needed, costs to get started in Albright's program, in addition to the normal housing and equipment, is $7,500. Additional yearly costs run about $500 per house.

In test flocks, production peaked earlier and held longer. After 39 weeks of age, the birds had averaged over 90 percent for 20 weeks. Albright reports that the increased production and the premium prices for the eggs offer a good return on the extra investment.

Meanwhile, Albright has started informal research on plants with a formula that is a first cousin to his secret animal formula. This formula is also a natural substance that needs no governmental agency's approval for use. To prove his point, Albright drinks a glass of his "juice" in front of any would-be skeptic.

For the initial reaction to improved growth and natural insect repellent characteristics of treated plants, Gene Miller, Washington Boro vegetable grower, can hardly hide his enthusiasm.

"It's much too early to make strong assumptions," Miller said. "But it appears we have healthier, more vigorous plants. The plants have extra growth and are more fibrous. And what really is exciting, if this becomes the case, is that I have been watching the butterflies come into the plants and leave. We should be seeing worms, but I have not found any."

A well-lighted, dust-free environment with fewer birds per cage are characteristic of the poultry operations in John Albright's program.

Miller also reported untreated radishes were wormy, but the treated rows were perfect. Sugar peas treated with the formula were ahead of the row that was not treated. Treated tomato plants developed tomatoes and additional flower sets early.

Miller uses a fine mist field sprayer to fog the foliage of his vegetables each week. The formula is mixed 50/50 with water.

The leaves of the plants develop a waxier surface that according to Albright shows that the plants have built up resistance to disease. Produce from the treated plants is expected to be of excellent quality.

At the vo-tech school at Mt. Joy, Easter lily plants grew faster and had more blooms than ever before. Dan Helwig, instructor, said their research was not scientific, and he had no idea what Albright's "stuff is."

"We work on a small budget, and things must pay for themselves," Helwig said. "We put out 17,000 bedding plants to help us pay for programs. In addition, our Easter lilies are a good income for us if they are on schedule. This year we got the lilies started late, and I thought we would not be ready for Easter. But no question about it. Albright's formula increased the growth of the lilies, and we never before had so many blooms on the plants. Usually we have some left-over lilies after Easter," Helwig said. "But every plant was sold this year, because they were so nice."

Students Randy Lowe and Jason Shank agreed. "It seems like the plants are more green and grow better," Lowe said. "After we sprayed the plants for several weeks, we could really see the difference."

In the greenhouse carnation beds, on one side of the aisle, treated plants had more growth and had no mites. On the other side, the untreated plants had half the foliage and also were quite infested with mites. Cost for the formula has not been established, so the profitability of its use is not known.

"We know it is very difficult for our country to maintain the cheap, mass-produced food profile on an organic, free-range type of approach," Albright said. "But to combine the technology for mass production with the technology that allows for a modified indoor environment that is closer to the out of doors, I think we have a good half-way point for the best of both worlds.

"We don't need to significantly impact the price of food, yet we can significantly increase the quality of that food and allow for more comfortable housing for the animals."

Many new products and ideas never amount to anything. And Albright has come a long way since his first exposure to the benefits of a healthy environment on food production. But he is the first to admit he has a long way to go to accomplish his vision for agriculture. He believes that with his secret formula and a balanced healthful environment he will be able to produce healthful food by natural means under conditions that will be more acceptable to consumers with environmental and animal welfare concerns.

In his mind's eye, he sees veal production outside of crates; chickens that show very low bacteria counts in the slaughter house and contain greater levels of Omega 3 oils usually obtained in health diets from fish, and alfalfa with higher natural protein levels in the plant. He believes plants that receive his formula will resist insects; dairy cows will have lower SCC counts, and beef and pork will be of greater quality.

An ancient proverb says that without vision the people perish. And while Albright has a lofty vision that seems grounded by proper timing, the world will watch with skepticism. But it will watch.

And the idea that seems too good to be true--well maybe, just maybe, this time it isn't.

York County Sets Pseudorabies Meeting

YORK (York Co.) — York County recently became one of nine Pennsylvania counties with pseudorabies-infected swine herds.

To provide more information to livestock producers about pseudorabies concerns, Penn State Cooperative Extension and the York County Pork Producer's Association are sponsoring a Pseudorabies awareness meeting on Wednesday, June 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the York County 4-H Center at Bair.

As a swine, dairy, beef or sheep producer, the presence of this disease in the area should be important to you. Pseudorabies is carried by swine, but can be more dangerous to sheep and cattle than to swine herds. All producers with livestock or dairy herds should attend this meeting and become informed.

USDA has developed a five-stage eradication plan to eliminate the disease. Pennsylvania is in stage two of the five-stage plan. The third stage in the plan involves a mandatory cleanup phase for producers. All swine producers should become familiar with the conditions of this plan.

The meeting will open with a description of the pseudorabies problem provided by Dr. Robert Graybill, DVM from Lancaster. Dr. Tim Trayer of Denver, will then report on research he has conducted with sows and finishing pigs to investigate the economics of pseudorabies control. Following this presentation, Dr. Arnold Taft, DVM from the USDA Swine Health Staff, will explain the 5-stage USDA Pseudorabies Eradication Program.

A panel discussion with Dr. John Hurtgen, DVM, New Freedom; Dr. Tim Trayer, DVM, Denver; and Dr. Robert Graybill, DVM, Lancaster will wrap up the evening session. A question and answer period is scheduled at the end of the program to provide more opportunity to clarify information presented.

This meeting will provide background about pseudorabies, will explain the USDA eradication plan, and will provide the opportunity to interact with experts on pseudorabies, including federal and state authorities and practicing veterinarians.

For more information about the meeting, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office, 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402-9041, (717) 757-9657.

on four basic observations — one, with the "good life" observation, people were working fewer hours and spending more money on entertainment after World War II. Secondly, people loved water and boats. Thirdly, "summer vacations" became a way of life. Fourthly, even on vacations, time can be precious." Penn's Cave, under Bill's and Sarah's hands-on management has grown into a nationally recognized tourist attraction, with anywhere from 300 to 1,000-visitor's center with snack bar and souvenirs, a recreation facility complete with playgrounds and covered pavilions that can hold up to 300 people. The actual tour itself takes about one hour. It can be reserved for private group outings, complete with catering services, and is open seven days a week, February 15 through December 1.

Bill has turned over the operation of Penn's Cave to his daughter, Jeanne Schleiden and her husband, Bob, who also runs the family's air charter service and Piper Airplane Dealership. His grandson, William, a West Point graduate and captain of the 1988 Army football team, has just completed his tenure with the Army. His granddaughter, Jeannine, is a prelaw graduate, working in resolution trusts, with a Philadelphia law firm.

With Penn's Cave's primary focus being a tourist attraction, does agriculture still play a role in Bill Campbell's life? You bet. Besides maintaining an operation of Angus and Aberdeen cattle, a herd, according to Erskine Cash of PSU, that has one of the best grades of Angus cattle in the state, Bill still cranks up the combine to help mow 600 acres of corn, wheat, oats, and hay. Bill Campbell remains a true believer in agriculture. He headed up the committee that built the Ag Arena at Penn State University. He has been a director of the First National Bank in Centre Hall for 51 years, a bank that has built its reputation on service to agriculture. Campbell sold the first hybrid seed corn in Pennsylvania and at 80 is the area representative for Jacques Seed Company.

Bill Campbell gives credit to the FFA training for his later leadership roles in other volunteer organizations such as the Masons, where he proudly is a Mason of visitors a day. It has the 33rd Degree, the Governor's Travel Advisory Council, and various national and international travel and transportation committees. He also states, "I have often wished to live my life over again developing a thoroughly progressive, modern agriculture program and to stimulate public interest in agriculture. I am proud of Pennsylvania and the agriculture traditions it has."

What is his advice for the FFA youth of today? You cannot survive in agriculture today by just being aggressive physically. Agriculture education is the way to go, especially in view of the fact that agriculture is a highly technological science. Farms of the future in order to survive will face tough competition. Only the most "fit" farmer will survive — and that means being mentally on top.

Former FFA state officers, the retiring 1991-92 team, six decades later, will find out first hand at the state officers reunion, June 18, from this patriarch of the Pennsylvania FFA, just what being mentally on top is all about. And as Henry Clay Campbell once said, "Bring your sharpened pencils and pocket knives with you!"

Four Cows Killed

cruelty to animals, and recklessly endangering.

Hepler may offer a reward for information which would lead to the arrest and conviction of the criminals. He sited losses that could go over $10,000. The direct loss of the cows was about $6500, plus the veterinary bill. Four cows on antibodics means two separate milkings twice a day and dumping all the milk from the injured cows.

"By about Tuesday, when I can save the milk, things should be back to normal." Helper said. "I don't know if the cow whose foot was shot, will ever be back to normal. This lactation is shot. And the next one is a real question," he said.

The insurance company would not cover these criminal losses, but would cover natural disasters like lightning and flood.

Hepler, who has taken over the farm from his parents, where he still lives, milks 36 head out of a 70 cow herd. He farms 500 acres, raising corn, hay, oats and sorghum, in addition to pasture land for the dairy.

Hepler, who will be 23 next week, is farming land that has been in the family for 28 years. This is the first incident of this kind in the family's memory.

Hepler is puzzled why it happened. Since the property is near Interstate 70, he gets a lot of traffic that is not local. "If I had been feuding with one of the neighbors, or had people mad at me... I have had to run some hunters off — the kind who don't ask permission, leave gates open, cut fences or damage property." But there is no motivation he can see.

Hepler is also surprised that the old military weapons are so available. "Two people have told me they bought military guns at a gun show," he said. "The common availability of guns will hinder police investigation."

He will change his patterns some because of the shooting. he said. But since it was such an uncommon event, he won't do anything drastic.

Police suggested that talking to the media might make solving the case more likely — especially if the publicity makes others alert to details if shootings occur again. He has talked to three TV stations, two radio stations, three newspapers, and two other farm periodicals.

A decision about a reward is pending. Hepler hopes it is not needed.

Lebanon Area Fair Offers More

NORTH LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The annual Lebanon Area Fair is a popular attraction for county and area residents. Fair week dates this year have been set for July 25 through July 31.

Part of its popularity has to do with the organizers who have managed to change the event subtly from year to year, with most changes coming in response to suggestions from the volunteer crew or directly from the crowd.

Also, they have managed to keep county agricultural shows and home craft contests a large part of the show. Many other fairs in the southeastern part of the state retain only vestigial livestock shows and displays, while carnival booths and amusement rides have grown proportionately large.

This year, get ready for a big change at the Lebanon Area Fair.

For those who haven't been to the county fair grounds, owned by Lebanon Expo Corp., a huge, three-story high show barn, made architecturally similar to local bank barns, now looms dominately among the orginal buildings. The entire complex is now called a convention center.

However, the construction of the building is not intrusive. The area was little used previously — it mainly served as a no-man's land between the parking lot, the hog barn, the main building and a food pavilion.

The changes will not affect or diminish any of the agricultural shows or displays. Rather, there will more and better viewing space for some of the large livestock shows — they will now have an indoor facility to use.

For years the dairy cattle shows, the beef cattle and goat shows used a pole tent which offered little space.

The switch of venue is expected to increase general public attendance to those shows.

Previously, limited viewing opportunities and crowding with the large number of dairy cattle being shown, especially during the open dairy show, kept some non-dairy enthusiasts from watching, or understanding what was happening.

There are other new aspects to the fair, and some opportunities for more people to join in the annual showplace of countians' craftmanship and agricultural skills.

One of the new events, still open to those interested, is a two-day antique and classic tractor show.

Those interested in entering tractors must have their tractors on the grounds Saturday, July 25, between 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

The show starts at 1:30 p.m., and runs through Sunday, July 26.

The contest will include several catagories, such as the fastest crank start, and the slowest moving tractor.

Prizes will also be awarded on the condition of the vehicles, in four catagories — for the best restored classic tractor and the best restored antique tractor, and the best two in unrestored condition.

A parade of antique and classic tractors is to be held both days. There will also be a "people's choice award, presented after the second parade.

New for the children at the fair, there will be a pedal tractor pull, with the tractor provided by Keller Brothers Tractor Co. That event starts 3 p.m. July 25.

Some of the other additions include a petting zoo featuring exotic animals; a "Banna Derby", which is a race of monkeys riding minature horses around a track; horse shoeing demonstrations; a 4-H dog and pet show; a dog-goat treadmill; and a chainsaw carver.

Other events at the fair include amusement rides, a goat milking contest on Thursday at 6:30 p.m.; a fun run set for Saturday at 9 a.m. and a craft show Saturday and Sunday. Call (717) 272-7663 for more details on the fun run, and call (717) 867-1021 for craft show information.

Food is always a big attraction to the annual event. The schedule this year is for a ham dinner on Sunday, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.; and a chicken barbeque dinner on Thursday, from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Musical entertainment is to consist of "The Jolly Knights" on Saturday; Mark Rissinger on Sunday afternoon; Tabor Bell Choir singing Vesper Service on Sunday evening; Energy, a kids group; on Monday; Sr. Citizens Young at Heart dance group on Tuesday afternoon; the "Singing Cedars" barbershop quartet (chorus) on Tuesday; "Glen Eckert and the Hayseeds" square dance on Wednesday; Sadie Green Sales performs Thursday; and Shucks musical band plays Friday. Most shows start 6:30 p.m.

Eastern Pays Members, Cumberland Files Chapter 11

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Eastern Milk Producer members who ship their milk through Cumberland Farms were paid their April advance checks recently.

Cumberland Farms filed for protection from creditors under term of Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act on Friday, May 1.

Eastern has members shipping milk through Cumberland Farms in both New York and Vermont.

"Because these Cumberland shippers are Eastern members, they are guaranteed milk checks as well as a market," commented Lewis Gardner, Eastern's president.

General Manager Michael Donovan added, "A guaranteed milk check and market are part of Eastern's service to members."

Glen Mohawk Milk Producers, a central New York milk handler, filed bankruptcy eight years ago.

"There were about 75 Eastern members shipping milk to Glen Mohawk, and Eastern guaranteed their milk checks and secured new markets for the members," said Tony Schlesier, Eastern cooperative relations manager.

Eastern, a Syracuse-based dairy co-op, operates in a nine-state area with 3,100 member farm families. The majority of those member-owners are located in New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

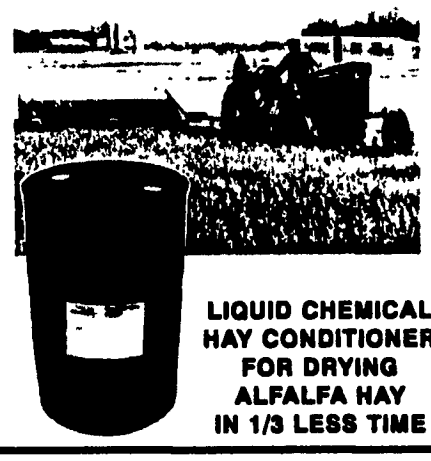
SWATHER'S CHOICE
ALFALFA HAY CONDITIONER



LIQUID CHEMICAL HAY CONDITIONER FOR DRYING ALFALFA HAY IN 1/3 LESS TIME

Alfalfa and other legume crops have a coating of wax. While this coating is a natural protection for the growing plant, it is an inhibitor to moisture loss in field curing and to feed utilization in the digestive system of ruminant animals. The presence of this coating of wax also makes the hay stem brittle and less palatable to livestock.

Swather's Choice "washes off" the outside waxy coating of alfalfa, allowing for the water inside the plant to evaporate more rapidly than in untreated hay. Swather's Choice is actually a soap that is safe for livestock consumption and won't affect palatability.

In studies at Michigan State University, hay treated with the ingredients in Swather's Choice had higher protein and lower fiber. In a further study at Utah State University, cows consumed 2.2 pounds more treated hay per day.

Unlike conventional granular drying agents, Swather's Choice is a liquid chemical hay conditioner. It is easily tank mixed with water and requires only fifteen gallons per acre in most applications, compared with the conventional products that are normally applied at 30 gallons per acre.

Effective Dry Cow Nutrition Begins With New Sweetlix® En-Pro-Al® LactaMax® Blocks

Containing Zinpro® and Diamond V Yeast.®

New Sweetlix® En-Pro-Al® LactaMax® blocks are specifically formulated to prepare dry cows and springing heifers for lactation. The addition of Diamond V Yeast® culture, for maximum rumen fermentation, and Zinpros® proven ability, via field and university trials, to reduce somatic cell count can result in a positive impact on both the quality and quantity of milk produced when lactation begins. Furthermore, current research has shown that feeding selenium and Vitamin E during the dry period can decrease the incidence of mastitis. Add Sweetlix® En-Pro-Al's® predictable intake and you've got one heck of a dry cow program in a convenient 225 lb. non-returnable recyclable tub.

For maximum milk production and profitability, rely on new Sweetlix® En-Pro-Al® LactaMax® blocks

- Provides supplemental protein and energy
- Contains proper levels of Vitamins A, D and E
- Predictable intake – daily consumption rate of 1-2 lbs per head per day

Bedford County Woman Finds Her Dream Farm

Bedford Co. Correspondent

CLEARVILLE (Bedford Co.) — "My grandparents were farmers," says Sandy Howsare. "And, my parents wanted to get away from the farm. All I could ever think of was getting back on one."

Sandy had no idea her dream would come true when she took a job on the Alaskan Pipeline in the early 1970s. It was there she met and married her husband, Pete.

Pete had family, including a daughter in Bedford County, and it was there he wanted to live. He agreed with Sandy, a farm was just what he wanted.

"Our first farm was a learning experience," laughs Sandy, eyes twinkling, as she looks about the farm where they now live. "And, this, this was our dream from the first time we saw it. We love it."

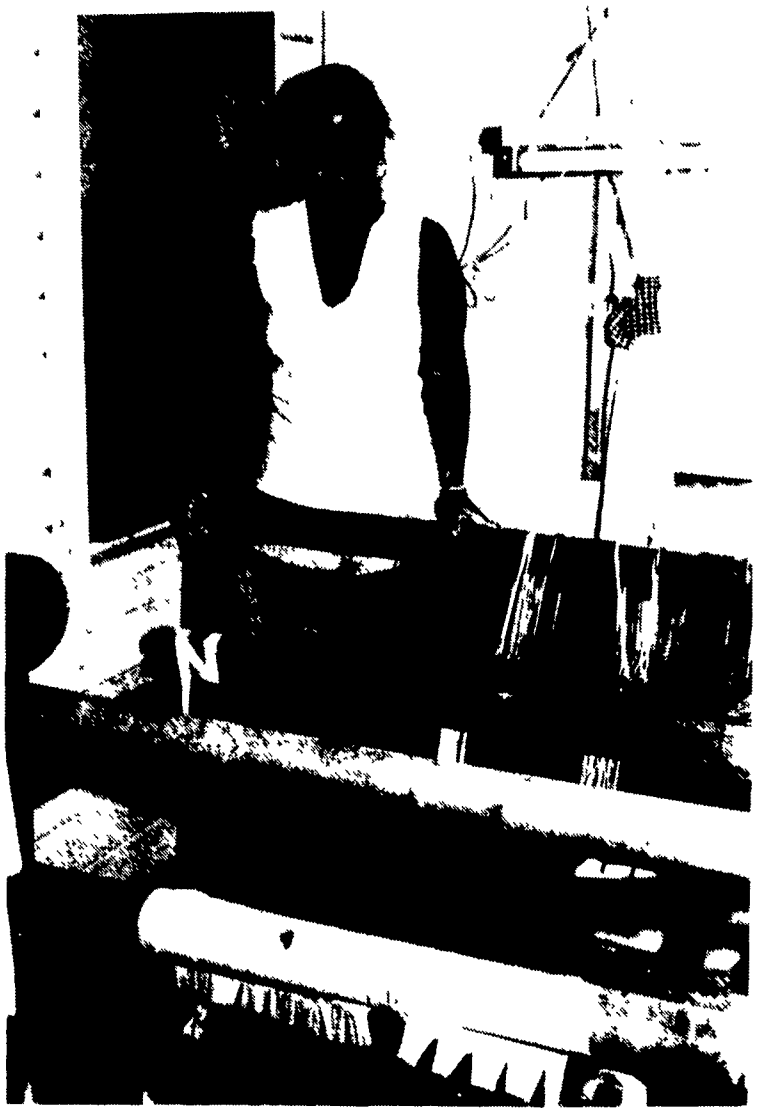
The property includes 350 acres where they raise all of the feed for their animals, It was their first choice when looking for a farm in the Clearville area. However, it was not for sale until 1987. Upon learning it was on the market, Pete and Sandy quickly sold their original farm and moved.

The Howsares do not make a living from their farm. "Unfortunately, the days of making a living on a small farm are gone," Sandy admits. "But, we certainly do supplement our income and we work hard."

Sandy says the only thing they buy at the store is paper products. "We grow our wheat, get it ground into flour and make our bread." She puts more than a half acre of ground into gardens and cans everything.

The Howsares raise pigs, chickens, turkeys, rabbits, and beef cattle. "We eat what we can and sell the rest," says Sandy.

"I do very well with my turkeys," she said. "Each Thanksgiving, I bag them, tie a string around their necks, and drive them to a local butcher. Then, I deliver them from orders I have received months in advance."



Sandy poses by the loom where she weaves all of the rugs for the farmhouse floor.

She has an egg route, and, in the fall, sells dried flowers or dried peppers or gourds from her plentiful garden.

This summer her step-daughter is planning a black and white wedding. In anticipation of the event, Sandy has planted a quarter of her flower garden in white flowers. "I planted white zinnias, marigolds, mums, straw flowers, and every other white flower I could find," she smiles. "I have done the flowers for many weddings, but never one that was all white. It will be interesting."

This past year, Pete and Sandy added a farm pond where they now also raise their own fish. "We've had some tasty meals from that pond," Sandy says.

Never idle, Sandy has a loom where she weaves all of the rugs located throughout the old farmhouse. Walls are adorned with oil paintings, most created with her own hands, and window sills are now full of seedlings, which will turn into fresh vegetables by the end of summer.

"Pete goes back to work on pipeline construction in the summer," Sandy says. "He is here to help me to get the crops planted. Then, I take over. I see that all of the corn is picked and take care of all the harvesting until he gets back."

The local Zion Lutheran Church is also a big part of her world. She is both pianist and choir director. "I love those choir members," she assures. "They are just like family to me."

Despite what some might consider a hectic schedule, Sandy found time hanging heavy on her hands a few years ago. "We don't have a television," she says. "And, I felt as though something was missing in my life. I needed to get in touch."

So, she went back to college. Driving from her home over sometimes treacherous roads to Frostburg College in Maryland, she completed a teaching degree in secondary English in five years.

"I'm proud of what I did," she says. "But, I'm not certain what I want to do with it. Right now, I have no desire for a full-time job. She does, however, consider writing. "I've learned so many colorful tales from the folks who live around here," she says. "I think I would like to weave it all together into a book or maybe even several books."

Sandy shows her black lab, Carbon, one of her new crop of rabbits. "We eat some and sell some," she says.

While she enjoyed all of her classes, she felt that piano was the most interesting. "I found a professor who was looking for older students," she says. "And, I feel I turned into a pretty good pianist in the past four years."

Sandy also plays the bass fiddle and a little bluegrass on the banjo.

In celebration of her graduation from college, her husband and friends threw a big party. "It was a good old-fashioned time," Sandy laughs. "We had a square dance in the barn. Everyone brought gifts, there was lots of food. It was great fun."

A huge bouquet of roses adorns her dining room table, a gift from a florist friend. A whimsical oil painting of a goat smiles from its propped position, a gift from an artist friend. There are balloons and dozens of other small gifts piled about the table.

They seem to maintain the fact that the best way to have friends is to be one.

"Life is just too short to be petty," Sandy admits.

"When I graduated from college, I laughed at my young classmates. They were all talking about what they wanted to do with their lives. Mine is already half over. But, I've reached the point where I know how important it is to fill every minute of every day doing the things I enjoy most."

With a little free time on her hands, the first thing she did was bake a big batch of raisin-filled cookies. "It was something I hadn't had time to do for several years," she comments. "I couldn't wait to do them."

Looking about the Howsare farm, one quickly gets the feeling this couple may have discovered their "Garden of Eden."

Seedlings are sprouting on the woodstove. "I do almost all of my cooking on this," Sandy says. "I couldn't can without it."

Woodcarvers To Compete For Prizes

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Kitchen Kettle Village and the Susquehanna Decoy Shop, Route 340, Intercourse, will hold the 11th Annual Woodcarving Show on Saturday, June 6, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The show will feature the work of 30 woodcarvers, competing for prizes in six categories, including ducks, birds, animals, figures, fish, and miscellaneous. In addition, a special exhibit of carvings will be on display in honor of the 200th Anniversary of the Building of the Philadelphia to Lancaster Turnpike — now known as Route 30.

Admission is free and plenty of free paking is available. Raindate is June 13. For further information, contact Kitchen Kettle Village at (717) 768-8261 or 1-800-732-7538.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

A knocked-down gate is a pretty dependable indication that something is wrong around here. Usually it indicates some four-footed friend - of the bovine type - out running amuck.

Sure enough. The pen, where just a short time before I'd fed a baby bull calf his breakfast bottle, was glaringly empty.

Another calf had skipped town. So to speak.

One escaped calf does not a crisis make. They'll usually manage to slip in with the cows and we'll retrieve them easily enough. Or, on occasion, a bull calf will high-tail it toward the fields and lay down to hide in a field of alfalfa or snuggle in along a grassy bank.

"Look at this," the Farmer commented about a half hour later, glancing out the kitchen window during a morning cookie break.

Our runaway was trotting up the field road from the meadow, where he had apparently been cooling his heels on the sunny side of the remains of a big bale stack. Close behind was friend Frank, who spied the escapee as he drove up the road and headed him in the homeward direction.

Even before the Farmer closed in from the opposite direction, the calf saw what he took to be a way out of this two-to-one contest.

He took a flying leap in to the upper pond.

This pond is not large, but it is about ten feet deep. Watching from the back porch, I saw a black-and-white blur furiously paddling through the open water beyond the rim of cattail foliage.

One very wet - and no doubt surprised - bull calf was returned to dry off back home in his pen. When I climbed the gate to feed him that evening, he bawled, lowered his head, and threatened to ram me.

Apparently he didn't appreciate the swimming lesson.

Unpredictable animal behavior is the predictable animal behavior here - one more thing that makes farm living so enjoyable and interesting.

Take the geese, for instance. Matter of fact, we thought someone had.

Early this month, "our" geese hatched out six fluffy yellow-brown goslings from their mid-pond nesting site. When several days passed and the goslings still numbered six, we rejoiced in the pair's good fortune and lack of predator devastation this go-round.

Then, the entire family disappeared. No little geese. No big geese.

After our initial dismay, no feathers, no scene of destrution, no evidence of "fowl" play of any kind seemed a bit reassuring. Surely foxes or dogs or hawks or owls couldn't have wiped out eight geese without some sort of trace. When they got the guinea hatch last spring, at least we found feathers.

Perhaps the appearance of more geese at the pond, encroached on their turf despite Papa Goose's best defensive efforts, had scared off our little family. Maybe they had moved down into the brushy areas along the meadow creek for more peace and quiet.

Several search trips through with the three-wheeler yielded no sign.

But a suggestion that the geese might have moved to the closest neighboring pond was right on target. The fact that it's probably a half-mile away, either through the meadow or the short-cut route via the neighboring wooded housing development, made the walking journey for those short-legged little babies seem highly improbable.

A week later, they returned to our pond, hung around a couple of days, and split again for the neighbors.

Not long after sunrise a few mornings later, they again came trudging back up through the meadow. Soon after, five interloper geese splashed down. Papa dispatched them elsewhere in a hurry.

Apparently this is home, but our neighbor keeps his pond banks beautifully mown and neat - making for easier walking and better predator watch. I promptly looped short our pond-area grass, which we had left grow for the heifers to nibble.

Next thing, these geese will demand landscaping.

Milk Remains A Bargain

COLUMBUS, Ohio — According to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, milk and milk product prices have shown the smallest price increase of any major food group. From 1967 to 1987, milk and milk product prices rose only 164.8 percent. In the same period of time, fruits and vegetables rose 256.7 percent, cereal and bakery products rose 237.2 percent, and meat, poultry, and fish increased by 190.6 percent.

The 1990 average national retail price of 2 percent milk was $1.39, a bargain for the best dietary source of calcium. One cup of milk provides 288 mg of calcium — the same amount found in 5.6 half-cup servings of broccoli — and has more potassium per serving than frozen orange juice. A serving of milk has as much zinc as two servings of whole wheat bread and more protein than one large egg.

Milk is not only a grocery bargain, it is an investment in health.

Make Your Home Cleaner And Safer With Spring Cleaning

A thorough spring house cleaning can do more than rid your home of clutter. It can also make it a safer place to live. In fact, when it comes to preventing fires and accidental injuries in your home, cleanliness and safely go hand in hand.

When newspapers, magazines, boxes, unused furniture, toys, supplies clothing and similar items are left out in the open, there is a danger of slipping, bumping and tripping. But, even if they are hidden from view, other dangers remain. Common storage areas — attics, basements and under stairways — easily become danger zones where fires can start or spread rapidly. As a preventative measure, go through your home and sort out what you really need. From the discard pile, give away what is usable, recycle what's suitable and throw away the rest. Organize the things you are keeping into safe, convenient storage areas.

Cleaning supplies, tools, home improvement materials and the like should all have specific storage areas. Stack things neatly. Keep doors and drawers closed. Consider hanging frequently used household tools on pegboards, putting the board in convenient reach of adults, but high enough that dangerous tools are not within reach of small children.

To avoid accidents, discard containers with small amounts of left-over paint and solvents. Contact your local sanitation department for advice on safe disposal. Be sure you store left-over paint and solvents off the ground and away from pets until they can be used or discarded.

Regular cleaning routines can eliminate potential dangers. Dust from the floor and dirt from the vacuum cleaner should be wrapped and discarded in your trash can. Because this seemingly harmless material can be hazardous, keep it away from open fires. When emptying ashtrays, be sure all cigarettes and matches are extinguished. Make it a point to empty trash cans and wastebaskets regularly.

As you clean, develop the habit of returning tools and supplies to their proper places. Future cleaning and repair work will go faster if everything you need is where it should be.

To help retain the beauty of fine wood furniture, use some common sense guidelines. Clean, oil and replace natural moisture by regular applications of a quality wood furniture treatment product. Keep your furniture away from heat sources, such as vents, to avoid drying, and sunny windows to avoid fading. If the latter is not possible, draw the blinds during peak sunlight hours. This practice will also help protect fine wood windowsills. To even out fading, rearrange your furniture every six months or so.

Keep water away from wood surfaces. Water can raise the grain, separate the finish from the wood and cause swelling and black stains. Avoid placing hot or cold items directly on wood surfaces. To avoid moisture that softens the finish, elevate glass tops with small felt pads and avoid leaving plastic tablecoverings on for long periods of time.

Low-Fat Whey To Go Offered During Dairy Month

Multi-Grain Bread served with a vegetable chowder are examples of foods that can be made with low-fat dairy foods. The bread can be made with low-fat yogurt instead of sour cream. Chowder can be made using low-fat milk products. This is the theme of the "Low-fat Whey To Go" Program offered in Cumberland County.

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Cumberland County is offering a program to celebrate Dairy Month in June. The thrust is to offer ways to make low-fat dairy foods that taste great. Consumers attending will be able to taste new low-fat food products so they can choose which they would like to use at home.

Marg Malehorn, Extension home economist, is offering the program on Thursday, June 18, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the Cooperative Extension Office in Cumberland County. Consumers can register by calling (717) 240-6500. The cost for the two-hour program is $5. The program is open to the public and moms are encouraged to attend.

Low-fat cheese is one "whey to go" when choosing low-fat, high-calcium foods. The supermarket revolution in the cheese aisle has everyone reading labels carefully . . . The traditional cheeses are still there: Camembert, Brie, Roqueforts, Swiss, and Cheddar. But the new ones are part-skim milk and gums to slash the fat content - in some cases down to zero! According to Marg, "Milk is an important part of our diet. Everyone needs at least the equivalent of two cups (of milk) a day."

She would like people to realize how easy it is to use in menu-planning. She also feels it's important to make low-fat food choices for good health.

During the program, a variety of recipes including appetizers, soups, main courses, and desserts will be discussed. She stresses that the number one thought is to reduce the amount of fat. Many quick, easy recipes are planned for family appeal. Marg will demonstrate how to bake with yogurt instead of sour cream. A mini-demonstration will be given on straining yogurt to make yogurt cheese. Participants will have a chance to sample the yogurt cheese when the whey is removed.

Other upcoming programs that are being offered this summer at the cooperative extension office in Cumberland County include:

• Canning and Home Food Preservation -

The class will feature basic equipment and show participants how to get started. Emphasis will be placed on choosing fruits and vegetables using the pressure canner.

• Household Waste Recycling Program -

George Hurd, agent in community development in Franklin County will join the Cumberland County staff for this program. Participants will learn to shop for environmentally safe products in the right containers. Emphasis will be placed on disposing of hazardous waste safely.

• Lessons on Meat Program -

Marg will share how meat can be part of a heart-healthy diet. Emphasis will be placed on cooking with low-fat meats. Beth Whitman Pitzer, Pennsylvania Beef Council, will discuss new labeling changes that are upcoming in November.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

Chicken is an excellent food for microwaving. It is tender, flavorful and juicy, microwaves rapidly, and takes very little attention during cooking. Don't overcook poultry, however; it really will be done in the very short cooking periods given in the recipes. Because they do cook so quickly, chicken pieces do not get brown and crisp. Furthermore, it will be more attractive if brushed with a browning agent, coated with crumbs, or cooked in a Brown 'N Sear Dish. Plain microwaved chicken is perfect for salads and casseroles too. If you are concerned about calories or cholesterol, skin chicken before cooking, since most of the fat is located directly below the skin. If cooked in a sauce, the flavor will be absorbed by the chicken instead of the skin.

Fiesta Chicken Kiev

This recipe won $5,000 in a recipe contest exclusively for microwave cooking. Serve Kiev with taco sauce, garnish with lettuce, tomatoes and ripe olives.

4 whole chicken breasts, split, skinned and boned
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons old English style sharp cheese spread
2 teaspoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate (Accent)
2 tablespoons chopped green chilies
¼ cup butter melted
1 cup cheddar cheese crackers
1½ tablespoons taco seasoning mix

Pound each raw chicken piece with mallet or foil covered brick to flatten.

In small bowl beat together butter and cheese spread until well blended. Mix in onion, salt, monosodium glutamate and chilies. Place a portion of mixture at one end of each chicken piece, dividing evenly. Roll up each piece, tucking in ends to completely enclose filling. Fasten rolls with toothpicks.

Dip each roll in melted butter to cover, then coat with mixture of crackers and taco seasoning mix. Arrange rolls in 12x8x2 inch dish. Cover with wax paper. Microwave at HIGH for 10 to 12 minutes, rotating dish ½ turn after 5 minutes, until done. Let stand about 5 minutes before serving. Makes 8 servings.

Not The Same Old Chicken

This golden glazed chicken is named for the comments it elicits. It really does taste special.

1 chicken, 2½ to 3½ lb. cut up
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 package dry onion soup mix
½ cup bottled Russian dressing
1 cup apricot-pineapple preserves

In a 12x8x2 inch dish arrange chicken with thickest, meaty pieces to outside edges of dish.

In a small bowl stir together mayonnaise, onion soup mix, dressing and preserves. Spread over chicken, coating each piece. Cover with wax paper.

Microwave at HIGH 18 to 22 minutes, rotating dish ½ turn after 10 minutes. Allow to stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving, so chicken absorbs flavor of sauce. Serve with rice. Makes about 4 servings.

Crumb Coated Chicken

This has the same appearance and taste as oven fried.

2 eggs
⅓ cup melted butter
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups buttery flavored cracker crumbs (about 50)
1 chicken, 2½ pounds cut up, skin removed

In a small bowl beat together eggs, butter and salt.

In a shallow dish place crumbs. Coat chicken with crumbs, then egg mixture and crumbs again. In a 12x8x2 inch dish arrange chicken with meatiest pieces to outside edges of dish. Cover with wax paper. Microwave at HIGH 18 to 22 minutes, rotating dish ½ turn after 10 minutes. Makes about 4 servings.

Chicken and Dumplings

1 chicken, 2½ to 3½ lbs. cut up
2 cups hot tap water
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
4 medium carrots, sliced
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup cornstarch
¼ cup cold water

In a 3 quart casserole place chicken, water, onion, celery, carrots, salt and pepper. Cover. Microwave at Medium High for 15 minutes

In a small bowl stir together cornstarch and water. Stir in chicken mixture, blending well. Cover. Microwave at Medium High 10 to 20 minutes, until chicken is tender. Spoon Dumplings around edge of dish. Microwave at Medium High for 5 to 6 minutes, covered, until puffed and not doughy. Makes 4 servings.

Dumplings

In a mixing bowl stir together 1½ cups unsifted all purpose flour, 1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes, 2 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. Add ⅔ cup milk, 1 beaten egg and 2 tablespoons cooking oil. Stir with table fork only until flour is moistened.

Chicken A La King

The old favorite, creamed chicken, dressed up with colorful pimiento, green pepper and flavorful mushrooms.

Serve over toast or in a pastry shell.

⅓ cup butter
½ cup unsifted all purpose flour
2 cups dairy half and half
1 cup chicken broth

In a 2 quart casserole place butter. Microwave at High 1 minute, until melted. Blend in flour. Gradually stir in half and half and broth; mix well. Microwave at High 8 to 10 minutes, stirring with whisk after 4 minutes, until thickened and smooth. Stir well again.

2 cups cubed, cooked chicken
1 jar (4 oz.) sliced pimiento
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, undrained
½ cup diced green pepper
1 teasoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Mix in chicken, pimiento, mushrooms, green pepper, salt and pepper. Cover. Microwave at Medium High for 7 to 10 minutes, until hot. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving, to blend flavors. Makes about 4 servings.

Grow The Great Pumpkin

DOYLESTOWN (Chester Co.) — Youth between the ages of 8 and 19 are invited to join the 4-H Great Pumpkin Contest.

W. Atlee Burpee and Co. have donated the seeds of "Prizewinner" pumpkin to the Bucks County 4-H project.

Four-H members who enroll in the pumpkin project will be supplied with pumpkin plants and several kinds of seed to grow the "Great Pumpkin". The 4-H'ers will also be given planting and care instructions.

In early fall there will be a Great Pumpkin Roundup. At the roundup there is always a lot going on including a weigh-in of pumpkins, pie eating contest, judging contest, and many other exciting happenings!

Four-H'ers will also be in the running for Burpee's $10,000 grand prize if they happen to grow the largest pumpkin in the U.S.

To join the 4-H pumpkin contest, youngsters must be enrolled as 4-H members. The deadline is June 1.

Contact the 4-H office at (215) 345-3283 for details about joining 4-H.

Sizzling Recipes For Outdoor Cooking

Summer is a wonderful time to enjoy changes in the way we plan, cook, and eat our meals. The grills are smoking beside the deck and fresh fruits and vegetables accompany our meals. Cleanup is quick and the kitchen is cool leaving all of us more free time to relax in the great out-of-doors.

Clever cooks discover endless variety in preparing beef, pork, chicken, lamb, and seafood on the grill.

BBQ SAUCE

1 cup catsup
⅓ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon mustard
1 to 2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons margarine

Mix together all the ingredients in a microwave safe bowl. Cook at 60 percent power for 6 to 8 minutes until sauce thickens or simmer slowly on the stove.

Partially cook chicken or pork spare ribs in the microwave or grill. Baste with sauce until meat is done. You may want to double the recipe and serve warm sauce with the meat.

CHEESY POTATO-CARROT FOIL BAKE

4 slices bacon
3 large potatoes
3 medium carrots, shredded
¼ cup sliced green onion
Salt and pepper
¼ cup butter
½ teaspoon caraway seed
1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese

Fry bacon until crisp, drain, and crumble. Set aside. Tear off a 36x18-inch piece of heavy duty foil. Fold in half to make an 18-inch square. Fold up sides, using your fist to form a pouch. Thinly slice potatoes into pouch. Add shredded carrots and sliced green onion. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dot with butter and sprinkle with caraway. Fold edges of foil to seal pouch securely, leaving space for expansion of steam.

Grill over slow coals 55 to 60 minutes or until done. Turn several times. Open pouch. Stir in crumbled bacon and cheese. Close pouch and return to grill about 1 minute or until cheese melts. Makes 6 servings.

Grilling Creole Pepper Steak is a terrific way to entertain guests on a summer afternoon or evening.

SHARK KABOBS

1 pound shark fillets, cut in 1-inch cubes
8 cherry tomatoes, whole
1 cup zucchini in ½ -inch slices
1 cup green pepper, cut in small pieces
8 mushrooms, whole
1 cup onion, cut in small pieces
½ cup Italian dressing

Place chunks of fish and vegetables on long skewers (each skewer will have 3 pieces of fish). Place skewers in a shallow dish and pour Italian dressing evenly over kabobs. Cover and marinate in the refrigerator for 1 hour, turn after ½ hour. Oil grill. Place kabobs on hot grill and cook for about 15 minutes basting 2 or 3 times with the dressing. Turn often to ensure even cooking. Kabobs are done when fish is firm. Serve 2 kabobs per person. Serves 4. 298 calories per serving.

HONEY-MUSTARD GLAZED STEAKS WITH GRILLED ONIONS

⅓ cup Dijon-style mustard
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1½ tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon cider vinegar and water
¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
⅛ teaspoon coarse grind black pepper
2 boneless beef top loin steaks, cut 1-inch thick
1 large onion, cut into ½ -inch thick steaks

Combine mustard, parsley, honey, vinegar, water, pepper sauce, and pepper. Place beef steaks and onion slices on grid over medium coals; brush both sides liberally with glaze. Grill steaks and onions 9 to 12 minutes for rare to medium, turning once and again brushing with glaze. Makes 4 servings. 256 calories per serving.

Pa. Beef Council

CREOLE PEPPER STEAK

1 pound beef top round steak, cut 1-inch thick
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon ground white, red or black pepper

Combine garlic, thyme, paprika, and peppers; press evenly into both sides of beef steak. Place steak on grid over medium coals. Grill steak 12 to 14 minutes for rare to medium, turning once. Season with salt, if desired. Carve steak diagonally into thin slices. Serves 4.

GRILLED TURKEY BREAST

Thaw a boneless turkey breast according to package directions.

You may want to partially cook turkey breast in the microwave. Place turkey on an aluminum throw-away pan or on a medium-high grill.

Baste with butter or margarine. Sprinkle ground pepper and poultry seasoning on top. Cook until thermometer tests done.

GARLIC-STUFFED SIRLOIN

¼ cup garlic cloves, finely chopped
1 tablespoon olive oil
½ cup thinly sliced green onions
¼ teaspoon each salt and pepper
3-pound well-trimmed boneless beef top sirloin steak, cut 2-inches thick

Cook garlic in oil in small nonstick skillet over low heat until tender, about 5 minutes. Add onions; increase heat to medium-low and continue cooking until onions are crisp-tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in salt and pepper. Cool thoroughly. To cut pocket in beef steak, make a horizontal cut through the center of steak, parallel to the surface of the meat, about 1-inch from each side. Cut to, but not through, opposite side. Evenly spoon stuffing into pocket. Secure opening with wooden picks. Place steak on grid over medium-low coals. Cover. Grill 26 to 32 minutes for rare to medium, turning once. Remove picks; carve into ½ -inch slices. A boneless beef top sirloin steak will yield four 3-ounce cooked trimmed servings per pound. 182 calories per serving.

Featured Recipe

According to David Ivan of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, beef is the preferred meat of 98 percent of United States households.

"Today's consumers are looking for ways to enjoy foods they love in moderation," Ivan said. "Our research tells us that consumers are tired of being told what to eat and what not to eat."

With this in mind, the Beef Industry is launching their biggest advertising campaign ever. The campaign called "Beef. It's What's for Dinner" will feature recipe distribution in magazines, at the supermarket, and on TV.

Beef in today's retail grocery case contains 27 percent less fat than beef of one decade ago. One three-ounce serving of lean, trimmed beef has, on average, 183 calories, 8.4 grams of total fat (3.2 grams saturated) and 73 milligrams of cholesterol (similar to a 3-ounce serving of boneless, skinless chicken breast). The same portion provides 37 percent vitamin B12, 56 percent protein; 39 percent zinc; 14 percent iron; 18 percent niacin; and 12 percent riboflavin.

If you would like a 20-page recipe booklet called "Great Gilled Beef," send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to the Pennsylvania Beef Council, 4714 Orchard Street, Harrisburg, PA 17109.

STEAK DIANE

4 boneless beef top loin or rib-eye steaks, cut ¼ -inch thick
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots or onion
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
¼ cup ready-to-serve beef broth
2 tablespoons brandy
2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons finely chopped parsley

Melt butter in large nonstick skillet over medium heat. Add shallots and garlic; cook 2 minutes. Stir in mushrooms; cook and stir 3 to 4 minutes. Remove and set aside. Increase heat to medium-high. Add steaks to skillet; cook 6 to 7 minutes for medium rare (150 degrees) turning once. Remove to warm platter. Decrease heat to medium. Add broth, brandy, mustard, Worcestershire sauce and reserved mushroom mixture. Bring to a boil. Cook and stir until liquid is slightly reduced, about 1 minute. Spoon sauce over steaks and sprinkle with parsley. Serves 4. Takes 25 minutes.

Serving suggestion: Sauteed cherry tomatoes tossed with hot cooked fettucine.

lemon
butter
paprika

Spread the steak with butter and broil for about 8 minutes on each side. Sprinkle with paprika and serve with lemon wedge.

HIBACHI SALMON

1 salmon steak
¼ stick butter
Garlic powder to taste

Melt the butter in a small saucepan and add the garlic powder according to your taste. Grill the steaks over a charcoal fire, basting regularly with the garlic butter. Turn the steak several times, the way you cook hamburger, until each side is slightly charred.

ANSWER — Mrs. Allen A. Miller, Smyrna, Del., wanted a recipe for Harvard Beets. Thanks to Sarah Keeney, York; Helen Nolt, New Holland; Irma Shockley, Wilmington, Del.; and others for sending recipes.

Harvard Beets

Cook, peel, and cube beets, as many as desired. Measure. For each 2½ quarts prepared beets, mix together:

2 cups sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup cider vinegar
1⅓ cups water

Cook and stir sauce until thickened, about 1 minute after it begins to boil. Add prepared beets. Heat until boiling. Add 2 tablespoons butter and serve.

Harvard Beets

1 can red beets
¼ cup red beet juice
1½ teaspoons cornstarch
1½ tablespoons sugar
1½ tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon margarine

Drain the red beets, reserving ¼ cup of the juice. Put juice in saucepan. Add cornstarch, sugar, and vinegar. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until it comes to a boil and the liquid becomes clear. Add red beets and margarine. Cook slowly until heated thoroughly.

ANSWER — Betsy Dehn, Spencerville, Md., wanted a recipe for cheese biscuits like those served by Red Lobster restaurants. Thanks to Kelly Rice, Port Trevorton, for sending a recipe.

Cheese-Garlic Biscuits

2 cups Bisquick baking mix
⅔ cup milk
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese
¼ cup butter, melted
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Mix baking mix, milk, and cheese until soft dough forms. Beat vigorously for 30 seconds. Drop dough by spoonful onto greased, non-stick bakeware cookie sheet. Bake at 450 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes or until golden brown. Mix butter and garlic powder. Brush over warm biscuits before removing from cookie sheet.

Serve warm. Makes 10 to 12 biscuits.

ANSWER — Donald Love, Camp Hill, wanted a recipe for chocolate cake that uses mayonnaise. Chocolate Mayonnaise Cake

3 cups flour
1½ cups sugar
3 teaspoons baking soda
6 tablespoons cocoa
Pinch salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups milk
1½ cups mayonnaise

Mix together dry ingredients with milk. Beat until smooth. Add mayonnaise. Pour into oblong cake pan. Bake 35 minutes at 350 degrees.

Mayonnaise Chocolate Cake

1½ cups granulated sugar
2 cups flour
Pinch salt
1 cup mayonnaise
3 tablespoons cocoa
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 cup warm water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat together ingredients for 2 minutes. Pour into two greased 8-inch cake pans or greased oblong pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

APPLE-ICIOUS LAMB KEBABS

1½ pounds lamb, leg or shoulder, cut in 1¼ -inch cubes
1 cup apple juice or cider
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon lemon pepper
2 cloves garlic, sliced
1 large apple, cut in 12 wedges
Assorted vegetables, 1 large green or red pepper, 1 large onion, 1 small summer squash, cut in wedges

Mix apple juice, Worcestershire sauce, ginger, and garlic. Add lamb cubes and coat the cubes well. Place lamb cubes, apple juice, Worcestershire sauce, ginger, and garlic in plastic bag or non-metal container in refrigerator for at least 2 hours to 24 hours.

Remove meat from marinade and thread on skewers, alternating meat, apples, and vegetables.

Apple Barbecue Sauce:

½ cup apple juice or cider
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 cup chili sauce
½ cup applesauce, unsweetened
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon dry mustard
5 drops hot pepper sauce

In 1-quart saucepan, combine apple juice and onion and simmer for 2 minutes. Stir in chili sauce, applesauce, brown sugar, Worcestershire sauce, dry mustard, and hot pepper sauce. Simmer for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat.

To grill: use moderate heat. Grill lamb kebabs 4 inches from coals for 10 to 12 minutes for medium rare. Turn occasionally and brush with barbecue sauce while grilling.

EASY CHEESY PIZZA ON THE GRILL

1 tablespoon butter
1½ teaspoons dry yeast
½ teaspoon sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ -cup whole wheat flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Additional flour as needed
2 teaspoons yellow cornmeal

Mushroom-Pepper Topping

⅓ cup prepared pizza sauce
1 cup regular or shitake mushrooms
1 cup thinly sliced bell pepper
1½ cups shredded Mozzarella cheese
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan or Romano cheese
Fresh or dried herbs, if desired

Heat water and butter together until warm. Stir in yeast with sugar; let stand 5 minutes or until bubbly. Mix flours and salt in food processor or mixer with dough hook. Slowly add yeast mixture. Process until dough cleans inside of bowl; add additional flour 1 tablespoon at a time if mixture is too moist. Continue processing until dough is smooth and elastic, about 45 to 60 seconds. Transfer to buttered medium bowl; cover loosely with waxed paper. Let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 25 minutes. Heat gas grill to medium to medium-low. Transfer to lightly floured surface. Divide dough into two balls. Roll and stretch each ball into 8-inch circle; sprinkle both sides evenly with cornmeal. Place on grid over medium to medium-low coals; cover and cook 2 to 3 minutes or until bottom is golden brown. Turn; spread with sauce. Sprinkle evenly with mushrooms, peppers, Mozzarella, parmesan, and herbs. Close grill; cook 6 to 8 minutes or until crust is golden brown and cheese is melted.

Cooks Question

Corn Cob Jelly

12 bright red corn cobs
3 pints water
1 package Sure-Jell
3 cups sugar

Boil broken cobs in water for 30 minutes. Remove from heat and strain the liquid, if necessary, add enough water to make 3 cups. Add Sure-Jell and bring to a rolling boil. Add sugar and boil 2 to 3 minutes or until jelly stage. Do not add coloring or flavoring as it has its own. Pour into sterilized canning jars, top with two-pieced lig and process in boiling water bath for 10 minutes. Tastes similar to apple jelly.

ANSWER — M. Pavlica wanted a recipe for pickled cabbage. Thanks to Sarah Keeney, York, for sending a recipe.

Pickled Cabbage

½ head cabbage, chopped

Cook cabbage in salted water about 5 minutes. Add 1 green pepper, seeded and cut up. Cook a few more minutes until pepper is tender crisp, not mushy. Drain, reserving juice.

In a 1 cup measure, put 5 tablespoons sugar, add ⅓ cup vinegar. Add reserved juice to 1 cup level. Mix well. Pour over vegetables. Let set a few hours. Chill before serving.

ANSWER — Frank T. Cat, Nearwater, requested a recipe for Amish macaroni salad. Thanks to Lillian Weaver of Ephrata for sending one.

Macaroni Salad

½ pound cooked macaroni
3 hard-boiled eggs
½ bunch celery
1 carrot, chopped
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped sweet pickles and juice
1 small onion
1 cup salad dressing
1 cup milk or cream

Cook macaroni and drain. Cool slightly. Add remaining ingredients.

ANSWER — Donald Love, Camp Hill, wanted a recipe for hot bacon or ham dressing that is used on top of endive, dandelion, and lettuce. Thanks to Helen Nolt, New Holland; Irma Shockley, Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Dale Mummert, Glen Rock; Leora Petet, Holsopple; Gladys Willis, Liverpool; and others for sending recipes.

Bacon Dressing

1 cup bacon, cut in 1-inch pieces
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
3 teaspoons cornstarch
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup water
½ cup vinegar

Saute bacon until golden brown. Set aside. Heat water and vinegar to boiling. Mix eggs, sugar, cornstarch, milk, salt and pepper, stir into water and vinegar. Reduce heat and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add bacon. Serve immediately or refrigerate and heat as needed. Yields 3 cups. Good over lettuce, dandelion or endive.

Pennsylvania Dutch Lettuce Dressing

½ cup vinegar
½ cup water
2 or 3 tablespoons margarine
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
Dash salt
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons flour

Bring water, vinegar, and margarine to a boil. Add sugar, mustard, salt, eggs, and flour. Mix well and boil until mixture is thickened. Add 3 tablespoons salad dressing. Cool. Bits of fried bacon may be added to the lettuce.

Communication And Teens

One of the strengths of strong families is the ability to communicate with each other. This is especially important when dealing with teens. The teenage years are known as a time of growing independence and, as such, children are faced with an abundance of choices which affect their welfare and future development. The teen needs support and guidance during this important period. As parents, we need to keep conversation open. Below are some suggestions that may be helpful in maintaining communication:

- Be a good listener. Pay attention when your son or daughter tries to tell you about something — even if it doesn't seem particularly important or interesting at the time.
- Don't be too judgmental when your son/daughter tells you about things "kids are doing" that you don't approve of.
- Use "I" messages to communicate your feelings. "I feel there's another side to this issue."
- Don't take your frustrations out on your kids. If you had a bad day at work, don't come home and attack your teen for his/her behavior.
- Be generous in your praise. Look for different ways to tell your teenagers you appreciate them.
- Be willing to talk when your teenager feels like talking — even if you don't.
- Hold family discussions and include your teenager in decision making and problem solving.

Third Graders Discover Sights, Sounds, Scents Of Dairy

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — Moo and awhh, moo and awhh.

No, those aren't the sounds cattle make. Actually, they're a combination of kids and cows — the "awwhing" part comes from wide-eyed third graders.

Last week, about 210 kids from area schools — including Twin Valley and Honey Brook — came to visit Pennwood Farms, operated by Harvey Stoltzfus and sons.

The Twin Valley FFA assisted in the ag class experience as part of their Food for America program, according to Heather Dougherty, FFA reporter.

The first group of kids, from the Twin Valley Elementary Center, were separated into four groups of 15 students each. Students in classes taught by Mrs. Mary Adams, Mrs. Kathy Witman, Mrs. Carolyn Wagner, and Mrs. Eleanore Hart were shown the milk house, the barn, the calf hutches, and the feed area.

The day-long program included the support of 18 Twin Valley FFA'ers. Each of them had to address a different topic, including taking care of the calves, the feeding program, how to milk a cow, and storing of the milk for shipment.

"The kids are really interested," said Brian McGowan, FFA'er. "Like, how to tell the difference between a cow and a bull. A lot of kids just don't know."

"Last year, the kids went around to different parts of the farm to see the different animals," said Carolyn Wagner, third grade teacher. She said this was her first year at the annual farm tour.

"Here, the kids get to try the milk and some homemade ice cream at the end of the tour," said Eleanore Hart, third grade teacher at the Twin Valley Elementary Center.

Berks County Alternate Dairy Princess Sarah Johnson spoke to the children about the nutritional importance of milk in the diet.

Wow, look how big this is! That's the impression Mrs. Eleanore Hart's third grade class at Twin Valley have of the silos on this Morgantown dairy farm.

After the tour, the third graders sampled chocolate milk and ice cream.

Annual Somerset County FFA Banquet Held

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — The county FFA chapters gathered here for the annual awards banquet recently. Guest speaker was the state FFA treasurer, Christopher Reichard from Franklin County.

Following dinner, prepared by the ladies auxiliary of the Berlin Volunteer Fire Department, guests were introduced and award presentations were made by county FFA advisors.

The Floyd Dye Memorial Trophy for Parliamentary Procedure this year when to the Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA Chapter. Large and impressive, the rotating memorial trophy has been around for nearly 10 years in memory of deceased ag educator Floyd Dye. The award was begun by his surviving wife and daughters to rotate among the county FFA chapters.

Steve Landis of the Brothersvalley Chapter received the production credit check for having the best-kept recordbook for supervised occupation.

Winning the conservation district checks from first to third were David Creamer, Area Vo-Tech School; Eric Landis, Berlin-Brothersvalley; and April Mitchell, Area Vo-Tech School.

County FFA officers received plaques. They were Steve Landis, Tim Mostoller, Kevin Stahl, Travis McKinley, and J.B. Harrold.

Both the basketball and volleyball championship award went to the Meyersdale FFA Chapter.

In creed speaking, FFA junior public speaking, conservation public speaking, extemporaneous public speaking, and FFA public speaking, the first place winners in that order were Jonathan Smiley, Brothersvalley FFA; Debbie Stahl, Somerset FFA; David Creamer, Area Vo-Tech FFA; Jason Baughman and Matthew Welch, Brothersvalley FFA; and Steve Schumuck, Rockwood FFA.

Winners in the Western-Regional Public Speaking Contest were Debbie Stahl, second in the junior; David Creamer, third in conservation; and Jason Baughman and Matthew Welch, first and third in extemporaneous.

Skills judging first place winners were Stephanie Singo, Rockwood FFA in interview; Jeremy Deneen, Area Vo-Tech FFA, in forestry; Jeremy Broadwater, Meyersdale FFA, in livestock; Steve Landis, Brothersvalley FFA, in ag salesmanship; Matt Klejka, Somerset FFA, in tractor driving; Eric Fritz, Area Vo-Tech FFA, in wildlife; Matthew Welch, Brothersvalley FFA in dairy cattle judging; and Brian Hay and Matt Coddington, Somerset FFA, in small gas engines.

Lebanon County Dairy Princess Karen Lentz and her dad, Bob, stand in the meadow with the heifers that they raise.

Life With Lebanon County Dairy Princess Karen Lentz

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Unlike many dairy princesses, Karen Lentz did not grow up wishing for a tiara and banner.

"But when I saw what the reign did for my friends like Becky Sonnen (1988 state dairy princess), Clarinda Leatherman (1988 state alternate) and Terry Hill, (1990 Lebanon County Dairy Princess) I changed my mind," Karen said.

Karen is glad that she did. She was crowned Lebanon County Dairy Princess a year ago and went on to become one of the finalists at the state pageant. More than the tiara and banner, Karen enjoys spending time with the many persons she has met through the program.

Her duties have taught her to become inventive and adaptable such as the time she was helping students make homemade ice cream in coffee cans. Because it was a hot day, the teachers wanted the students to work outside. As the students rolled the cans across the macadam, it became apparent that ice cream was not hardening inside them because the macadam was too warm. Instead of eating ice cream, the children drank "milkshakes."

For the most part, Karen said that her reign has been enjoyable although she had a few moments of panic shortly after she was crowned. While well wishers were congratulating her, the booking chairman thrust a stack of papers to her and said, "Sign this... sign...this...sign this."

"I thought what am I getting myself into"? Karen recalled. As it turned out, Karen wasn't signing away total control of her life as she had feared. Instead, she was signing forms for eligibility to the state pageant.

It was there, that Karen was named one of the seven finalists for the state title, met another contestant who will become her college roommate at Penn State this fall, and established friendships across the state.

Karen lives with her parents Bob and Sandy Lentz. She has a married sister, Brenda, and a brother, David, 20, who is a Penn State student.

The Lentz family moved off their Lebanon County farm in 1987 but continue to raise 20 heifers in the meadow bordering their home. Karen also owns a couple of Holsteins, which she boards with a local farmer.

Although quite active in agricultural events, Karen isn't a "hands on" farm girl. She doesn't like milking or showing cows.

She said, "My brother said that I have some good cows so I should show them. Because I respect his opinion, I did show them, but I don't enjoy showing."

When her brother encouraged her to join the dairy bowl team, sponsored by the Junior Holstein Club, Karen was skeptical. It sounded like a lot of hard work and not much fun. Surprisingly, Karen found out she loved the challenge of memorizing facts and figures about the dairy industry.

"It made it a lot more exciting because my cousin was also a member of the Dairy Bowl team. We were so competitive, we'd go to the practice just to show off to each other," she said.

The competition with other team members spurred her to dedicate six years in Dairy Bowl membership. Her 1990 team won the state dairy bowl title and went on to compete in national competition. Unfortunately, when Karen arrived at the national contest, she and another member were disqualified because the national organization interpreted the age eligibility rules differently than the state does.

Karen is a member of the Junior Advisory Committee for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, secretary of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Club, president for three years of the Norlebco 4-H Dairy Club.

As a senior at Northern Lebanon High School, Karen has been able to arrange her schedule so that she only needs to attend morning classes. Her flexible schedule allows her to take off whenever she has a dairy promotion.

For three years in high school, Karen has been a peer counselor, who tutors students with problems that restrict them for learning. She also is a member of SHADE (Students Helping to Aid the Disabled Elderly) and a member of the National Honor Society.

Before her coronation, Karen expected to become an elementary school teacher. That has changed.

She said, "When I started going into schools for dairy promotion, it wasn't at all like I expected. I don't really like the school atmosphere."

What she does like is radio promotions. Karen does radio spots promoting dairy products for three different stations.

She said, "I had a public speaking class that really helped teach me to talk slower and control voice volume. Doing the spots is my favorite promotion. It's exciting to hear your own voice."

Karen also enjoys singing and has participated in school musicals, chorus, and in the church choir at Mount Zion Road Church of the Brethren.

Karen is employed part time at the Jonestown Food Market and at the Farmers' Wife Restaurant. Recently, she completed a cake decorating class.

Karen spends a few moments with her dog.

Father Labors Through Adoption Process

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISTOWN (Bedford Co.) — When Tom and Lisa Heckman of Lewistown decided to bring a baby boy into their world, they went through the usual expectant parent process, but with a couple of differences.

First, they decided to adopt. From there they planned and waited and waited as most parents do. As time drew near to choose a child, one thing became very clear — only one of them could travel to Romania for their son. After much thought, Tom boarded a plane, along with Rev. Doug Holder, another father-to-be, for what he thought would be a three-week trip. But, as sometimes happens, the process took longer than expected and Tom's stay lasted 4½ weeks. As Tom labored through the slow-paced legal process to adopt their son, an anxious Lisa paced the halls back home.

Tom Heckman told his story to 100 women attending Spring Homemakers Day at Hartman Center, Mifflin County. It was through many miracles that we got our son, he began. "God has helped us." We give all the glory to Him."

When Tom left for Romania on April 21, 1991, little did he know that the son he would be bringing home was born the day before. "I saw him when he was eight days old," Tom reflects.

Tom and Lisa, along with their daughters Courtney, 13, and Brooke, 11, first began searching for a child through U.S. adoption agencies. "In the U.S., if you have children of your own, it's practically impossible to adopt."

Through contacts with doctors and lawyers, the Heckmans then searched a five-county area. Finding little hope, Tom and Lisa, by chance, tuned in to the television program "20/20" which described the problems facing children in Romania. Boarded by Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union, and Hungary, Romania remains a country with one of the lowest standards of living in Europe.

"I had heard of cultural shock and thought I was prepared for it, but I didn't prepare myself enough," Tom explained.

"Under the communist system, all females had to have at least four children, or they were taxed heavily. They wanted to build the population for Romania to become a main power. But most people cannot afford to keep the children. So they would have the children at the hospital and then leave."

That's what happened to a nine-month-old child Tom saw first. But because the parents couldn't be located, adoption was not possible.

"Thank God there was a woman who had a child at home, brought him into the hospital to have him examined and the doctor knew our attorney and told her that this baby will probably be left here because she had three prior children and had left them.

"You have to realize," Tom went on, "these are not terrible people. They're great people, proud people, but if you have no home and absolutely no way to keep a child alive, what would you do? When you know they have at least a 50% chance of surviving in a hospital. Now what I'm saying is that even in the hospital, half of them will die."

When Tom arrived in Tirgu Mures, a city in the center of the country, he and Doug stayed with an upper-middle class family who offered them couches to sleep on, a gas-fired hot water heater beside the tub, and a pull-string toilet. Within a week, Tom saw his 8-day-old son. But he soon learned that each paper to be notarized, each office to be visited, each step of the process took several days. After a while, Tom and Doug learned their system. "A pack of cigarettes and a pen can get you in in half an hour. That's the way you do things there. You give them something for what they're doing and it'll get done a whole lot faster."

After seeing the baby, Tom turned doctor and examined it. The Heckman pediatrician in the U.S. gave Tom a short course in doctoring and a stethoscope. He checked the baby's heart, stomach, glands and liver. As one of the adoption requirements, the baby was tested for AIDS. "When a child became malnourished there, they gave them blood transfusions. That's how AIDS spreads," Tom explained.

Thankful to be together again as a family, Tom and Lisa Heckman stand with their three children, Courtney, 13, Brooke, 11, and Lance, 1. Last year, Tom spent five weeks in Romania to adopt a child. He saw eight-day-old Lance a week after arriving in Romania, then spent 4 weeks working through the adoption process.

Tom and Doug's court procedure followed. "Women are second-class citizens there. When we went through court, the two mothers stood along the wall and we were seated comfortably. Unfortunately they (the women) couldn't help their situation. These two women didn't have jobs or husbands.

"After we went through the court and had legally adopted the children in Romania, we took them to Bucharest and there was a whole page full of requirements that we had to fulfill.

"One was that we had to have that adoption translated from Romanian into English and notorized. We had to have the children examined again. We had to have blood tests. We had to have all these things done before we ever had an appointment at the U.S. Embassy for our visa interview."

During that time the men and children lived in a two-room apartment. Doug adopted a 14-month-old cousin of Tom's baby. Because of the black market for babies Tom and Doug were told not to talk to or trust anyone. In spite of that, the landlord called the police, complete with machine guns, and they needed to present their legal adoption papers as proof.

For the next 2½ weeks, Doug and Tom cared for the children with food, formula and diapers they brought from the U.S. Then came another surprise. Doug was needed at home! "So I was keeping two children alone in an apartment in Bucharest for 5 days," Tom laughed.

During that time, even the most competent parent deserved to worry. "I worried that they would get sick. I saw the drug stores there, the long lines, the ½ hour wait. They mix their own drugs. Thank God neither boy got sick."

Tom arrived back in the U.S. on May 24, 1991. "I know why people kiss the ground when they get home. If I wouldn't have had a suitcase and a baby in my arms, I would have too!" Tom laughed.

Eight days later, on June 1, Romania closed down adoptions.

Lance Heckman, once Szolt (Joseph), is now a healthy one-year-old.

To celebrate his birthday, Tom reread the journal he kept while in Romania and remembers the expectant parent process.

Tom laughs and says "My wife sent me to another country and put me through the labor for our third child. So I'm going to celebrate Mother's Day too!"

Never lacking for love or attention, Lance Heckman spends some time with Dad. Tom says it is hard to believe that one year ago this month, he was in Romania.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

My husband and I both like to go fishing. But, for months something always gets in the way of our taking a day off. Last week we finally set aside one day to go to Opossum Lake in Cumberland Co. The Pennsylvania Fish Commission maintains the area.

As Allen wanted to leave home at 4 a.m. and I thought 6 a.m. was early enough, we compromised and left at 5 a.m. The weather was beautiful and we easily found the lake. Several people were there ahead of us. This time we did not take our boat and so we fished from the shore. It was interesting to watch a loon as it dived for fish. I was amazed at the length of time that it could stay under the water. There were many bright green bullfrogs nearby who entertained us with their deep voices. Even a water snake went swimming by as we caught one pan fish after another and put the smaller ones back. We lost track of the number caught, but we did bring seven home including two catfish that Allen skinned. We hope to go again if we get all of our many gardens in good shape.

I was thoroughly surprised by the Bible Study group that met in our home. As I came into the living room from the kitchen, I found a big basket of gifts setting in front of my chair. They decided to give me a kitchen shower. The gifts included many gadgets that I'd never think to buy for myself plus hand towels, place mats, and a cookbook. They told me they'd done it because I share my garden produce with them in the fall.

Don't Toss Your Old Sewing Machine

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.)— Are you in the market for a new sewing machine? If so, don't toss your old machine, if it's in good working condition. Especially needed are machines with zigzag and button hole capabilities. The Montgomery County 4-H Program is looking for used portable machines that need little or no repairs for 4-H members to use at their sewing club meetings. A new 4-H club in Pottstown is especially in need. Your donation is tax deductible, of course, and you can be sure that it will be used with much pleasure.

If you would like to donate a portable sewing machine (not one in a cabinet) to 4-H, call Helaine Brown, 4-H Agent, at (215) 489-4315. Or drop it off at the Montgomery County 4-H Center, located on Route 113, between Routes 73 and 29, near Skippack.

20th Century Fair Provides 1890 Living History Version

DOVER, Del. — The Delaware Agricultural Museum and Village will present the unique living history event, The Great 1890 Country Fair on Saturday, June 6, from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

In 1793, Delawareans held the State's first country fair in Dover. Following in the tradition of English fairs, the Delaware fair was primarily a showcase for commercial trade exhibits. In the early 19th century, fairs were sponsored by agricultural societies as a means for the farmer to view farming implements, inventions and livestock.

By the late 19th century, the country fair was a major source of entertainment as well as a place to witness agricultural progress. Concerts, puppet shows, bike and foot races, jousting, baseball games and carousels were among the new additions. The fair also attracted the "seamier" side of 19th century life. Gambling, freak shows, medicine man shows, thought readers, and exotic dancers were among the highly criticized fair activities.

The 20th century version of The Great 1890 Country Fair will transport Delaware Agricultural Museum and Village visitors back to the 19th century. The fair will feature bands, a house of wonders, juried animal shows, exhibits of machinery and ladies work, jousting, a caricaturist, political speakers, barkers, jugglers, a Punch and Judy puppet show, exotic dancers, children's games, tableaux, horticultural hall and much, much more. FAIR goers are encouraged to dress in costumes of the period and participate in activities. Box lunches will be on sale throughout the day as will homemade ice cream and confections.

The Great 1890 Country Fair will be held rain or shine. Admission is charged. The Delaware Agricultural Museum and Village is located just south of Delaware State College on Route 13 in Dover. For further information, please call 302-734-1618.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 1

Berks Society 1 of Farm Women met at Agnes Noll's home. Fourteen members attended to celebrate everybody's birthdays. Five dollar gifts were exchanged.

The Sale committee reported good profits from the Delp sale. Members are to provide food for the next sale on June 27 at William Hoffman's.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Dairy Princess

But her primary attention is focused on volleyball competition. For five years, Karen has played for a church and a work league. With games and practices, Karen said that she plays five to six times a week.

"I really love volleyball, and I hope to play for the Lady Lions in college," Karen said.

SHRIMP & SHELL SALAD

1 pound shrimp
8-ounces small pasta shells
¼ cup celery
¼ cup onion
½ cup carrots
1 cup sour cream
1 cup cottage cheese
1 teaspoon seasoned salt with garlic
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook shrimp and shells separately according to package directions. Rinse both with cold water, drain well. Toss with celery, radishes, green pepper, and onion. Combine sour cream, cottage cheese, seasoned salt and pepper. Fold into shrimp mixture. Chill 2 to 3 hours to allow flavors to blend. Serve on salad greens.

4-H HAPPENINGS

4-H'ers From Japan Made Honorary Citizens

Four Japanese 4-H exchange students were extended honorary county citizenship by the Gloucester County, N.J. Board of Chosen Freeholders at their recent meeting.

Last August, four Gloucester County 4-H families welcomed into their homes four Japanese teenagers who would remain until June, the close of the school year.

The Webb family of Thorofare added Keiji Komatubara to their family, the Gostkowski family of Swedesboro added Asuka Imai to their family, the Dwyer family of Swedesboro added Ichiro Miyatahi to their family, and the Lafferty family of Williamstown added Eri Hasegawa to their family.

Throughout the year the exchanges have joined in on 4-H events and meetings and school activities at Kingsway Regional, Delsea Regional, and Williamstown High Schools. They have been Senior 4-H Council members, attended teen conferences, played sports, and marched with the school band. Each has polished English and learned about life in the U.S.

This "year-long" exchange is part of the same LABO exchange program which has brought some 20 young Japanese exchanges to Gloucester County 4-H families for six-weeks each summer.

This summer, for the first time Gloucester County will send three 4-H'ers for a six week stay in Japan. 4-H members Sherri Lafferty of Williamstown, Joe Masciulli of Franklinville, and Nancy Gostkowski of Swedesboro will depart in June for a summer filled with new experiences, understanding, and growth.

Gloucester County will also host exchanges this summer and again over the full year. Anyone interested in this program should contact Judith S. Baillere, Gloucester County 4-H agent, Gloucester County Office Building, N. Delsea Drive, Clayton, NJ 08312 (609) 863-0007.

4-H Kummer Award Presented To Gloucester County 4-H'ers

Jason Buchanan of Williamstown and Jessica Barakat of Sewell walked off with top honors for public presentations at a top scores competition held recently in Clayton.

Senior award winner 14-year-old Buchanan, a member of the Thumper Jumpers Rabbit Club, used live rabbits as he demonstrated how to select a rabbit breed. In the junior division, 12-year-old Barakat showed how to make a flower press.

Both received $50 savings bonds, awarded by the Gloucester County Fair Board in memory of Myrtle Gardler Kummer of Wenonah.

In the junior division, two $5 honorable mention awards were presented to Eric Bramble of Glassboro and Laurie Marini of Sewell.

"Public presentation help boys and girls feel comfortable speaking on their feet. It is one of the many skills so needed for success in our complex society," said Judith Baillere, Gloucester County 4-H agent.

Franklin 4-H Shepherds

The Franklin County 4-H Shepherds met recently at the 4-H Center, where their monthly topic was internal and external parasites and the treatments for each.

An announcement was made that Rachel Coady, Spring Run, received a Keystone Award for her work in the 4-H Bread Project. She was interviewed at Penn State to determine if she will be eligible for a trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

Roadside trash was collected by members of the club at their designated locations in Path Valley and in Cumberland Valley during April.

The club voted to make arrangements for a visit to the farm of Richard Fulton, St. Thomas, to see his flock of rare Wiltshire Horn sheep. Information will be given to the members about this unusual breed of sheep before the tour.

Final suggestions were made concerning the purchasing of market lambs for this year's project. Weighing and ear tagging of the lambs will be held at the farm of club leader Elisabeth Keener on Tuesday, May 25. Members will again be participating in the Agway feed program for their market lambs. Summer meeting plans and roundup announcements will be given at the May meeting.

4-H Family Fun Night

Adams County 4-H members had an exciting time at the 1992 4-H Family Fun Night.

The "Sneakers" theme added to an exciting evening of fun. Amy Miller, president of 4-H Senate (an organized group of teens), started the evening with a welcome and introduced the six different groups. The groups were named after different brands of sneakers and all 4-H'ers participating were to wear their favorite pair of sneakers.

Teens served as counselors for the activities and included Beth Green, Gettysburg; Rich Williams, New Oxford; Deb Wilkinson, Gettysburg; Brandy Haines, New Oxford; Beau Ramsburg, Gettysburg; Charity Noel, New Oxford; Jakob Chronister, York Springs; Marci James, Gettysburg; Laura Cunningham, Biglerville; Travis Green, Gettysburg; Roxanne Ruhlman, York Springs; Mitchell Brannen, Cashtown; Irene Yelovich, Fairfield; Brandi Cook, New Oxford; Karen King, York Springs; Sadie Bucher, New Oxford; and Daryll Gebhart, Cashtown. This group of teens provided leadership for the evening and helped everyone feel welcome in the 4-H program.

The fun really began with the wide variety of games the teens had planned. Everything from a "Banana Race," a game to see which group can eat their banana collectively first, to "Brussel Sprouts" highlighted the evening of fun. Emily Miller, New Oxford; Denise Green, Gettysburg; Brandy Carey, York Springs; Sonja Smith, Gettysburg; Amy Miller, New Oxford; and Abe Bucher, New Oxford provided leadership for the games. The other games included "Steal the Sticks," "Human Scavanger Hunt," "To Tell the Truth," and "I Love Ya Honey." The evening ended with teens leading songs. Refreshments were served by the York Springs 4-H Club.

4-H HAPPENINGS

4-H Equestrian Of Year

Recently, Nadia Malyk was crowned 4-H Equestrian of Gloucester County, N.J. by the 1991 4-H Equestrian Allison Schomber.

Nadia is the daughter of Walter and Katherine Malyk of Newfield, N.J.

She is 15 years old and a teen leader in Show Um Blue 4-H Club. She has been enrolled in the 4-H program for 6 years.

Nadia shows both English and Western and has been involved with Horse Bowl and horse judging. She has participated in junior leadership and has given county presentations.

Nadia has received county medals in various projects. She is a freshman at Vineland High School and is involved in Key Club and S.H.A.P.E. (Students Helping Animals, Plants, and The Environment).

Runnerup for the 1992 crown is Miss Deborah DeEugenio of Glassboro, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Lewis DeEugenio and currently vice president of Blue Ribbon Riders 4-H Club.

Also competing was Miss April Harris of Washington Township and Miss Kelly Brooks of Berlin.

Three-year-old Rachael Schuster came nose to nose with this sheep at the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival. The 19th annual Festival drew record crowds to see more than 700 sheep entered in competition. Held at the Howard County Fairgrounds, the Festival included a sheepdog demonstration, the Maryland Grand Lamb Competition, shearing, weaving, contests, and crafts and wares from exhibitors and vendors. The Maryland Festival, held on the first weekend of May every year, attracts sheep breeders from all over the United States since it is the largest event of its kind in the country.

The judge for the contest was Mrs. Rosemary Hughes of Williamstown.

The 4-H equestrian is selected for 4-H knowledge and activities, poise, personality, and oral presentations.

N.J.J.P.H.A. News

The N.J.J.P.H.A. would like to thank Howard Hoffman of Dunwalke Farm for taking the time out of his busy day and having explained a good nutrition program for their animals and going over E.P.D.'s. The field trip took place recently.

Ball Appointed 4-H Agent

Celeste A. Ball, Gilbertsville, asumed the position of extension agent - 4-H Agriculture with Penn State Cooperative Extension Bucks County recently.

Ball attended Lehigh County Community College and earned a bachelor of science degree from Penn State University in agricultural education. She has served as an adult education instructor at Lehigh County Area Vocational Technical School and Boyertown YMCA in landscaping, floral design, and horticulture.

From 1980 to 1985, she was manager of Tilley's Nursery in Coopersburg. She was active in FFA, Collegiate 4-H, Coaly Society, and President of Alpha Tau Alpha honorary fraternity. She is a Girl Scout leader and a Sunday school teacher.

Ball will conduct and organize comprehensive extension educational agricultural programs for youth in Bucks County. She will be responsible for recruiting and training 4-H volunteer adult leaders, teen leaders, and youth.

County Extension Director Kay M. Hastings said, "Celeste Ball is a well-qualified individual with a variety of professional and volunteer experiences. Penn State Cooperative Extension Bucks County and our 4-H youth program welcome her as a member of our extension team."

4-H Beef Club

The Lancaster County 4-H Beef Club met Wednesday, May 6, at 7 p.m. at the Larry High residence.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Dwaine Livengood, followed by the 4-H Pledge led by Jay Hess.

The club discussed the 4-H Beef Roundup, which will be held on Friday, August 14, at the West Lampeter Fairgrounds in conjunction with the Lancaster County 4-H Fair. Members must turn in an up-to-date project record book when their steers are weighed in order to show at the roundup.

Members were also reminded that all steers going to the Pennsylvania Farm Show must be nose printed before June 1.

The club's program for the evening was a showmanship demonstration given by Dwain Livengood, Lori Harnish, and Casey High. Chet Hughes gave a demonstration on how to nose print a steer, and Jay Hess and Dwain Livengood showed how to tie a rope halter.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, June 3, at 6:30 p.m., at the West Lampeter Fairgrounds. The club will have an ice cream social with the 4-H Sheep and Swine clubs, along with a livestock judging contest and a garage sale of project equipment. Anyone who needs project equipment may find what they need at the garage sale.

Anyone who has equipment they no longer need, and would like to put it on the sale and support the beef, sheep, or swine clubs, please contact one of the leaders or Chet Hughes at the extension office, (717) 394-6851.

Ideas For Using Yogurt

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Eat it for breakfast, lunch, or dinner. Eat it between meals. Eat it at home or carry it to work or school - it's portable and convenient. It's centuries old, yet consumer acceptance has allowed the dairy product to grow in popularity. Babies eat it, and so do children and adults. It's nutritious. It's delicious. It's yogurt!

Yogurt, which is a cultured dairy product, is available plain, with flavorings such as vanilla, lemon, and coffee, or with fruit and fruit preserves. Special bacterial cultures added to milk thicken it and produce an acid that gives yogurt its charisteristic tang.

From a nutritional standpoint, yogurt is a good source of riboflavin, protein, and the other nutrients found in milk. One of yogurt's strongest assets is its calcium content. Just one cup of plain lowfat yogurt provides over half of the recommended amount of calcium needed by an adult. With today's emphasis on more calcium in the diet, yogurt is a quick and convenient way to meet calcium needs.

The fat content of yogurt is the same as the milk used to make the product. For example, an 8-ounce serving of yogurt made from whole milk contains 8 grams of fat. If fat is an issue, buy the kinds labeled "lowfat" or "nonfat." Lowfat plain yogurt provides only 4 grams of fat per 8-ounce serving, while nonfat yogurt checks in at 0 grams. Either variety will easily fit into a low fat diet.

For people who have trouble digesting lactose, the sugar in milk, yogurt with "active cultures" provides an added benefit. Once digested, these cultures provide their own enzymes to digest lactose. To get the maximum benefit, buy and use yogurt before the expiration date.

In addition to its nutritional benefits, yogurt is ideal for cooking. Mixed with other foods or ingredients, yogurt enhances flavor. Enjoy the taste of yogurt — try the following:

- Combine flavored yogurt with whipped cream or cream cheese to create toppers for summer desserts such as cobblers, crisps, pies, and buckles.

- Top waffles and pancakes with fruited yogurt or fill crepes with yogurt and garnish with fresh fruit.

- Use flavored yogurt as a base for fruit dips or combine with milk and fruit for a refreshing beverage.

- Layer yogurt with your favorite cereal and fruit for a breakfast parfait.

- For a nutritious frozen treat, combine a 6-ounce can of juice concentrate with 2 cups of plain yogurt and freeze in molds or paper cups.

- Top vegetables such as broccoli, asparagus, or a baked potato with plain yogurt and sprinkle with fresh dill or chives. A tablespoon of plain yogurt has less than 10 calories.

- Coat skinless chicken breasts with a mixture of plain yogurt, garlic powder, celery seeds, and sesame seeds and bake.

While it's good right out of the carton, yogurt's versatility adds to meals and snacks. Keep a carton or two in the refrigerator. And remember . . . don't leave the grocery store without it!

FFA HAPPENINGS

Jost To Lead National FFA Conference

Liz Jost of Washington, N.J. has been selected as a member of the 1992-1993 FFA Made For Excellence staff.

Jost, 20, served as the New Jersey state FFA president and was involved in numerous leadership development activities. She earned the American FFA Degree in 1991.

Jost is currently a sophomore at Ohio State University majoring in agricultural communications. She is the daughter of Stephen and Susan Jost and was a member of the Warren Hills FFA chapter.

Made For Excellence is a personal development seminar designed to help students from across the country to learn techniques for dealing with peer pressure and on how to set and achieve goals. The two-day conference also featres attitude workshops that are designed to help members achieve "gold medal" success in life. The 1992-1993 theme is "The Olympic Challenge" and a portion of the registration fee will be donated to the United States Olympic Team.

Thirty-eight MFE conferences were held in 31 states during the 1991-1992 school year.

GEHL

Gehl Skid Loaders Win Hands Down

Precise bucket and drive control is easy with Gehl's exclusive Load-Trak T-bar hand controls.

Performance features include

- Tilt-back cab - Provides easy engine access for servicing
- Quick-Lock attachment system - For fast attachment changes
- Eight models - With SAE operating capacities from 750 to 2,050 lbs. to meet your needs
- A choice of gas or diesel engines - Rated from 20 to 60 horsepower
- Large selection of attachments - Means versatility

Common Sense Mower Conditioners

Gehl mower conditioners are "common sense" machines because they're packed with sensible features. Gehl pull-type sicklebar mower conditioners are built to give you fast cutting and conditioning for quick crop dry-down.

- Full-width intermeshing conditioning rolls with intermittent ribs deliver thorough, uniform conditioning.
- Simple sickle drive with pivot-arm design provides more cutting force.
- Fewer moving parts than competitive models for worry-free performance.
- Three-point flotation support protects the cutterbar from rocks and uneven terrain.
- Two models with 7-foot and 9-foot cutting widths available.

Of 132 Acre +/- York County Farm

Saturday, June 13, 1992 12:00 Noon

Located on Salt Lake Rd., Fawn Grove, Pa. In Fawn Township, York County.

This high quality farm consists of approximately 90 tillable acres, 10 acres of mature woodland and the balance pasture and buildings, spring fed stream runs through the pasture. Improvements include a well kept Cape Cod Style home with living room, dining room, modern kitchen and 2 bedrooms with FHA heating system and is in nice condition. The farm buildings include a 53'x58' bank barn with attached 17'x24' milk house. (Milk tank stays). Also a 31'x45' carriage shed, 26'x60' corn and wagon shed, 27'x45' machinery building, hog pen, smoke house and other typical farm buildings. 200 year old log and stone house in poor condition.

This lovely farm has not had animals on it for a few years and the grass is tall. If you are looking for a farm for dairy, beef or general crops here is a rare opportunity. The land is gently rolling high state of cultivation. Soil map shows the tillabe acreage to be mostly all CHESTER SILT LOAM and GLENELG CHANNERY SILT LOAM. Zoned agriculture.

Outstanding investment potential, this farm borders the Mason-Dixon line. It has approximately one-half mile of road frontage. It has never been subdivided and carries the full building right allowance and is not in Clean and Green.

Whatever your interests are this farm is sure to please you. Farms like this rarely hit the open market. Growing crops are reserved.

REAL ESTATE Selling At 7:30 P.M.

PARCEL 1- contains 5.434 acres of gently sloping woodland. The mature Pine and Hemlock trees, make a beautiful setting for a cabin or home. The two never failing springs, not only act as a drawing card for wildlife, but also offer potential for a small pond. This parcel offers 100' of road frontage on Rt. 385 and passed tests for an on lot sewage system.

PARCEL 2- contains 8.409 acres and offers over 840' combined road frontage on Rts. SR3004 & T-385. This parcel is all cleared land and offers a nice building site w/on lot sewage test.

PARCEL 3- contains approx. 3 acres and offers over 500' combined road frontage on Rts. SR3004 & T-385. This parcel has a 2 story log home w/kitchen, dining room, parlor, and large family room on the first floor and 5 bedrooms on the second floor. The hand hued logs are exposed inside to show the craftsmanship of our forefathers. The summer kitchen w/ stone fireplace and attached woodshed offers a wide variety of uses. A small stream running thru this property adds the finishing touch to the peaceful country setting.

PLEASE NOTE: PARCELS 2 AND 3 WILL BE OFFERED SEPARATELY AND THEN AS ONE UNIT.

IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR A WEEKEND RETREAT OR PERMANENT COUNTRY LIVING, BE SURE TO SEE ANY ONE OF THESE PARCELS. Ph. 717-536-3382 or 243-0538 or 567-3540 for appointment.

Super All Traction 23°

R-1

- New top-of-line bias-ply tractor rear, featuring our long bar/long bar design for tread stability, and heavy bar bracing to extend tread life.
- Long wearing and smooth riding, due to the more uniform, flatter contour of the long bar/long bar design.
- Proven 23° bar angle for traction and open center for self-cleaning.
- Bead and rim protector shields the rim to help keep stubble and soil from getting between the bead and rim flange.

Pesticide Users More Concerned About Safety

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Surveys conducted at recent pesticide training conferences indicate that certified pesticide applicators in Pennsylvania are growing more concerned about using agricultural chemicals safely, said a safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The Agricultural Chemical Safety Compliance Conferences, held in Gettysburg, Butler, and Kennett Square during February and March, were attended by 451 pesticide applicators. Each participant was eligible for at least six pesticide update credits necessary to maintain a pesticide applicator license.

Participants were asked about their pesticide safety attitudes and practices, including whether they would have attended the meetings if no pesticide certification credits were offered.

"More than 60 percent of the respondents said they would have attended the safety conferences even without the credits," said Sam Steel, senior research associate in agricultural and biological engineering and director of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council, which sponsored the conferences.

"This is a tremendous change from 20 years ago, when certification was first mandated. Then, applicators came to conferences because they had no choice. Now they come because they are concerned about using chemicals safely."

When asked about their knowledge of pesticide labels, only 4 percent of conference attendees felt that their understanding level was deficient.

"That's good news," Steel said. "However, a question on recognizing pesticide poisoning symptoms did raise concern. Almost one-third of the respondents acknowledged that they may have difficulty recognizing poisoning symptoms. If something happens in the field, applicators need to identify symptoms quickly. It could mean the difference between life or death."

Steel and conference evaluator Dr. Joe Miller, associate professor of health education at Penn State, also asked conference participants about their use of personal protective equipment.

"Although 53 percent reported that they 'always' use some form of protective gear, another 40 percent said they use it 'sometimes' or 'never'," Steel said. "That's too high. This response shows that greater emphasis should be placed on extension education and private sector initiatives on personal protective equipment use, storage and maintenance."

The Agricultural Chemical Safety Compliance Conferences were cosponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, and Agway, Inc.

Information on pesticide safety and future training sessions is available from the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-7710.

Butler Area Goat Show Held

NEW CASTLE (Lawrence Co.) — Three hundred and fifty dairy goats were on exhibition May 16 and 17 during the Butler Area Dairy Goat Association Show at the Lawrence County Fairgrounds.

GCH Inspiration Pipit's Emily, an Alpine owned by Stephen Jones of Loraine County, Ohio was the best senior doe in show on Saturday.

Wits End Lovelace, another Alpine also owned by Stephen Jones, was the best senior doe on Sunday.

Washoe Zephyr Zenith's Zodiak, an Alpine buck owned by Stephen Jones, was the best buck in show. Best junior doe in show Saturday was an Oberhasli, Little Caprinia LA Rugby, owned by Heather Glennon of Cumberland County.

Best junior doe in show Sunday was a Nubian, Pitchin-Pines Lolita, owned by Nanci Jo Kingrey of Clark County, Ohio.

In Saturday's showmanship contest, winners were novice-Vicky Fields, Lawrence County; junior-Kassy Snyder, Perry County; intermediate-Josh Kingrey, Clark County, Ohio; and senior-Nona Rosen, Beaver County.

The judge for Saturday's show was Pat Hendrickson of Napavine, Wash. Freda Bruck of Zimmerman, Minn. was the judge Sunday.

CLINICAL SIGNS OF MYCOTOXICOSES IN POULTRY

Dept. of Veterinary Science

The importance of mycotoxins as causes of health problems in poultry has been recognized for some time.

In fact, study of mycotoxicology began as the result of a mysterious "new" disease, known as Turkey "X" Disease, which resulted in devastating losses of turkeys and other livestock in England in 1960.

The problem was traced to aflatoxin-contaminated peanut meal that had been imported from Brazil. Since then, much discussion and many research trials have taken place.

In a "Poultry Pointers" column in the September 21, 1991 Lancaster Farming, Dr. Andy Yersin described what mycotoxins are and how they are produced by contaminating fungi on field crops and stored grains and feeds. Also stressed was the importance of feed quality assurance and management factors on the farm to reduce the probability of a mycotoxin-induced disease.

Today's column will list several specific mycotoxins that are known to affect poultry and what clinical signs they may produce.

It should be noted that most of the research on the toxins has been performed on chickens and is not always applicable to other types of poultry.

1. Aflatoxin. This compound has multiple systemic effects in the bird. Ingesting of the toxin leads to decreased strength of body tissues, especially the walls of small blood vessels. The result is an increased susceptibility to bruising, even under normal handling conditions. Increased condemnations are seen at the processing plant due to bruised legs and thighs. Normal digestion is impaired so that less vitamins, protein, and energy contained in the ration are available to the bird. This results in decreased growth, poor feathering, and an increased tendency to develop vitamin/mineral deficiency diseases such as rickets.

Aflatoxin also depresses the immune system. Increased secondary infections and vaccine failures are seen as consequences. Changes in serum composition and blood cell function are common. Therapeutic drugs are less effective. Changes in the performance of breeder chickens occur at higher levels of aflatoxin, and are mostly due to decreased feed consumption. Decreases in body weight, egg production, egg weight, and hatchability are seen. Fortunately, aflatoxin residues in eggs are extremely low to nondetectable, even at very high levels of feed contamination.

2. T-2 toxin, Diacetoxyscirpenol (DAS). These two compounds belong to a very large group of toxins known as tricothecenes. They are potent contact irritants to the skin and mucous membranes, causing inflammation of tissues in the mouth and corners of the beak. The mouth ulcers are painful, and declining feed consumption results. Nervous signs such as overreaction to stimuli (sudden loud noises) have been reported. Signs of poor nutrition results from poor feed consumption as well as a decreased ability to synthesize necessary body-building proteins. Poor feathering, decreased body weight, decreased egg production, and thin egg shells are noted.

3. Ochratoxin. This chemical is extremely toxic at very low levels. It primarily affects the kidneys. Kidney cells are destroyed and the body's ability to excrete waste products is diminished.

Growing poultry have decreased weight gain. Breeders experience drops in egg production, and egg shells become thin and rubbery. There is increased staining of the shells because of "sticky" urates in the droppings. Mortality results from kidney failure in the worst cases.

4. Oosporein. This toxin also causes changes in the kidney. Deposition of urates in the body cavity and joints ("gout") results. Various digestive organs become enlarged.

5. Citrinin. Citrinin causes a dramatic increase in water consumption, leading to watery droppings. This symptom disappears quickly with removal of the toxin, and kidneys are not permanently damaged. Growth depression occurs only at very high levels.

6. Fusarochromanone. A high incidence of tibial dyschondroplasia (TD) in growing birds has been induced by this toxin. TD is a condition in which a cartilage plug persists in the growth plates of bones. Lameness and bone deformities result.

7. Fumonisin. This toxin is fairly new and its effects on poultry are unclear. There are some reports of an association with spiking mortality at 10-14 days of age in broilers.

8. Deoxynivalenol (DON, Vomitoxin). Although known to have marked effects on other livestock, DON has not been shown to cause problems in poultry. It belongs in the tricothecene group of toxins but does not have the caustic effects of T-2 and DAS. DON is used as a "marker" toxin by feed companies because it is often fairly easy to detect. Its presence indicates that Fusarium mold has grown in the feedstuffs and that other tricothecenes may be present.

9. Zearalenone (F-20). F-2 toxin is believed to have no adverse effects on poultry. It is also used as a marker toxin for analytical purposes.

In summary, several general points about mycotoxicoses in poultry should be made.

First, subtle effects on performance and condemnations are much more common than dramatic mortality from mycotoxicoses.

Second, there are differences in susceptibility to given levels of mycotoxins among birds based on species and age. Ducks are very sensitive, turkeys are intermediate, and chickens are somewhat less sensitive. Young, fast growing birds are more sensitive than mature birds.

Last, mycotoxins and their clinical effects are very complex. Much of the new research is being directed toward interactions of mycotoxins with other mycotoxins, with feed ingredients and additives, and with infectious disease agents.

Control Parasites For Summer Herd Health

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — As summer nears, the potential for parasite infection in your cattle herd increases, especially in areas where grazing seasons are lengthy. These parasites include roundworms, liver flukes, tapeworms, and single-celled parasites (Coccidia).

Recognition of the presence of internal parasites, their life cycles, and means of infection are keys to controlling and preventing these dollar-robbing organisms.

It is impossible to prevent parasite infection. However, infection control easily fits into herd health programs. Keeping risks of infections as low as possible minimizes interference with production and helps maintain profit in the herd.

Dr. John Hough, director of education and research for the American Polled Hereford Association, said effective parasite control must be looked at as an integration of several components rather than a single approach. This philosophy is applicable to all herds in all regions of the country.

"Grazing management, quality dewormer products, and enhancing a herd's ability to resist infection are the key components to a cost-effective parasite prevention and control program," said Hough.

Grazing Management — Caution should be observed as to which pastures are grazed by different age classes. Pastures considered to have the lowest levels of contamination should be reserved for younger, more susceptible stock. Since younger cattle generally have higher levels of infection and produce heavy pasture contamination, one group of young stock should not follow another. Reducing pasture contamination can be accomplished by grazing a plot exclusively by dry cows, resting pastures planted in annual forages, and frequent treatment with dewormers.

Dewormers — Many high-quality, efficient dewormer products are available. However, the tendency is to consider dewormers as the major means of control to the exclusion of good management and nutrition. The primary purpose of dewormers is not to cure sick animals, but to reduce levels of pasture contamination and prevent episodes of illness and reduced productivity. Reducing contamination is best accomplished by systematic timing of dewormer use in conjunction with management.

Enhancing herd resistance — After a year of age, cattle can develop resistance to several parasites.

"The best possible level of nutrition is a key factor in providing resistance development," said Hough. "Pasture fertilization, weed control, using adapted forages, and maintaining good stocking rates provide excellent nutrition.

Aphids Invade Area Fields, Gardens

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Cool weather this spring throughout Maryland and the Mid-Atlantic area has upset normal patterns in the world of plants, insects, and plant diseases.

Pest management and plant pathology specialists for the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources, note that growth of most plants — even in greenhouses — is behind normal for this time of year.

Below-normal temperatures also have kept populations of many insect pests and plant disease organisms in check. For example, light-trap catches of flying insects during April by the Maryland Department of Agriculture were at a record low for the month, according to Galen P. Dively, integrated pest management specialist for the cooperative extension service.

But aphids thrive during cool spring weather, Dr. Dively said, partly because many of their natural enemies need warm weather to multiply rapidly.

As a result, pea aphids are running rampant in some alfalfa fields and devasting young peas in both home gardens and commercial plantings. And a Maryland outbreak of the blue alfalfa aphid — common in the West — has been found for the first time in the Northeast.

Another tiny insect pest, the flea beetle, is causing damage to susceptible varieties of early-planted sweet corn, Dively reported at a plant clinic luncheon meeting on May 5 in Easton for extension agricultural agents and nutrient management consultants on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Flea beetle populations were at record-high levels last year, he noted, and mild weather this past winter did little to cut back their survival rates.

Aphids weaken plants by sucking out nutrients, and flea beetles cause damage by chewing. But both insects also are notorious transmitters of certain plant diseases. Examples are Stewart's bacterial wilt of sweet corn, spread by flea beetles, and barley yellow dwarf virus, spread by aphids.

Planting resistant varieties of sweet corn is the best defense against against Stewart's bacterial wilt. Yellow cultivars generally are more resistant than white varieties. A complete list is available from cooperative extension service offices throughout Maryland.

The recommended threshold level for insecticide application to control aphids in alfalfa fields is reached when populations exceed 5 to 10 aphids per plant, or 50 aphids per sweep with an insect net during plant growth from the tenth internode to first bloom. No spraying should be done within one week of harvest.

The threshold level for foliar application of chemicals to control flea beetles in sweet corn is reached when 5 percent or more of the plants are infested. Repeat application every three to five days if beetle activity remains high.

Threshold levels are considerably lower in situations where there is a danger of the insects spreading disease to susceptible plant varieties. Weeds in surrounding fields often are a reservoir from which flea beetles spread the wilt virus to susceptible sweet corn cultivars.

For recommendations on which pesticides to use, consult any county office of the cooperative extension service. Home gardeners in Maryland may call Extension's Home and Garden Information Center at (800) 342-2507.

Contests Focus On Marketing Lean Hogs

DES MOINES, Iowa — Hundreds of pork producers and their families will again be able to compete for a new Ford pickup truck in the Lean Value Contest, sponsored by "Hogs Today" magazine, to be held during World Pork Expo on June 5-7 here at the Iowa State Fairgrounds.

Contest participants will evaluate several classes of market hogs based on how many pounds of lean meat that will result from the hogs. The participant who most accurately ranks the hogs in all the classes will win the new truck donated by Purina Mills. Other prizes will include a 2,250-gallon vacuum manure spreader from Balzer Manufacturing, a $2,000 credit on a Bobcat loader from the Melroe Company, 100 feet of FLEX-AUGER® from Chore-Time Equipment, 100 feet of fence panels from Sand Livestock Equipment, and five $100 cash prizes sponsored by Walnut Grove Products. International guests and youth under 18 years of age also will have opportunities to win cash prizes.

"This contest helps emphasize the importance of producers evaluating the leanness of the animals they are producing to further ensure all of the pork products that reach the consumer are in fact as lean as possible," said Rodney Goodwin, National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) research director. A new aspect of the lean value contest this year will be the "I sold the best" contest. The contest will display and compare the many grade and yield, or carcass-merit buying programs, now offered in the industry.

To enter the contest, producers will need to sell a load of at least 20 hogs; send the original grade and yield report sheet to NPPC; and be sure the report sheet includes backfat measurements, carcass weight, premiums, and prices paid.

A customized computer program will be used to calculate a standard percent lean for each entry so that the various buying programs can be analyzed. The producer whose grade and yield sheets show the largest standardized percent lean will receive an ultrasound backfat probe. The producer who has the largest dollar premium will also receive prizes.

Entries may be sent to NPPC, Rodney Goodwin, Box 10383, Des Moines, IA 50306. Entries will be accepted through June 2.

14 Classic Tractors In 1993 Calendar

WILMINGTON, Del.— The 1993 Classic Tractor Calendar, produced by Du Pont Agricultural Products, will feature 14 meticulously restored antique farm tractors, all 50 years old or older. This will be the fourth such calendar; others were issued in 1990, 1991, and 1992.

The "final 14" tractors were selected from hundreds of entries submitted to Du Pont by antique tractor collectors and restorers in all parts of the U.S. and Canada.

On the 1993 calendar, there will be two tractors featured from Indiana, Ohio and Iowa, and one each from Nebraska, South Dakota, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, North Dakota and Tennessee, plus a Canadian tractor from Ontario.

"Our popular calendar not only promotes our soybean herbicide, Classic, but it has won the hearts of farmers and former farmers everywhere," said Ran Langille, manager of Du Pont's soybean business team. "Our first calendar has already become a much sought-after collector's item. Many of our customers have saved all three calendars and are looking forward to next year's edition."

Here are the tractors and their owners selected for the 1993 Du Pont Classic Tractor Calendar:

Year	Tractor Make	Owner and Address
1938	Graham-Bradley	Vern Anderson, Lincoln, NE
1910	Pioneer	Irvin King, Artesian, SD
1917	Mogul (IH)	Roger Schnell, Franklin Grove, IL
1930	Minneapolis-Moline	Dale Nafe, Pierson, IA
1938	John Deere	Ed Brenner, Kensington, OH
1937	Allis-Chalmers	Steve Rosenboom, Pomeroy, IA
1939	Cletrac	Wilbur Lutz, Sinking Spring, PA
1929	Case	David Erb, Vinton, OH
1931	Rumley	Norman Steinman, Bourbon, IN
1936	Oliver Hart-Parr	Jean Olson, Chatfield, MN
1909	Ford	Roland Spenst, Alsen, ND
1942	Silver King	Perry Jennings, Decatur, TN
1929	Cockshutt Hart-Parr	Richard Brown, Ontario, Canada
1939	John Deere	Robert Waits, Rushville, IN

GRAHAM-BRADLEY

This sporty-looking tractor was sold by Sears-Roebuck & Co., and you could order it from the catalogue in 1938. Its 6-cylinder engine produced 20 hp at the drawbar and 28 hp on the pulley. Headlights, electric battery start, PTO, hydraulic lift, and rubber tires were standard equipment. The 1938 Graham-Bradley is just one of the 14 vintage farm tractors scheduled for the 1993 Classic Tractor Calendar, produced by Du Pont Agricultural Products, maker of "Classic" herbicide for soybeans. (For information call, toll free, 1-800-527-2601.

Besides the 1993 calendar, Du Pont Agricultural Products will again produce a videotape of the owners describing the unique features of their tractors, how they restored them, and historic tidbits.

"It's a piece of Americana, a vital and living link to the early part of this century," said Langille. "As a new century nears, we will be even more cognizant of the role the farm tractor has played in making the American farmer the most productive in history."

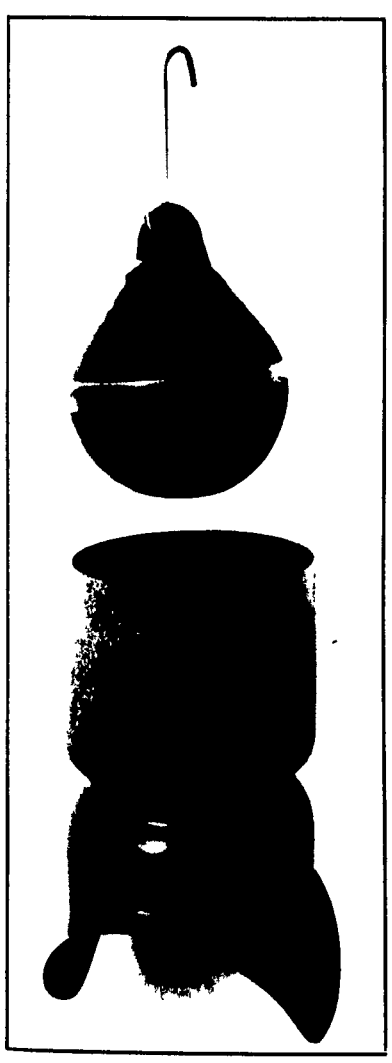
PULL PLUG DRAINS LEAKING?
TRI-COUNTY HAS THE SOLUTION!



APOLLO BALL

This convenient plug for hog manure drains makes a non-leaking seal on the clean-out drain in pull-plug manure systems. It is a major improvement over leaky, concrete plugs.

Sold as a plug and pipe adapter set, the Apollo Ball is a thick, industrial-grade rubber ball that fits into a specially made PVC socket. The ball is filled with sand, which gives it weight but leaves it pliable for a very reliable seal. Molded into its top is a sturdy ring, and attached to this ring is a stainless steel rod with a loop on the end. To open the drain for pen cleaning, you can easily use a simple long-handled hook to catch this loop and lift the ball from its socket.

The socket into which the Apollo Ball Plug seals can be installed on any 8" PVC drain pipe. And in new construction of hog barns, it can be easily included in poured concrete flooring.

Also can be adapted to 6" PVC drains.

The new Ford New Holland Model 412 Discbine® mower-conditioner is an aggressive hay maker for difficult cutting conditions. The 9-foot 9-inch unit features adjustable flail-type conditioning for grass, cereal, and sudan-sorghum forages. Conditioning action can be reduced for forage mixtures with legumes. Crops are deposited in wide swaths or narrower windrows.

New Mower-Conditioner From Ford New Holland

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new New Holland Model 412 Discbine® mower-conditioner from Ford New Holland cuts a 3-meter swath, conditions it with spirally mounted free-swinging flails, and deposits the crop in a wide swath or narrow windrow.

"This is an aggressive hay maker," said Ford New Holland Product Manager Joe Weicksel. "The 3-meter wide disc cutterbar figures out to a 9'9" cut. It is built for forage producers who grow more grass than legumes. Grass crops frequently tend to be wetter in the stubble area and can cause slow-down or plugging for a sickle-type mower. But the discs slice right on through for non-stop mowing. The '412' flail-type conditioner is especially effective in grass."

The "412" flails lift the crop from the cutterbar and force it through the fingers of the conditioning comb and transverse conditioning channels in the conditioner hood. The channels and conditioning comb retard crop flow for more aggressive conditioning on grasses, cereals, and sudan-sorghum hybrids that have a heavy waxy cuticle surface.

Scuffing the microscopic outer wax layer speeds water loss for quicker curing. The conditioning and the conditioner comb can be moved up, out of the crop flow to reduce leaf loss in legumes and forage mixtures with legumes.

"It's important to understand conditioning action and to choose a machine for the crop," Weicksel said. "There's no question that our Chevron design rubber roll-type conditioners are both gentler and more effective on leafy legumes. That makes them a best-choice in straight alfalfa. Intermeshing roll-type conditioners function well on grasses, too. But the more aggressive conditioning of the '412' heat-treated steel flails is fine for grass and speeds curing. The design is more economical to manufacture so machine cost is reduced."

The "412" disc mower-conditioner with flail conditioning is especially effective in thick stands of grasses cut from fertilized pastures and meadows.

Accepts V.P. Position

YORK (York Co.) — Richard A. Ringer has accepted the position of assistant vice president, credit, for York Farm Credit in the Chambersburg Branch Office, according to Duane Bosler, vice president.

Ringer is a native of Preston County, W. Va., and attended West Virginia University majoring in animal science. He has been active in vocational agriculture and was awarded the State Farmer Degree by the FFA.

He held several positions with Commercial Credit Corporation, and was branch manager prior to being employed by the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore in 1978. Service with Farm Credit includes positions of senior credit officer of credit reviews and assistant vice president, credit services, in the handling of distressed loan accounts in the Baltimore district. Prior to his move to Chambersburg with his wife, Sharoyn, he was employed as a commercial loan officer by Farm Credit in Florida.

Westfalia Sets Dairyplan Seminar

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Free to the first 50 callers, Westfalia is holding a dinner seminar here at the Holiday Inn on Tuesday, June 9 at 6:45 p.m.

If you are really serious about the management capabilities of a computer and the Westfalia Dairyplan software, contact Bob Turner at (717) 677-9301 now and register for this presentation.

Westfalia will have Gary Knode, software technician from the Westfalia home office in Illinois available for questions and answers.

The seminar will open with dinner and a slide/overhead presentation from Knode. After dinner, questions will be taken from the floor.

The seminar will end at 8:30 p.m. Call for reservations - only the first 50 people will be accommodated.

The new Model 166 windrow inverter from Ford New Holland fluffs and inverts windrows for quicker drying. It can also merge pairs of windrows up to 16 feet to cut baler or chopper field travel in half. "The time saved is important to dairymen," said Product Manager Joe Weicksel, "because it always seems to be time to start milking before the hay is all baled."

Inverter Merges 12-Foot Windrows

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)— The new New Holland Model 166 windrow inverter from Ford New Holland inverts windrows for quick drying. It can also merge two windrows for double-up chopping or baling.

"Quick, gentle windrow inversion is a real plus for higher quality hay in both humid and arid area alfalfa production," said Product Manager Joe Weicksel of Ford New Holland.

The Model 166 inverter gently turns windrows upside-down for final curing. In dry, irrigated areas, windrow inversion avoids the excessive leaf loss associated with raking dry alfalfa.

In rainier areas, the extra curing time saved by fluffing and inverting a partly-cured windrow is even more critical. Inverting puts the damp, lower half of the windrow up into the air and sunlight so baling can start hours sooner. The time saved makes it easier to finish baling ahead of the next shower.

"The new '166' offers another important advantage," Weicksel said. "The '166' can merge two windrows produced by 9-foot, or 3-meter, mower-conditioners to make better use of the larger capacity of today's choppers and balers."

The rubber-belt cross conveyor carries the crop to the left with less bruising and leaf shatter than a rake. Optional conveyor extensions merge windrows spaced 12-, 14-, and 16-feet apart. Optional hydraulic belt driving allows belt speed variation to match crop volume and a choice of right or left side delivery.

"Closely spaced tines on the 65-inch pickup handle large windrows," said Weicksel. "Merging a pair of windrows for quicker harvest is a real management advantage in a moist climate. It's more than just getting the crop out of the field ahead of the next rain. Even in good weather, it always seems to be time to start milking before you're finished baling.

"Fluffing and inverting for faster curing is important. But merging two windrows to cut baler field travel by half is important to labor-shy dairymen who need more time for milking today's bigger herds. That makes the '166' inverter as important for the baling time it saves as for the leaf loss it avoids," he said.

Meters Pinpoint Fertilizer Needs

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Farmers can protect underground water supplies without sacrificing high crop yields by simply fine-tuning fertilizer nitrogen applications on irrigated corn and wheat, a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist said.

In a two-year study on a Nebraska corn farm, soil scientist James S. Schepels clamped a chlorophyll meter on corn leaves to take the guesswork out of the amount of fertilizer nitrogen needed for maximum yields. The greenness of the plant leaves — caused by chlorophyll — is an indication of nitrogen content in the leaves.

Schepers said his readings showed fertilizer nitrogen use could be cut by as much as 150 pounds per acre on some fields by tailoring fertilization to plants' needs. Cutting fertilizer nitrogen use in one study reduced yields from a high of 199 bushels per acre on a fully fertilized field to a low of 194 bushels per acre with reduced fertilizer nitrogen.

Schepers said such precision in fertilizer nitrogen use is important because excess nitrogen can seep down through soil to contaminate groundwater. In Nebraska, where 6 million acres of corn are irrigated, surveys have shown the maximum groundwater contaminant level of 10 millierams of nitrate-nitrogen per liter of water has already been exceeded in some areas.

Schepers, of USDA s Agricultural Research Service, presented information on his work at a water quality symposium here. The symposium, "Agricultural Water Quality Priorities: A Team Approach to Conserving Natural Resources," has attracted scientists from both the government and private sector.

In the Nebraska study, Schepers used a SPAD-502 hand-held chlorophyll meter developed by Minolta Corp. The meter costs about $1,200 and is available commercially.

"It works by directing a beam of light through the leaf," Schepers said. "The measurement of light corresponds to the amount of chlorophyll in the plant and provides an indication of nitrogen status."

In the study on the Loren Niemack farm near Shelton, Neb., one 32.5-acre plot received a standard 150 pounds of fertilizer nitrogen per acre in the spring before planting, followed by another 30 pounds per acre at planting as "starter fertilizer." The field was irrigated using gated pipe.

For comparison, a second 32.5-acre plot received only 30 pounds of nitrogen in a starter fertilizer at planting. Chlorophyll meter readings indicated no other fertilizer was needed on this field. The field had a center-pivot irrigation system.

"We were going to add 30 more pounds of fertilizer nitrogen with the irrigation water each time we detected a nitrogen deficiency in the plants' leaves," said Schepers. "But no deficiency occurred."

Schepers and co-workers Dennis Francis and Tracy Blackmer checked the crop's progress each week, using the meters to determine the plants' nitrogen needs. Francis is an ARS soil scientist, and Blackmer is a graduate student at the University of Nebraska.

The yield on the plot that received typical amounts of fertilizer nitrogen was 199 bushels of corn per acre. The plot treated with only the starter fertilizer yielded 196 bushels per acre.

The researchers also used the reduced-fertilizer nitrogen system on another 32-acre plot with surge-flow furrow irrigation. Thirty pounds of nitrogen per acre were applied at planting. After the plants were about 18 inches tall, an additional 80 pounds of fertilizer nitrogen per acre were applied based on soil test recommendations. The yield on that field was 194 bushels per acre.

"Applying less fertilizer nitroyen means more effectively using natural sources of nitrogen," said Schepers. "This includes nitrogen left over from previous crops, from legumes that can transform nitrogen in the atmosphere to forms that the plant can use in the soil, and even from microorganisms that decay organic matter."

The Niemack farm is one of five USDA research projects in a program called the Management Systems Evaluation Area (MSEA). This program is aimed at helping farmers find alternative management practices that can reduce the likelihood of groundwater contamination.

Pennsylvania-Bred Bull Enters Select Sires Program

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — 7H4250 Sir Silky Synchronicity-ET*TL, a young sire bred by James Howes, Harry Bachman, and Charles Curtiss of Elizabethtown, has been chosen to enter Select Sires' Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) sire sampling system.

Based on his outstanding pedigree, 7H4250 has been selected as one of 185 Holstein bulls from throughout the U.S. to enter the program in 1992.

7H4250 is a Leadman son from three generations of "Very Good" dams, all with "Very Good" mammaries. All three dams are also over 26,000m, 990f, and 880p.

Many Farmers Use Combination Of Means To Control Pests

HUNTINGDON (HUNTINGDON CO.)— A recent Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture survey indicates the majority of the state's apple and field crop farmers use principles of integrated pest management (IPM), a system designed to select appropriate pest control tactics and minimize chemical pesticide applications.

The study was designed and conducted by Dr. Dennis Calvin and Dr. Edwin Rajotte, Penn State associate professors of entomology, and Dr. Aaron Harp, now an assistant professor of rural sociology at Idaho State University.

"The IPM system is based on studies of the target insect's ecology and life cycle," Rajotte said. "This information is used to recommend specific insecticides and natural countermeasures, such as rotation and frequent inspection of crops and encouragement of the pest's natural enemies.

"Many farm operations have been using IPM for years, but no one has ever documented it. We chose to survey apple growers and crop farmers because we wanted to get a picture of IPM adoption across the state between high- and lower-value crops," said Rajotte.

The insects that affect apples are extremely mobile and can wipe out a grower's investment in a matter of days, he said. "However, field crops usually are grown to support the farmer's cattle and dairy production. Generally, insect damage in field crops is less devastating."

Rajotte said the survey's findings suggest that most farmers in each category integrate natural and chemical pest controls, although the degree of IPM practice varies.

For instance, all of the 87 apple growers surveyed say they are aware of the state's IPM extension program. Accordingly, 98.7 percent agree that knowing when to spray is the best way to cut pesticide costs. Ninety-five percent of the growers say they offset chemical use by investing in early pest detection.

Another IPM strategy utilization of the pest's natural enemies is used by 90 percent of the apple growers. Rajotte says research developed in the 1970s found the black ladybird beetle to be a predator of the European red mite, the biggest threat to Pennsylvania orchards.

"Since then, early detection of the mites and use of the beetle have saved the state's growers more than $20 million and about 1.5 million pounds of pesticide," he said.

While just 44 percent of the crop farmers surveyed say they have heard of IPM, 86 percent agreed close inspection of their fields is necessary before deciding to apply pesticides.

"Fewer field crop farmers are familiar with the term because some extension specialists and agents have promoted integrated pest management without identifying it as IPM," Calvin said.

"A few years ago, some farmers reacted negatively to the term IPM because they thought the program's objective was to eliminate all pesticide use. But, that attitude is changing because we are now promoting familiar practices under the banner of IPM," he said.

Fifty-eight percent of the crop farmers are against routine spraying (with 29 percent undecided) and 33 percent disagree that chemicals provide the most economical type of pest control (with 43 percent undecided).

Calvin says the significant group of farmers unsure about these methods may indicate there is a need to redesign IPM education programs.

"One of the most important things we found in our research is that the average field crop farmer has less than a high school education, while 30 percent have eight years or less of formal education," he said. "This will have a great impact on the design and delivery of future IPM programs."

Other report recommendations include the need to customize integrated pest management plans for individual farms. "Static IPM packages mandated for each farm regardless of pest pressure, crop variety and farm structure would place an undue burden on farmers," Calvin said.

Seed Corn Handling Takes A Page From GM

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Material handling technology used at General Motors plants and food processing facilities transformed Northrup King's Phillips, Neb., plant into a state-of-the-art production facility to assure corn growers of quality seed.

The $3.4 million renovation features a unique automated bulk storage and handling system dedicated exclusively to hybrid seed corn production.

Mark Melander, director of engineering at Northrup King, said the Phillips plant utilizes the latest technology to protect seed during conditioning.

"At Phillips, we've installed the most advanced bulk storage and handling system in the seed industry," said Melander. "The new processes significantly reduce seed handling, eliminating mechanical damage to the seed during conditioning."

Engineers began the renovation by replacing conventional grain bins with a single bulk storage building which houses rectangular gravity-flow bins. They installed slow-moving belts and let-down ladders to transfer seed corn from the dryer to the sheller on to the conditioning tower and eventually into bags.

Next, they added automated process-flow controls to direct seed through one of 29 conditioning sequences. Finally, they adapted a sophisticated and proprietary computer software program from automated manufacturing applications to link and control all facets of the system.

This new technology brings all seed handling indoors, replacing manual transfer from bin to bin with gentle, automated seed handling. Instead of climbing grain bins, employees monitor production by computer and enjoy better working conditions.

Mark T. Wall, director of quality assurance and former Phillips plant manager, summarizes what this means to corn growers.

"Automated handling significantly reduces mechanical damage to seed, resulting in better germination," Wall said. "The new seed-handling process helps assure customers of vigorous stands and high yields."

SILO BALES!

Vermeer SW25-FL Silage Wrapper

Vermeer 504 Silage I Baler

Wrap Up Bigger Profits With High-Moisture Bales.

Introducing an entire system designed specifically for harvesting high-moisture hay and silage:

- Vermeer Gator Mowers ... capable of cutting through virtually everything, from wet trampled hay to fire anthills
- Vermeer 504 Silage Baler ... the only baler in the field today specifically designed for high-moisture baling, and able to handle the extra weight
- Vermeer Silage Wrappers ... seal the freshness and nutritional value of balage and silage within a tightly stretch-film-wrapped package, one that's resistant to weather conditions and rodents

The Bottom Line ...

(1) valuable, highly palatable hay packages — individually wrapped — that feed out fresh and improve the health and performance of your herd,

(2) increased milk production and greater weight gains for your dairy herd and beef cow operations,

(3) a reduction in the costs of livestock inputs directly effecting your profit margins, less storage and equipment expense. Discover the savings, the quality, the improved livestock performance!

QUANTEM SERIES 50

Temperature Modulating Fan Speed Control

Designed to be splash and dust resistant in accordance with NEC Article 547

The "Vari-Speed" VENTILATING Control is a SOLID STATE, single phase variable motor speed controller, designed to automatically ventilate industrial, commercial and agricultural facilities. The Series 50 provides ventilation control in proportion to the error sensed between the controller set point and actual space temperature as monitored by the controller's sensor. As temperature changes, voltage to the fan motor is changed proportionately.

Producer Questions Answered At Expo

DES MOINES, Iowa — If you have a question or problem related to the pork industry, you can ask the experts at World Pork Expo on June 5-7 here at the Iowa State Fairgrounds.

More than 40 Ph.D.s, veterinarians, and engineers from across the U.S. will be available from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. each day of Expo to answer producer questions in the foyer of the cattle barn. In addition to getting their questions answered, producers can view computer displays and models of production recordkeeping systems.

By popular demand, swine production record experts will be available to answer producer questions this year. Experts will also answer questions in the areas of genetics, reproduction, housing and waste management, nutrition, and swine health.

The Ask the Experts area showcases the nation's extension specialists, who are producers' primary source of information about new technology. Ask the Expert is sponsored by "Successful Farming" magazine.

AMERICAN STEEL ARCH

The Best of the Best

The Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality coating represents the best of the best in the Wheeling Corrugating line of premium galvanized roofing and siding. Every panel that carries the 2 ounce coating assures you are getting the toughest, the most durable, the most corrosion resistant galvanized sheet available in today's marketplace.

2oz. Seal of Quality Wheeling

Genuine Old-Time Quality

Every Wheeling 2 oz. sheet is manufactured from heavy gauge steel, topped with an extra thick zinc coating, and formed into profiles that contribute strength and good looks. Build with a Wheeling 2 oz. sheet and you'll be working with the kind of durability and dependability that's been a standard in the industry for almost 100 years.

The Proof is in the Process

The performance behind the Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality is possible because of Wheeling's patented Cook-Norteman manufacturing process. This technology allows a more consistent quality product, and a more uniform coating with unsurpassed zinc adhesion. The process takes more handling and more time, but the end result is a super premium panel that has its own limited 20-year performance warranty.

Dimensions and Specifications

If your building plans call for roofing and siding materials with exceptional corrosion resistance, minimum upkeep, and old-time toughness, you'll want to check the specs of Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality galvanized.

Gauge: 28
Lengths: Up to 40'
Steel: Full hard, 90,000 psi, cold rolled Wheeling-Pittsburgh carbon steel.

NOTE: * Premium Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality zinc coated natural roofing and siding will outlast painted, regular galvanized or galvalums in most applications!

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

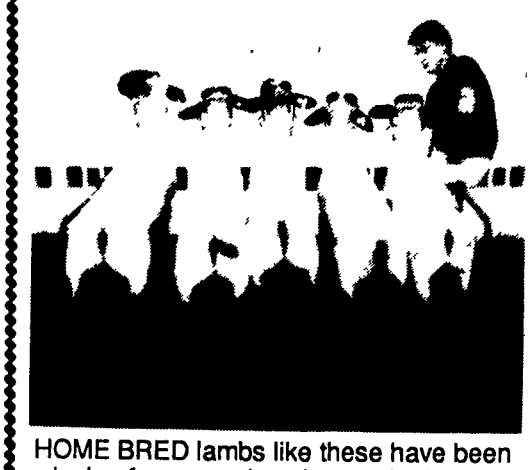
MEAT MATTERS MOST



HOME BRED lambs like these have been winning for me and my buyers in the Mid-Atlantic area. They LOOK GOOD. They HANDLE GOOD. They CUT GOOD. My latest triumph was Grand Champion carcass at the 1991 Keystone International Livestock Exposition. Check these stats.

In 1992, you're going to want to get more milk...

That's not easy.

Wet Brewers Grains can help increase your efficiency. Here's how:
Wet Brewers Grains add high-quality by-pass protein to your ration. The excellent palatability improves feed intake. And the better digestibility helps keep cows on feed. Call us for complete details soon.

The Eby Wrangler...
★ Better Looking ★ Better Built
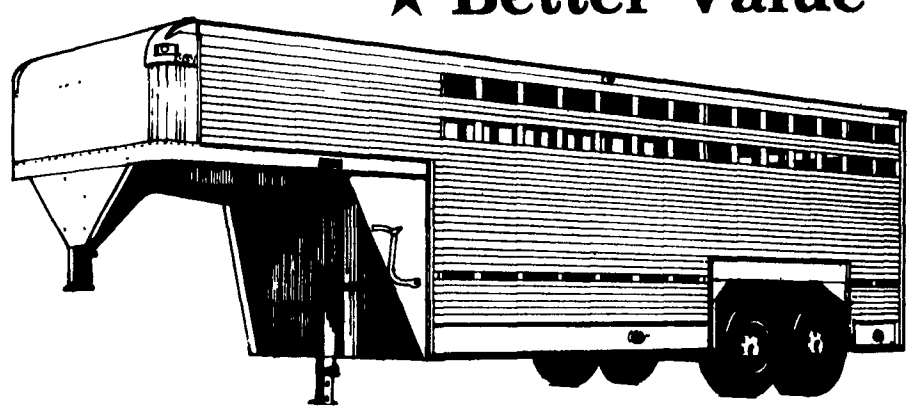
★ Better Value



The Wrangler Model 2000-OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top-quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000-OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top-value gooseneck.

Unlike other "budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000-OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wranger 2000-OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications
- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

MARYLAND DHIA

April, 1992

The April 1992 DHI information for Maryland dairy herds is listed by herd name, county association, total number of cows in the herd, and the average production per cow on a 3.5% Fat Corrected Milk (FCM) basis for all milking cows in the herd. The herd must consist of at least 10 cows averaging 65 lbs. or more 3.5% FCM per cow per day. All of the herds are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top 10 herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys and Jerseys, and the top eight herds for Ayrshires.

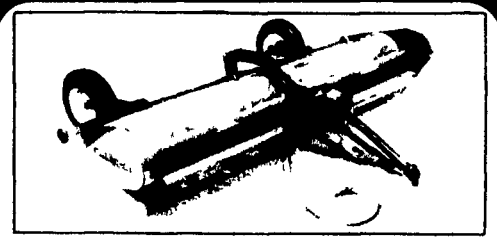
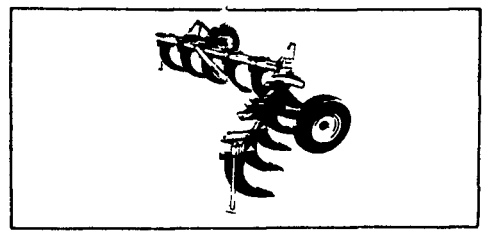
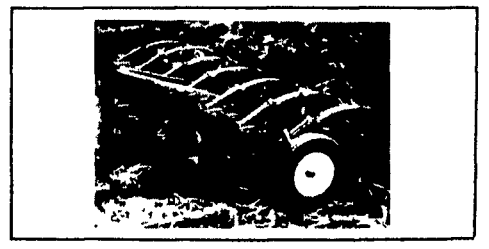
Brillion Implements Keep Going When Others Quit



BRILLION FLAIL SHREDDERS keep going when others stop! One of the most important features is that you get the heaviest gearbox on the market with this machine. 12 & 15 foot.



SUBSOILER, A POPULAR, VERSATILE SOIL MANAGEMENT TOOL designed with husky, curved shanks, the subsoiler digs down as deep as 16". It opens up the soil allowing moisture to penetrate, root systems are no longer restricted and better drainage results. Available in 3-11 Shanks.



DEEP TILLS - Featured above is the 7-shank model Deep-Till with the Category III hitch. This model is equipped with single individual trash cutting coulters and cuts a 17'6" width. It uses manual gauge wheels. Also available as 3 or 5 shank.

Penn State Extension Sheep Specialist

National Lamb And Wool Promotion Workshop Slated

Sheep producers from across the nation will converge on Denver, Colo., June 5-6 for the first National Lamb and Wool Promotion Workshop, sponsored by the American Sheep Industry Association (ASI).

Sheep producers at the workshop will cover aspects of promoting their product, including designing display materials that promote, effective taste samplings, learning to sell, fair events that work for the industry, working retailers, project planning, image development, and wool promotions.

On the national level, participants will learn about current ASI promotional efforts — what is working and why the promotional efforts are currently directed the way they are. Participants will be encouraged to brainstorm in small groups in an effort to develop a bank of ideas for lamb and wool promotions.

Workshop sessions will be led by recognized state and national leaders in commodity marketing.

Participants will be charged a $50 registration fee. Interested Pennsylvania producers may register through PSWGA contact person Ron Miller (215) 682-4009. ASI suggests all pre-registrations be processed through their respective state associations which may have ASI/state monies available to help defray associated travel and subsistence costs.

Schuylkill County Begins Diamond Farm Program

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN (Schuylkill Co.) — The Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension Association has recently announced that they are sponsoring the Schuylkill County Diamond Farm Program, a recognition program for farms which have been in the same family for 75 years or more. The program is designed to stress the importance of agriculture in Schuylkill County.

The Schuylkill County Diamond Farm Program is being held to help celebrate 75 years of cooperative extension educational programming in Schuylkill County, as well as recognize those farms and farm families which have done so much to contribute to the economic and rural heritage in Schuylkill County.

To become a designated diamond farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for at least the past 75 consecutive years and a family member must still live on the land. The farm must also contain at least 10 acres of the original holdings or gross more than $1,000 a year from the sale of farm products.

Farms, which are designated as Schuylkill County Diamond Farms, will be honored at the Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension annual banquet on October 17, 1992 at Pine View Acres.

Persons interested in participating in the program must complete an application form. Forms can be obtained by contacting the extension office at P.O. Box 250, Schuylkill Haven, Pa. 17972, (717) 385-3431. All application forms must be received by July 1.

Act Quickly When Poultry Cannibalism Strikes

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Cannibalism is one of the most serious problems poultry keepers face. But understanding the factors that contribute to cannibalism can help producers prevent damage to their flocks, said a poultry specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"An outbreak of cannibalism may start with toe, vent, or feather picking involving a few birds," said Dr. William Weaver, professor and head of poultry science. "Once it gets started, it's very difficult to stop. It can escalate until several birds are attacked and killed."

Weaver said cannibalism can strike poultry at any age, and usually is caused by any number of stressful situations.

"The causes can include overcrowding; too much heat; poor ventilation; high light intensity; an excessively long, artificially lighted day; inadequate feeder or watering space, empty feeders; improper diet; external parasites; or adding new birds to an existing pen," he said. "In short, anything that makes birds nervous or irritable."

To control cannibalism, producers can make several environmental changes to their management system. Weaver recommends the following measures:

• Expand the amount of floor space per bird by moving the flock to new quarters, culling, or giving the birds access to an outside yard. Victims and obvious instigators should be removed from the pen.

• Darken the house so the birds can see just enough to eat, drink, and move about. Provide at least eight hours of complete darkness each day.

• Feed whole heavy oats in the litter as a scratch grain at the rate of 1-½ pounds per day for every 25-30 adult hens.

• Keep the chickens busy by hanging up flakes of high quality legume hay, cabbage heads, or other attractive material high enough that the birds must jump slightly to peck at it.

• Add one level tablespoon of table salt to each gallon of drinking water. This should be done only for one or two days, or for half a day on two or three successive days.

• Apply antipick salve to at least 25 percent of the flock.

Weaver said that, sometimes, cannibalism reaches a point where beak trimming is the most practical option. Commercial devices are available to cut and cauterize beaks, but trimming on a small scale also can be done with toenail clippers or a sharp knife.

"Remove the tip of the upper mandible about one-third of the way back to the nostril," said Weaver. "Give the cut a backward slant toward the inside of the mouth. Then shorten the lower mandible to a lesser extent, being careful not to cut the bird's tongue."

Weaver said owners of breeding flocks should be aware that beak trimming may affect fertility by preventing males from supporting themselves during the mating process. He said the degree and method of trimming also can affect eating habits.

"It's possible to keep chickens for years and never have a cannibalism problem," said Weaver. "But when it strikes, the results can be devastating if you don't act quickly."

Conference To Review Ag, Water Quality

ANKENY, Iowa — What researchers have learned in recent years about agriculture's impacts on water quality and how to minimize those impacts will be discussed at a national conference, February 21-24, 1993, in Minneapolis, Minn.

The conference, "Agricultural Research to Protect Water Quality," is being sponsored by the Management Systems Evaluation Area (MSEA) program in cooperation with the Soil and Water Conservation Society (SWCS), an international, nonprofit membership organization that advocates the conservation of land and water resources. Cosponsors include the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, U.S. Geological Survey, Agricultural Research Service, Extension Service, and Cooperative State Research Service.

The MSEA program is a collaborative effort involving federal, state, and university researchers in the Midwest. The program is sponsoring research aimed at better understanding the effects of agricultural practices on water quality and developing new farming systems to protect water quality.

The conference program will feature presentations on the results of MSEA-sponsored research and research conducted elsewhere in the U.S. on agricultural-related water quality issues. Among the specific topics to be discussed are nitrogen management, herbicide movement and degradation, integrated pest management, innovative farming systems and the ecological impacts of these systems, and socioeconomic evaluations of new farming systems.

A call for papers has been issued. Deadline for submissions is August 17, 1992. A preliminary conference program and details on registration will be available in November.

More information about the water quality conference is available from SWCS, 7515 Northeast Ankeny Road, Ankeny, Iowa 50021-9764, (800) THE-SOIL or (515) 289-2331.

CHORE-TIME OFFERS YOU A CHOICE

Feed broilers your way! As the world leader in broiler systems, Chore-Time offers you a choice of feeders. If you like a grill, you'll love what our newest feeder—the Model C2™—does for you. Features include feed-saving pan/grill combination, labor-saving feed windows, and durable all-plastic design.

If you prefer a grill-less feeder, our Model H2™ is available in three versions (shown at right). Each is designed to handle different needs and styles of management.

Whichever Chore-Time feeder you go with, you'll know it's the right choice, because it's from Chore-Time.

MOVE MORE LIFT MORE DO MORE!

The new L-Series Kubota tractors are designed to finish every light construction job with power, ease and improved working efficiency.

Increased front loader lifting capacities help you move more material and lift heavier loads. A powerful hydraulic system results in shorter cycle times.

You'll also be able to do more with the compact Kubota L-Series – 23-49 PTO HP, tight turning radius and 4WD. And the innovative "Ever-Clutch"– a first-of-a-kind wet clutch that doubles clutch life and even comes with its own warranty.

Demanding construction jobs demand more options. The L-Series has them, including a hefty 3-point hitch, a variety of performance matched implements and industrial tires.

Come see how much more you can do with a Kubota.

NOW TAKING ORDERS!

New! Precision Metering For Soybeans, Milo

Imagine nearly perfect plateless metering for soybeans, milo/grain sorghum! Imagine the ability to plant varying seed sizes accurately — soybeans (from 2,200 to 4,000 seeds per pound); milo/grain sorghum (12,000-18,000 seeds per pound); — with the same meter and the appropriate seed disc. A precision meter with one moving part. One that costs little to maintain. One that eliminates the wasted overage and all the extra adjustments of conventional mechanical metering systems. One that doesn't require all the pumps, adjustments and maintenance of air and vacuum systems. One that's actually gentler on the seed than anything you've used before.

Meet the new KINZE® Brush-Type Seed Meter. Designed specifically to handle a wide variety of crops.

How does it work? Simply! It consists of a die-cast aluminum housing and a system of brushes that fills and gently retains individual seeds in a precision-molded seed disc with specially designed seed pockets.

As the disc rotates vertically within the housing, seeds gravitate toward the pedrimeter of the seed disc. Individual seeds are then picked up by the molded seed pocket and retained by the special brush system until they reach a point immediately above the seed tube where they are released and allowed to drop gently into the seed trench.

The result? More accuracy and control than you ever thought possible. Without all the adjustments. Without all the maintenance headaches.

Simple. Precise. Reliable. Economical. The KINZE Finger Pickup Bean Meter

"It Works..." Richard Cleer and Don Durga of Ipava, Illinois are believers in the Super Sponge® Weed Wiper.

"With 'no till' farming on the increase, the Super Sponge® Wiper is an excellent tool for weed control."

"This is the least expensive, really the only way to clean up our fields."

"Two to three years of wiping with the Super Sponge® has eliminated hemp dogbane altogether."

— Richard Cleer

"We've used this wiper for three years, and we're very satisfied."

"It's easy to pull - we use our 4-wheel ATV."

"The chemical feed system works great."

— Don Durga

Axial-Flow Combines Are Simply More Productive

Over the past fourteen years the Case IH axial-flow combines have proven themselves to be more productive than the combines previously owned by our customers. In tall crops, short crops or down crops; bumper crops or drought crops the axial-flow combines put more crop in the bin and, therefore, return more market dollars to you. The Case IH axial-flow is simply more productive in the field where the bragging stops.

HOOBER:
Axial-Flow production specialists

1. Every new combine Hoober sells is expertly predelivered and started in the field by a professional combine mechanic; experienced in setting and adjusting for all common crops.
2. Hoober's professional combine mechanics drive fully equipped combine service trucks, stocked with commonly used wearing parts. When called to service or repair an axial-flow combine, they carry with them the tools and equipment to do the job and get you back to the field fast.
3. Hoober's Parts Department has the largest combine parts inventory in the East. Daily pick-ups at the Case IH Parts depot help to provide fast emergency parts availability. Hoober's expert combine PARTS service provides you minimum downtime and maximum productivity.

INCREASE YOUR HARVEST PRODUCTIVITY WITH A case IH AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE FROM C.B. HOOBER & SON, INC.

When you're comparing tractors...

WEIGH THE FORD ADVANTAGES

Weigh the advantage of a work-proven Ford 32- to 55-PTO-hp tractor to anything in its class.

Compare weight. The weight-to-horsepower ratio of these Ford utility tractors makes them feel bigger and work bigger with more traction and stability. Ford utility tractors give you more of the features you need. More weight is just one of them

"3230"—32 PTO hp
"3430"—38 PTO hp
"3930"—45 PTO hp
"4630"—55 PTO hp

So when you're comparing tractors, stop by and weigh all the advantages of a Ford utility tractor. More of what you need.

IXL

Anti-friction Metal Conditioner

Efficiency Is Our Newest Resource

Science brings a new dimension to Anti-Friction

An oil additive metal conditioner product ahead of its time, IXL gives protection far superior to just oil or lubricants, by blending IXL, to your oil, you can give tons of your equipment priceless protection, for pennies per ounce, IXL saves you money on Maintenance Costs, Fuel, Etc. IXL products are designed to be used in gas & diesel engines (new and used), Hydrostatic, manual, and automatic transmissions, compressors, gear boxes, hydraulics, turbos, pumps, bearings (all types) and much more. The results of using IXL are: minimum metal wear, giving maximum engine and machine life; IXL reduces heat and friction; IXL also helps to maintain and recondition seals and gaskets keeping these items pliable, firm and flexible. Will help prevent leaks. IXL is NOT a lubricant fortifier, such as graphite, moly or PTFE, IXL DOES NOT change tolerances. IXL is a metal conditioner which Treats the metals 3 to 5 microns deep. IXL is one of the highest quality products on the market today. IXL is guaranteed.

S & S SILO SERVICE

ATTENTION FARMERS
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete
STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?
PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

WILL SERVICE 3 TO 4 DAYS OR LESS ON MOST JOBS

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

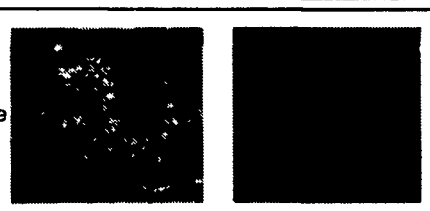
Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylabe, it is time to SHOTCRETE.

RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increases useful life
- Economical

Before The silo's interior with plaster damaged and stave exposed

After The surface is reconditioned, and a new, thick, tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface



Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made... quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original

Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

After The ShotCrete System repairs and replaces the missing structure

Shotcrete is also good for repairing stone walls
